CAPT. HARRISON SCANS STORY OF MRS. GOODBODY

Account of Murder in Drake Sketchy.

[A young and pretty woman, in an eighth floor room of the Drake, suddenly sees "something black." She cries out to her mother, "Some one is in here!" Immediately "another woman," dressed in black, emerges shooting. Capt. Harrison carried you that far yesterday in his report on the murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, and the attempt on the life of her daughter, the young and pretty woman, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody. Capt. Harrison's fascinating review of the slaying and subsequent investigation continues today.]

In yesterday's report on the "murder in the Drake" I brought you to the point where Mrs. Patricia Goodbody says she called out, from the bathroom of room 836, to her mother, "Some one is in here," and a woman, gun in hand, stepped from behind the bathroom door. Now let us see what horrible things occurred during the next few seconds.

First, keep in mind the layout of room 836 by consulting the accompanying illustrations and diagrams. Note the location of the bathroom. Note the hallway, which Mrs. Williams later is to refer to as an "ante-room." Note, too, the bedroom proper.

Both Stories Are Sketchy.

The story of the shooting must be told by Mrs. Goodbody and her mother, Mrs. Adele Born Williams. Both women were startled. Their stories are terribly sketchy. Patricia, of course, could tell the more detailed story. She related it to Assistant State's Atty. Joseph A. Pope, Supervising Capt. John P. Ryan, and others at 10:59 p. m., Jan. 19, the night of the shooting. Mrs. Williams had been wounded four hours before. Certainly we can say that Patricia's statement was taken while memory still was vivid.

Mrs. Goodbody began her statement to the police by saying that she and her mother entered room 836 together, after finding the door unlocked. [An unlocked hotel room door may mean a prowler has been or is at the moment inside. But neither Mrs. Williams nor, apparently, Mrs. Goodbody was alarmed. The fact is that on more than one other occasion Mrs. Williams had left her door unlocked.]

Take Off Coats and Talk.

"Did you notice anything unusual about the bathroom when you got in?" Pope asked Mrs. Goodbody.

"No, nothing," she replied.

"Then what happened?"

"So we took our coats off, and we sat there talking for a while. I went into the bathroom."

Whether this is her first visit to the bathroom is not clear. We do know that Patricia says that she carried "a bundle of groceries" into the apartment. We know that this bundle was later found on a little stand in the bathroom. It is improbable that she could have removed her coat without first putting the bundle down. It is possible then that on entering the room and before removing her coat she placed the groceries on the bathroom stand. That, then, would be her first visit to the bathroom.

Tells of Looking at Grill.

The only reason to mention this is that if Patricia did go into the bathroom at that time she did not see any one inside the room. In her statement she said that a few minutes later she and her mother together went into the bathroom, where her mother showed her a newly purchased small electric grill. Neither of them was aware of the presence of a third person.

A few minutes later Mrs. Goodbody visited the bathroom again. She called this her second visit. If our assumption as to the deposit of the "bundle of groceries" is correct, the visit would be her third.

Here is what Patricia says about her visits to the bathroom:

"This time I went into the bath

Quebec Ends Liberals' Rule of Legislature

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 9—(Wednesday).—Final election results in Quebec early today gave the Union Nationale 46 seats out of a total of 91 in the provincial legislature, a clear majority. The Liberal party elected 38 members, the Bloc Populaire 4, Co-operative Commonwealth federation 1, and Nationalist 1. One seat will be filled at a later election.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 9 [Wednesday] (AP).—The Liberal government of Premier Adelard Godbout, proponent of full coöperation in Canada's federal war effort, was defeated in a bitterly contested Quebec provincial election yesterday by the Union Nationale party under former Premier Maurice Duplessis, who campaigned against what he termed "federal interference" in the affairs of the predominantly French speaking province.

The Liberals' majority of 59 seats in the outgoing legislature was cut to a minority of fewer than 40, while the followers of Duplessis increased their strength of 17 to more than 40, altho they had not won a clear majority by last midnight.

43 Union Seats; 37 Liberal.

At that hour the Union Nationale had won 43 seats and the Liberals 37, with the Union leading in three others and the Liberals in one. Forty-six were required for a majority.

If the Union Nationale should fail to win a majority or find a working arrangement with some of the minor party members, a new election would have to be called.

Running a poor third was the newly formed nationalist Bloc Populaire which had sought votes from this predominantly French province, comprising almost one third of Canada's population, on a platform of "Canada for Canadians" and of opposition to Canadian participation in "foreign war."

Godbout, Duplessis and Andre Laurendeau, 32-year-old leader of the Bloc Populaire, all were elected in their home constituencies.

Scores Injured in Montreal.

Scores were injured, including five persons taken to hospitals, when rival political gangs numbering hundreds clashed in a French section of Montreal, fired shots, flashed knives, overturned automobiles, and wrecked buildings.

The shooting began when a mob tried to storm a loca. headquarters of the Liberal party. A few minutes after police brought this under control a second riot broke out when mobsters marched toward a near-by Union Nationale headquarters.

THE RACE TO THE POWDER BARREL

Arrests Bare Nylon Hosiery Fraud in East

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8 [Special].—Thousands of pairs of nylon stockings, sold on the black market for $6 to $10 a pair, were fraudulently manufactured from government owned nylon yarn intended for parachutes and glider tow ropes, FBI officials disclosed today in announcing they had smashed a million dollar eastern seaboard conspiracy.

The conspirators used more than 10,000 pounds of nylon yarn—enough to make an estimated 120,000 pairs of stockings—which was diverted from material supplied by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., it was learned from another source.

Three men have been arrested and arraigned on charges of conspiring to defraud the government, and more arrests are expected, Samuel K. McKee, New Jersey FBI chief, said. His agents have recovered 2,100 pounds of nylon, which they seized in undisclosed warehouses and mills.

Bail Set at $5,000.

The three, arrested at their homes last Saturday, are Samuel M. Paris, 41, of Fairlawn, N. J., official of the Duplex Hosiery mills of Asbury Park, N. J., operator of the Belfast Fabric Co., Manhattan, and consultant for a number of South American industries; Stephen F. Schmidt, 35, of Clifton, N. J., a textile machine operator, and Walter L. Schautz, 44, of Scranton, Pa., vice president of the Grove Silk Co., Dunmore, Pa. Each was held in bail of $5,000.

McKee gave the following account of the conspiracy:

The du Pont plant sent raw nylon to Schautz' Grove Silk company where it was manufactured into thread. Then the thread was shipped to New York manufacturers for fabrication into parachutes and glider ropes. But Schautz shortweighted the spools he shipped.

Hosiery Mills Get Yarn.

The yarn thus diverted was sent to two hosiery plants in Paterson, N. J., and another in Monmouth county, N. J., where it was made into stockings. The product then went to plants in New York and Philadelphia to be dyed.

The stockings began to appear early this year on the black market in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, and other Atlantic coast cities, McKee said.

Ten years ago Paris was held for a time in the purported kidnaping of Dr. Samuel H. Sklar, a Brooklyn chemist, who accused Paris of trying to steal a synthetic rubber formula from him. Paris was freed after accusing Sklar of swindling him of $7,000 and last year Sklar was sent to Sing Sing on another swindle charge.

DRIVER IS HELD FOR DEATH OF WIFE IN CRASH

Sam Klein, 54, of 40 E. Oak st., whose wife, Myrtle, 49, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Doris Klein, 21, were killed July 1 when he drove his car into the side of a North Shore freight train at Dempster st. in Skokie, was charged with manslaughter by Skokie police yesterday on the recommendation of a coroner's jury.

Klein, who suffered a spinal injury and several fractured bones, appeared in a cast at the inquest in Skokie village hall. His attorney, Wyatt Jacobs, counseled him not to testify.

Witnesses said Klein passed other motorists waiting at the crossing and crashed the guard gate. The jury found he was driving recklessly. Sgt. Gus Milz of Skokie police guarded Klein last night at his home, and police said he would be taken to the county jail today unless he posted bond.

CHICAGO 'ARTIST' FINISHES A JAP GUN ON GUAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUAM, July 31 [Delayed].—Pvt. Edwin Swyndroski, 3440 S. Marshfield av., Chicago, is only 23 but with his stocky build, ruddy complexion and jolly manners he is a perfect candidate for a department store Santa Claus. He is best known to his marine buddies, however, as a "flame thrower artist."

In the drive near Agana village Swyndroski's unit was held up by a machine gun operated by a Jap in a cave.

"Start your cooker, Moose," a sergeant ordered the Chicagoan.

"Whoosh," went the fire maker. A huge plume of range flame arched unerringly into the opening. The Moose galloped lightly back. The advance continued.

Rome Books, Food Soar on Black Market

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Aug. 8.—Control is so strict and supplies are so low that prices on the black market in foodstuffs in Rome are astronomical and prohibitive. Romans are selling anything they can lay their hands on.

The most interesting black market is in books. This began to flourish when citizens were obliged to spend so many hours shut up in their homes and reading became their chief pastime. Prices of books, particularly forbidden books, soared and speculators made large profits.

Mussolini Goes Up.

The works of Mussolini, formerly a drug on the market, are now withdrawn from circulation, with the result that they are in increasing demand. On the other hand the works of Marx, Engel, Lenin, and Trotsky, which were formerly rare, go down. A copy of Marx's "Das Kapital" which was sold last April for 3,000 lire, can be bought today for 150.

The price of Trotsky's "History of the Russian Revolution," published here in 1936, which was later forbidden and then sold by the Fascist ministry of popular culture, quoted at 6,000 lire last March is now 4,000 lire.

Americans Popular.

Books of American writers, particularly Faulkner, Steinbeck, and Sinclair Lewis, are at a premium. An "Anthology of American Authors" published in Milan is quoted at 600 lire; Chamberlain's "History of the Russian Revolution" quoted at 2,500 lire last March is now 1,700.

The demand for books on Russia signifies an enormous popular interest in the soviet union. Thomas Mann commands a high price, but D'Annunzio tops. His collected works have sold at 17,000 lire.

FIGHT SENATE BILL FOR HUGE POST-WAR DOLE

Protest PAC Plan to Sovietize Labor.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—A New Deal measure to set up unprecedented federal control over millions of jobless in the post-war period was put before the senate today, immediately drawing a Republican blast as a proposal to "Hillmanize and sovietize labor."

Sidney Hillman.

Battle lines in the bitter debate, with forces apparently almost evenly divided, were drawn between the administration bloc and a combination of Republicans and Democrats. The latter are united behind a bill for state control of unemployment compensation in the reconversion era.

The war of words and parliamentary maneuvers may be protracted for days before a vote is taken. The results will afford a test of the power of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee which has launched a gigantic propaganda drive in behalf of the federal control legislation.

Sen. George Opens Fight.

With 50 senators present, Sen. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the finance committee, opened the engagement by submitting his committee's bill which adds 3,500,000 workers, most of them arsenal, shipyard, and other government employes, to the list of those eligible for unemployment pay. It also permits the states to borrow from the federal treasury if their resources are inadequate for benefits in the post-war period.

Sen. Murray [D., Mont.] then proposed as amendments to the George bill the legislation drafted by himself and Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] which creates a super government agency to direct reconversion from war to peace and establishes federal payments as high as $1,820 a year for a jobless man with three or more dependents.

Tells of State Laws.

Sen. George argued that his measure supplies adequate protection for the unemployed. The various state laws provide for benefits of from 50 to 60 per cent of regular wages, ranging from $15 to $22 a week and for periods ranging from 14 to 24 weeks with steady progress upward both as to amount and duration, he noted.

As for the Murray-Kilgore bill, with its maximum of $35 a week payments, he remarked: "It would be most unwise for congress to pass legislation inducing idleness."

Not so temperate in language was Sen. Willis [R., Ind.], who asserted sharply: "As a friend of laboring people, I shall oppose the Murray-Kilgore bill for the reason that it would Hillmanize and sovietize labor by shackling reëmployment under complete domination of government.

Urges Jobs, Not a Dole.

"It would raise our post-war obligations to such stratospheric heights that opportunities for continued and new jobs for our returning service men and federal workers would be reduced to the vanishing point.

"What the working man really wants is a good job at fair pay rather than relief by a government dole."

The debate brought out that the Murray-Kilgore bill establishes a federal work administrator with such broad powers that he may move jobless workers, their families and household goods at government expense.

However, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, joined the CIO in support of the measure.

Sen. Kilgore, in a lengthy speech, defended his proposal, asserting that state systems for handling unployment were inadequate.

Hitler Hangs Eight Officers in Army Purge

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP).—Eight expelled army officers were hanged today in the Hitler assassination purge, Berlin announced. There were also rumors that Heinrich Himmler had been killed and Hermann Goering wounded in a new outbreak against the Nazi regime.

Official broadcasts said Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben was hanged with seven colleagues for their confessed participation in the July 20 conspiracy to kill Adolf Hitler and surrender Germany to the allies. The death sentences were carried out two hours after a red robed "people's court" convicted the defendants of high treason.

The two day trial developed a story of vast intrigue against Hitler for more than a year, and dissatisfaction of high officers over his military ineptitude.

Captive Reports Himmler's Death.

The rumor that Gestapo chief Himmler was dead came from the British front in Normandy. This report, received with the utmost reserve in London, said a newly captured German intelligence officer related that Himmler had been killed and Goering, Hitler's second in command, wounded. Other prisoners offered to corroborate the officer's story, but all the captives' information was based on what they had been told and not what they themselves had observed.

One German officer captured in Normandy related that he had made a "pep talk" to his troops and for want of something else had made up a story that Himmler was dead, in order to encourage them, the British radio said. There was no indication, however, that this officer was the same one referred to in the Normandy dispatch.

Three Generals Executed.

Berlin's official account of the hangings named those killed as von Witzleben, the chief defendant, Maj. Gen. Erich Hoeppner, Maj. Gen. Helmut Stieff, Lt. Gen. Paul von Hase, Lt. Col. Robert Bernardis, Capt. Friedrich Karl Klausing, Lt. Albrecht von Hegen, and Lt. Peter Count York von Wartenburg. Von Wartenburg is a cousin of Count Claus von Stauffenberg, named by Berlin as the actual assassin. All the property of the executed men was confiscated by the reich.

This brought to 16 the deaths which Berlin has announced in connection with the bomb explosion which bruised and burned Hitler.

A Berlin broadcast by the Transocean News agency said five other officers, cashiered in connection with the conspiracy, would be tried by the People's court, presumably immediately. They were listed as Gen. Fellgiebel [signals intelligence], Maj. Gen. von Treschow, Col. Hanson [general staff], Maj. Hayessen [general staff], and Lt. Count von der Schulenburg, a relative of the former German ambassador to Moscow.

Asked to Be Shot.

Five of the defendants asked today to be shot rather than be hanged, said the rambling report of the trial broadcast by DNB, German official news agency.

"You wanted to blow the Fuehrer to pieces and now you ask for an honest bullet," rasped the president of the court, Dr. Roland Feisler. "This is really the limit."

Von Witzleben was quoted as testifying that he and Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck were to have headed the military under the coup. Beck, former chief of the German general staff, was one of three officers who committed suicide, Berlin said, after frustration of the conspiracy. Four others were executed on the day of the attempted assassination.

[A plot to overthrow Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain was reported by DNB, German news agency, which asserted agents charged with engineering the coup had been arrested in Morocco. The rebroadcast of the report was heard in New York.]

RACE TO CROSS SARTHE RIVER; HINGE CRACKED

Reduce Defenses of 5 Breton Ports.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 9 [Wednesday]. — American troops driving on Paris today were closing in on the gateway city of Le Mans, 110 miles southwest, as Canadian forces in their first big offensive smashed five to nine miles south of Caen on the shortest route to the French capital.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's doughboys were at least 10 miles beyond their farthest previously reported advance and the Germans said that 10 Yank divisions were attempting to force the Sarthe river, which runs thru Le Mans, and Alencon, 100 miles from Paris.

Report Le Mans Reached.

Headquarters gave no indication of the positions of the most forward troops, but said resistance along the American route has been slight. One front line dispatch reported American vanguards had reached Le Mans, big railroad and highway center.

Canadian forces pouring thru breaches opened in shattering night and day bombardments by thousands of American and R. A. F. bombers and by a synchronized artillery barrage, rolled up German strongholds on the road to Falaise, 20 miles south of Caen.

Mop Up Strong Points.

Other strong points were bypassed and later mopped up as Canadian tanks and infantrymen riding in troop carriers specially protected by sand bags behind their armor plates against the deep network of mortar and machine gun posts, smashed along both sides of the road on a three mile front.

La Hogue, Secqueville la Campagne, Garcelles-Secqueville, Cramesnil, St. Aignan de Cramesnil, east of the road, and Roquancourt, west of the highway, fell to these hard pounding forces. Tilly la Campagne, May sur Orne, and Fontenay le Marmion, passed by in the early stages, were cleared of the enemy later. At Tilly 80 Germans were captured after flame throwers had blistered every building in the village.

Battle Nine Miles South.

Late battle front reports said the Canadians in great strength were approaching Cintheaux, nine miles southeast of Caen.

"The hinge is loosening," said a Canadian staff officer. A break-thru south of Caen, beyond the Germans' Vimont road block of anti-tank artillery, would leave Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge without a real defense line short of the Seine river.

Capture Several Hundred.

Several hundred prisoners were captured, many in a state of nervous exhaustion from the terrific air and artillery bombardment.

A thousand R. A. F. bombers opened the night attack Monday night. These were followed by a big scale tank attack under cover of darkness. Yesterday, more than 1,000 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators, defying intense flak, shattered additional strong points in front of Lt. Gen. D. G. Crear's 1st Canadian army, and pushed the assault against secondary supply and reserve lines. In one instance flak shot down a lead bomber and its formation loosed some of its cargo on allied positions, causing casualties.

Hit Paris Area.

Eighth and 9th air force fighters carried the attack beyond the front, the 8th striking at railroad communications around Paris and the 9th concentrating on seven bridges in the Paris-Reims-Amiens area. Thirteen American heavy bombers and 13 fighters were reported missing from all operations.

The British 2d army strengthened its new bridgehead across the Orne river below the Canadian fighting front after beating off four counter-attacks in 24 hours. The line east of the river was straightened and expanded between 2,000 and 3,000 yards.

German tanks and infantry attacked thruout the morning along the northern fringe of Grimbosq woods above Thurty-Harcourt, 14 miles southwest of Caen.

In the Breton peninsula American armored forces were reducing the defenses of all five main ports while more armor, infantry, and supplies were pouring in to support the advancing spearheads.

There was heavy fighting at St. Malo, and the Germans said the Yanks had broken into that port at one point. Fighting also was going on four miles from Brest and a concentrated attack was opened on the submarine base at Lorient, whose garrison was reported ready to surrender.

Claim Yanks Repelled.

German broadcasts said that security forces outside St. Malo, Brest, Lorient, and St. Nazaire had beaten off American attacks and withdrawn according to plan. These broadcasts also asserted that Angers and Nantes were firmly held, altho no allied claims of their capture had been made.

Other American forces were within 15 to 30 miles of the Loire river for 99 miles from Nantes to Angers.

The German news agency, DNB, said in a broadcast that allied glider troops were landing in the Loire river estuary near St. Nazaire.

Attack Four Nazi Divisions.

Four German divisions were under assault around Mortain, where they attempted on Monday to sever the Normandy-Brittany corridor. The wreckage of 163 enemy tanks littered the battlefield which was narrowed by American capture of Gathemo, seven miles north of Mortain. Another American column driving six miles southeast of Mortain entered Barenton. Mortain changed hands four times and was held by the Germans late yesterday.

In an attempt to hold their salient aimed at Avranches, the Germans threw in local counter-attacks east of Vire to relieve the pressure from the north, but these gained only a mile at most. It was said that the German attacks were not of sufficient strength to endanger the Avranches corridor and were believed designed to cover a disengaging movement farther to the north and in the Vire area. Mortain is 15 miles south of Vire, and controls four roads and a railroad between Vire and Fougeres.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Following is the Tuesday German war bulletin, as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"After several hours of drumfire, the enemy early today again launched an attack south and southeast of Caen. Violent fighting is in progress. West of the Orne river, the enemy made strong individual attacks which were smashed.

"Southwest of Vire and east of Avranches, Americans continued breakthru attacks on a wide front, employing large quantities of materiel and strong air formations. In heavy fighting which continued until evening, the enemy was repulsed in front of our second position with heavy losses.

"Farther to the south, tank divisions of the army and waffen SS. threw back the enemy westward on both sides of Mortain, despite stubborn resistance. Angio-Saxon counter-attacks were foiled.

"In the area east of Laval, the enemy intensified his pressure.

"In Brittany, our local formation smashed enemy spearheads and afterward, systematically detached themselves to the sectors of Best and Lorient. Bitter fighting is raging for St. Malo.

"On the night of Aug. 6, an enemy destroyer in the Seine bay was damaged heavily by an aerial torpedo. Over Normandy and occupied western districts, 19 aircraft were shot down in combats."

Americans and Canadians Forge Ahead in Drive Toward Paris

NAZIS BOMB OWN MEN

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN BRITTANY, Aug. 8.—German flyers dropped flares last night which lighted up one prison camp, behind whose barbed wire there were 1,500 of their comrades. The planes bombed and strafed the field until they had killed 18 German prisoners and wounded 50 more.

Second Lt. John Mathis, Syracuse, N. Y., in charge of the prison camp, said the prisoners were in a panic. Many managed to scramble across the barbed wire and hide in ditches, while others screamed curses at the attacking planes and urged our ack-ack to shoot them down.

I asked one Nazi today why he thought the attacks were made and he said: "Maybe they are provoked over there that we are prisoners." Others, however, especially luftwaffe prisoners, maintained or pretended to maintain that they thought the attacks were "mistakes."

Hold Out at St. Malo.

There are still three main German strong points of resistance in Brittany—Brest, Lorient, and St. Malo. The only real fighting seems to be at St. Malo, where the fanatical Nazi commander has sworn to fight to the last man and has said that they will fight on even tho surrounded.

Lorient, whose defenders a couple of days ago were reported willing to surrender, now apparently is determined to try to defend the city. Our armored columns are now approaching that sea coast town from the north and east.

At the major port of Brest, which our armor was reported to have entered three days ago, up to date information seems to indicate that fighting there actually hasn't begun in any force. We have an armored column within 23 miles of Brest, which is believed to be well fortified.

[A dispatch from supreme headquarters said Americans were within four miles of Brest.]

Enter Outskirts of Town.

Our infantry units today made a slight advance and reconnaissance units were entering the outskirts of the town. Other units now are south of Dinard, across the Rance estuary to the west, but the Germans still were fighting fiercely and with much support from artillery, emplaced on islands north of St. Malo, sending shells into our positions on the mainland.

Despite the German commander's insistence in holding out to the last man, our troops have taken 1,800 prisoners on the St. Malo peninsula, including 450 who surrendered today. According to the prisoners, the German garrison commander has threatened to court martial any officer surrendering.

Many Russian Prisoners.

Many prisoners are Russian, and many are said to be suffering ailments, such as stomach trouble and ear infections, which would normally disqualify a man for military service.

Members of the French resistance movement, who have been doing an excellent job in the Brittany peninsula, have been credited with another assist in the case of St. Brieuc, which they helped liberate and are now helping to garrison, according to reports from that sector.

3 ILLINOIS SOLDIERS RECEIVE MEDALS FOR HEROISM IN FRANCE

WITH U. S. FORCES IN FRANCE —(AP).—Fighting with an infantry division in France, three Illinois soldiers who have distinguished themselves by heroic action have been awarded the bronze star.

Lt. Thomas J. Henderson of Chicago, was cited for killing three Germans attempting to direct artillery fire on our defensive position. He exposed himself to enemy fire in order to obtain a firing position.

Sgt. Lawrence C. Oesch of Danvers, communications sergeant with an infantry company, exposed himself to German artillery fire to mend communications lines severed by a barrage. He is the son of Mrs. Augusta Oesch of Danvers.

Pvt. Forest W. Gore of Olmstead, helped kill a German scout and prevent the enemy from penetrating his company's lines at night to disrupt communications.

Churchill Pays Another Visit to French Front

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 8 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill visited the Normandy battlefront again today. He received first hand information on the recent allied advances from Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery and Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley. Before leaving for Normandy Churchill conferred with King George VI.

YANKS' SPEEDY PLUNGE CATCHES NAZIS OFF GUARD

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN BRITTANY, Aug. 6 [Delayed].—In the American forces' swift dash thru Brittany our armor clings to the main roads while the infantry follows up to mop up pockets of German resistance which spill off on both sides of the onrushing armor.

Thus the German opposition encountered is spotty and leads to some strange situations, like that experienced by one column of motorized infantry which, accompanied by armor and other units, yesterday pushed 43 road miles into Mayenne in less than 10 hours.

It began from near Fougeres, to the east, and met little resistance at first except for some German 68 millimeter guns, which knocked out two armored cars before our mortars took care of them.

Only One Bridge Blown Up.

The next real resistance was when the force reached Mayenne.

According to Capt. Ivan Schoch of Berkeley, Cal., and Staff Sgt. Robert D. Mitchell of Little Rock, Ark., the German defenders of Mayenne were so few, so confused, and so surprised that they blew up only one of two bridges across the Mayenne river. Our forces killed a German who was approaching the second bridge to light the demolition fuse.

Once inside the town the Yanks found numerous fine defense positions unmanned.

But after the town was ours and darkness fell "the fun really began," as Sgt. Mitchell puts it.

Joliet Colonel in Mayenne.

"We were in our headquarters at the edge of town," Capt. Schoch said. "I was standing by Lt. Col. Charles W. Schwab of Joliet, Ill., and a few other officers when two German staff cars buzzed into town. We were so used to seeing captured ones with white stars painted on them that it wasn't until they were past that Col. Schwab said, 'You see any stars on them?' I was just saying I hadn't when the Germans realized their mistake, tried to turn, and got bumped off by a machine gun.

"When a truck loaded with German troops, rations, clothing packs, and rifles sped into town to spend the night, the Nazis were captured.

"The next excitement was when a Jerry plane came over at tree top level and at the same time our tanks shot up two scout cars heading into the town. The plane did not strafe or bomb. Then a German on a bike came up even to where the cars were burning and tried to turn around, but didn't quite make it."

CHICAGO HEROES DROP FROM SKY TO SAVE YANKS

Medical Troops Land in Midst of Battle.

WITH 82D AIR BORNE DIVISION IN FRANCE (AP). — Talk to any group of wounded doughboys in American hospitals in France and England these days and they'll tell you the story of a service they'll remember with respect and admiration as long as they recall the word "Normandy" and the eventful days of June, 1944.

It's a story of the medical corps and its chapters are filled with deeds of heroism by hundreds of unarmed company aid men, stretcher bearers, and doctors who daily face enemy guns to get their wounded back to safety of hospital wards. Many of these heroes are from the Chicago area.

Drop Right Into Battle.

Outstanding among the stories is one about a medical outfit operating with the United States army's crack 82d air borne division. This unit dropped from the flak-splotched skies of the Cotentin peninsula during the twilight of D-day night to find itself in the midst of hot local actions. Except for one short period, it remained within three miles of the front while the division battled the Germans.

Several of the gliders which took the company in landed in fields commanded by German machine gun and mortar fire. The members of another were isolated within enemy territory for more than 24 hours during which they treated casualties of other glider crashes. The main body of the unit was set down in a flooded field and the unit's equipment had to be recovered by aid men who paddled planes' life rafts to half sunken gliders.

Base Quickly Set Up.

Despite these difficulties, however, the medics were treating casualties three hours after landing and by 8 o'clock the next morning a clearing station had been set up so that the evacuation of the wounded could be carried out on a large scale.

Members of the medical unit include:

Moon's task force went in thru heavily mined waters to attack the Cherbourg peninsula.

A native of Kokomo, Ind., Moon was graduated from the naval academy in 1916. He was known for his careful attention to planning and details of an operation.

Death of Moon brings to 12 the number of navy and marine officers of flag or general rank who have died in combat zones. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sibyl Hall Moon, Arlington, Va., and four children.

HUNT REPUTED POLETTI AID IN 4 GANG KILLINGS

New York, Aug. 8 [Special].—A New York gangster who is said to have acted as personal interpreter in Italy for Lt. Col. Charles Poletti, AMG [allied military government] official who issued 40 pardons and commuted sentences of 15 convicts during his 29 days as governor in New York in 1942, was hunted by police tonight in connection with four murders.

The suspect is Vito Genovese, 43, who formerly was a member of the gang of Charles [Lucky] Luciano, New York vice czar, sent to prison by Thomas E. Dewey. Genovese and five associates were named by Ernest Rupolo, self-confessed contract assassin recently freed from a long prison term, in connection with four slayings attributed to the notorious Unione Sicilione, successor to the old Italian mafia, or black hand gang.

Poletti's wholesale pardoning of criminals took place during the brief period he was "lame duck" governor of New York between the resignation of Herbert H. Lehman and Dewey's assumption of the office. Poletti has been head of the allied military government in Italy, but is unofficially reported to be in this country.

HAIL TOUGH U. S. TANK DESTROYER UNITS IN FRANCE

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Use of mobile tank destroyer units is a big factor in the American forces defeat of the vaunted Nazi armor, it was explained here today. These guns have tremendous fire power and their success has been spectacular.

Each unit has 36 guns per battalion, divided into three gun companies. Towed battalions — distinguished from self-propelled guns are employed in more fixed or defensive roles. They make up our defense in depth on instructions from the field commander.

Self-propelled guns have wider uses because of their mobility. They deliver quick blows against designated enemy defenses or advancing columns, forcing the foe to fight the way our commanders want. One of these units has fire power equal to an ordinary artillery regiment.

ROME GOVERNOR JOHNSON SHIFTED TO COMBAT POST

ROME, Aug. 8 (AP). — Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson has been relieved of his post as military governor of Rome to accept a combat assignment, it was announced tonight.

Gen. Johnson, whose home is Laredo, Tex., was awarded the American legion of merit and the grand cross of the order of the crown of Italy before departing for the United States for what was described only as "an important assignment with troops."

The Italian decoration, one of the nation's highest, was bestowed on behalf of Prince Umberto, lieutenant general of the realm. The citation said he "was able to reestablish the economic and political structure of the city of Rome in minimum time."

BRITISH BATTLE LAST NAZIS SOUTH OF ARNO ON FLORENCE FRONT

ROME, Aug. 9 (AP).—British troops, splashing thru rain, were wiping out the last islands of enemy resistance south of the Arno river around Florence today, while the bulk of the allied armies in Italy rested for the grand assault on the Gothic line just ahead.

There was hard fighting on high ground in the big bend of the Arno east of Florence.

Eighth army patrols were feeling out the enemy positions.

Germans in the big bend of the Arno above Arezzo threw Indian troops out of Monte Grillo, but the reversal had little effect on the general strategic situation.

Allied headquarters said both sides suffered heavy casualties when the Germans loosed a counter-attack in this sector Sunday.

On the 5th army front to the west there were artillery exchanges.

German shells still fell in the southern section of Florence. An official source said air photographs disproved a German claim that the allies also had shelled the city.

ILLINOIS YANKS BAKE BREAD FOR 35,000 SOLDIERS

HDQ., EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS—(AP).—Soldiers of a mobile quartermaster bakery company at a United States invasion depot in England are baking bread for 35,000 troops daily. Consisting of 82 men, working in two shifts, the company turns out approximately 7,500 loaves a day.

The unit is prepared to move to France to furnish bread to combat troops. Well drilled in use of small arms, grenades, and bazookas, the baking soldiers are taught to defend themselves against attack by hostile planes, air borne and para-troop units and mechanized outfits.

Members of the baking company from Illinois include Corp. Herman M. Klemick, Champaign, Pvt. Nicholas E. Sykes, 19, 1448 E. 67th st., Chicago, Pvt. Francis C. Moore, 36, Collinsville, Corp. Louis L. YANKS ADOPTING BRITISH ORPHANS FOR FIVE YEARS

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—American fighting men have "adopted" hundreds of British children orphaned by the war, and today are supplying extras, including clothing and cash from various units. Under the plan aid will be continued for five years, during which the youngsters receive approximately $8 a year and other necessities.

Thus far nearly 600 children here are being cared for thru the war orphan funds and eventually it is planned there will be 1,000. Expenditure of the money contributed by G. I.s is administered by the army.

Recently six children from London were adopted in this manner by a B-26 Marauder unit of the United States air forces. They were guests of the Marauder group yesterday and lunched with Col. R. T. Coiner Jr., San Antonio, Tex. They had their first fresh eggs in a long time, then were taxied around the air field in an American bomber, rode a jeep, and departed laden with toys and candy.

RUSSIANS CRUSH GERMAN BLOWS, CLOSE IN ON RIGA

Nazis Counter-Attack Along Most of Front.

LONDON, Aug. 9 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The Germans are launching desperate counter-attacks along almost all of the 1,000 mile eastern front but are being "bled white," Moscow reported today as it appeared that the Nazis had managed to stem the big Red army offensive by drawing heavily on their dwindling reserves.

An early morning supplement to the soviet war bulletin underscored the German counter-blows but said all were repulsed and "our troops are stubbornly advancing."

One such Nazi counter-attack has been smashed after several days of bitter fighting on the Latvian-Lithuanian border and the Russians have resumed their push toward Riga, Moscow said.

Kill 6,000; Seize 80 Towns.

After killing 6,000 of the enemy and capturing 1,350, the Red army seized more than 80 towns, including Radviliskis, on the border 43 miles south of Riga.

In this battle, part of the drive to annihilate two German armies trapped in the Baltic states, the Russians said they destroyed 89 German tanks and 150 cannon, and captured 16 tanks and 75 guns.

Penetrations also were made by two other spearheads reaching into Latvia up the Daugava river toward Riga. One took the important rail junction of Krustpils and pushed to within 64 miles of Riga.

The Russians made no mention of the sieg of Warsaw or other sections of the front except to record a widening of their bridgehead across the Vistula toward Kielce and improvement of positions southeast along the Carpathian foothills.

Reds Move Up Bases.

Both the soviet and German war bulletins confirmed essentially that the great soviet summer offensive, now 48 days old, has lost the sweeping mobility that marked its first 40 days.

While the Germans hang on stubbornly the Russians are establishing new and stronger lines of communication and moving forward their air fields and supply dumps to catch up with the tremendous ground gains made since June 23. Nearly three months remain for another big westward push before the heavy autumnal rains set in over the Polish plains.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN.

Of Russia, yesterday's broadcast German war report said:

"On the eastern front repeated soviet attacks northwest of Kielce miscarried. Northwest of Baranow the enemy broke into our positions with strong forces. German reserves launched a counter-attack at once. Heavy fighting is in progress.

"In Lithuania, north of Memel, renewed soviet break-thru attempts were foiled and 60 enemy tanks were destroyed. North of Birsen and north of the Dvina river defense fighting against soviet forces which had broken into our lines is in progress, while on the remaining front up to Lake Pleskau all soviet attacks collapsed with heavy losses."

KEEP POST-WAR REICH UNARMED, LIBERALS URGE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—British Liberals proposed today that the allies deprive Germany of airplanes, tanks, heavy guns, battleships, and submarines after the war, occupy the entire country, control imports, the press, movies, and broadcasting, so as to prevent Germany from making war again, and educate the people in the ways of peace.

A Liberal party committee stressed in its report that provisions of post-war treatment of Germany should receive the approval of the people after a time and be such that public opinion in the victorious countries would be ready to resort to force in event of violation by Germany.

"To Insure Security."

"The terms," said the report, "should not be more severe than necessary to insure the security of our own country and the countries of Europe whether great or small."

Apart from establishing such conditions as would prevent Germany from contemplating aggression at any time, the report said Germany must not be treated worse than other nations in regard to economics, finance, and social and labor questions.

While insisting that the peace of the world depends upon the establishment of good relations with Germany, the report added that the test of German friendship must depend on the pursuit by her of peaceful collaboration as manifested in internal policy and her attitude toward neighbors.

Urges Education Commissioner.

The occupation of all Germany, the report recommended, should be followed by the occupation of strategic localities until the allies are satisfied that the military danger from Germany has disappeared. During the period of occupation, it was suggested, the allies should appoint a high commissioner for education to eradicate Nazi and militarist influences in education and "help the Germans reeducate themselves."

Linked with this would be allied control of the press, movies, and broadcasting.

It was understood that Chairman Perth of the reporting committee intends to raise a debate in the house of lords on the report after the summer vacation.

BRITISH WOULD KEEP LEND-LEASE UNTIL JAPAN IS DEFEATED

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP).—The British unofficially took the position today that lend-lease should continue after the victory over Germany, but privately acknowledged that it was a touchy problem.

The subject was raised by a declaration of the national association of manufacturers that administrative discussions were under way on the question of using lend-lease to help support the British domestic economy. Sources here were agreed that the "mutual aid" program should be continued until Japan is defeated.

Greater emphasis should be given in the United States to the British part in this program, and clarification should be undertaken of the section of the program dealing with final settlements, it was decided. Caution in the matter is born of a belief that the administration of lend-lease may develop into an issue during the Presidential campaign.

4 Reasons Why London Went Dry on Holiday

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Four reasons for London's virtual beer famine over the week-end were reported in the British press tonight. They were: A cut in supplies by brewers; exhaustion of existing stocks in taverns and restaurants before the cut was made; increasing shortage of labor, and the great holiday thirst. Brewers are said to be skeptical about prospects of London's beer allocation being increased.

POLISH MOSCOW PROPOSALS PUT UP TO LONDON

MOSCOW, Aug. 8 (AP).—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk relayed to his exiled government in London today the details of his discussions with the Polish committee of liberation and national council.

Foreigners in Moscow said this was a crucial moment in Polish history because "it is now up to the London government," to which concrete conditions have been given.

The soviet union recognized the Polish committee of liberation, composed largely of Polish patriots and underground figures. Russia severed relations with the exiled Polish government in London last year. Premier Stalin agreed, however, to the conversations with Mikolajczyk. Stalin is understood to have assured Mikolajczyk that once a Polish rapprochement is reached Russian-Polish frontier issues will be considered.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov conferred at the kremlin tonight for more than two hours with Premier Mikolajczyk and representatives of the soviet sponsored Polish committee of national liberation.

PICTURE BRINGS BABY 50 OFFERS OF HOME IN DAY

Bobby, a baby whose picture appeared in Tuesday's TRIBUNE with the announcement that he needed a place to live, had collected 50 offers late yesterday. The United Home Finding service at 343 S. Dearborn st. said its one telephone, Wabash 9793, rang constantly after the office was opened at 9 a. m. Mrs. Charlotte Byrum, director of the service, said more calls probably would begin at 9 a. m. today and further applications would arrive in the mail.

She said the response indicated that "while many a baby needs a home, many a home evidently needs a baby." The service represents 14 social agencies. It is seeking foster homes for some 4,000 babies. Many of the infants are still in hospitals because they have no other place to go and are taking up space needed by sick children.

The children are not for adoption and cannot be sent out of the state. Some are children of men overseas and their mothers cannot care for them. Others are neglected or need temporary refuge for other reasons.

New York, Aug. 8 [Special].—The emergency committee to save the Jewish people of Europe today called upon the United States and Great Britain to set up centers for refugee Jews now living in Turkey so that Turkey could open its doors to the thousands held back at its borders for lack of space.

"Turkey has signified willingness to become a transit country if the united nations will siphon off the refugees now filling to capacity the Turkish evacuation centers," Johan J. Smertenko, vice chairman of the committee, asserted at its second national conference.

He estimated that Turkey could accommodate 200,000 refugees at a time, but warned that travel thru might be slow because many of the refugees were sick and old and remained in the centers a long time.

Ex-OPA Rationer Indicted in Point Certificate Thefts

John J. Rewers, 34, of 8445 Bennett av., former member of ration board 8 at 7915 Cottage Grove av., was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of embezzling 34 food rationing certificates that OPA investigators said were sold for approximately $40,000.

Rewers is now an army private stationed at the Aberdeen [Md.] proving ground. A second indictment returned by the jury includes 11 counts of forging certificates and five counts of passing them.

Rewers was detected thru the alertness of a clerk in the central office of price administration office. He observed that while the certificates were purportedly issued from different boards, the names of the indorsing board members were in the same handwriting.

Investigation Runs Two Months.

The OPA, which has been investigating the thefts for two months, said the stolen certificates represented 10 million food points.

Rewers, said Marion Isbell, acting area director for the OPA, was with the board for about a year until his induction last March 14. While a member, Rewers also was a salesman for Standard Brands, Inc., Isbell said.

A total of 37 certificates were taken, Isbell said, of which 34 have been located. The certificates are like a blank check, and can be filled in for any amount of points.

Questioned by OPA Attorney.

Acting United States Atty. Earle C. Hurley said that a letter has been sent to the attorney general in Washington requesting the army to release Rewers for trial here. Eugene Devitt, OPA enforcement attorney, said that he went to Aberdeen more than a month ago to question Rewers, but that the former board member would admit nothing.

If convicted under the indictments, Rewers faces imprisonment of five years or $5,000 fine, or both, on the embezzlement charge, and one year or $10,000 fine, or both, on each of the 11 counts in the second indictment.

At a recent OPA hearing, James Sotos, president of the Chicago Market, 209 E. 61st st., testified that he had purchased certificates good for 502,000 points from a man known as "Jack Craig." Isbell disclosed.

Isbell said the certificates were identified as those Rewers is accused of taking.

FORBID SALE OF BRITISH PAPERS AT U. S. CAMPS

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP).—The sale of British newspapers and magazines was banned in United States army camps in Britain today until after the American Presidential election.

An official explained the troops still may buy any newspapers or magazines they desire outside camps.

CHINESE BATTLE TO LAST MAN AS HENGYANG FALLS

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 9 Wednesday (AP).—A dramatic message from within walled Hengyang today indicated that the city, after a heroic stand of more than six weeks, was in the hands of Japanese forces and the way open for the Japanese to drive down the remainder of the Canton-Hankow railway to secure their control of a 1,000 mile band across China.

The commander notified Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek Monday that the Chinese defenders had been killed almost to the last man, and concluded:

"I am afraid this may be my last message to you."

[The Tokyo radio yesterday claimed complete occupation of the city, and said Gen. Fang Hsien-chiao, commander of the 10th Chungking army, had surrendered. The broadcast asserted four Chungking divisions and supporting American forces were wiped out and the city was occupied at 8 a. m. yesterday. Sixty American officers and men took part in the final battle, Tokyo said, but there was no confirmation from allied sources.]

Street Fighting Told.

Last word from the high command on the grave situation at Hengyang dealt with Monday's developments, when it was admitted that the Japanese had broken into the city and street fighting ensued.

Altho the length of the siege has reduced the present strategic value of Hengyang, the loss still is regarded as the most serious blow to the Chinese since the capture of Hankow and Canton in 1938, as scarcely any barrier remains between Hengyang and the Japanese forces 170 miles to the south, driving up from the Canton area.

Closing of this gap would give the Japanese an overland rail route all the way from Peiping in the north to Canton.

14,000 Japs Killed.

Conquest of Hengyang cost the Japanese dearly. On July 25, after a month's fighting, the Chinese high command claimed 14,000 of the invaders storming the city had been killed. In addition, heavy tolls have been taken by planes of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th United States air force.

HALMAHERA RAID DESTROYS 13 JAP PLANES ON FIELD

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 9 [Wednesday] (AP).—Thirteen parked airplanes were destroyed in a raid on Halmahera Island, stepping stone between New Guinea and the Philippines, headquarters announced today.

Halmahera is 200 miles west of the foremost allied base at Sansapor, Dutch New Guinea, and 300 miles south of Mindanao. Liberators from New Guinea bases smashed Galela and Lolobata airdromes on Halmahera with 48 tons of bombs Monday.

Headquarters also reported that the Japanese were rushing troops from Wewak. In British New Guinea, to the Driniumor front, 20 miles east of Aitape, to reinforce units under attack by American forces there. An American drive eastward across the Driniumor river has split the Japanese front line forces into three groups.

DAY by DAY on the FARM — by BEN MARKLAND

August 8, 1944.

ANY one having a weakness for purple flowers should try to get into the country during the next two weeks to note the array of lavender blossoms in the woodlots and along farm roads.

Purple bergamot is on its way out for this season, but the tiny monkey flowers are in bloom on the shores of the farm ponds, chicory retains its place as the most common of the late summer purples, and the tiny heal-all flowers still can be found beneath the other weedy plants in uncultivated fields. For vivid splashes of purple, none of these flowers compares with the ironweed and blazing stars.

Ironweed Ignores Drouth.

The western ironweed, which grows on moist soil around the farm ponds and streams, doesn't seem to be suffering from the summer drouth. This wildflower likes to keep its feet wet, but, tho the soil adjacent to the ponds is dry and the farm creek is barren, the ironweeds are showing their dark purple flower clusters in sufficient abundance to provide a striking show in combination with the nearby cardinal flowers and the weedy white Queen Anne's lace.

We have found no blazing star in the farm fields, but this light purple wildflower is common now on many open prairie fields and in the full sunlight along railroad rights of way. Blazing star grows on flower spikes in the manner of larkspur, eaeh spike 5 to 10 inches long, on stems 3 to 5 feet tall.

Wild Onion Returns.

Wild onions probably should not be classed with the purple flowers, altho some of the bell shaped flower clusters shade from pink to light purple. The wild onion is primarily a white wildflower, easily identified by the shape of its delicate blossoms and the onion taste of its fragile stem. Wild onions can be seen in colonies along many highways and railroad tracks in the middle west during August and September.

★ The GARDEN ★

GARDENERS planning August plantings of lettuce, radishes, spinach, or turnips will be wise to make their seedings at one edge of the garden where they can be avoided during fall spading or plowing. More and more gardeners are turning to fall spading as the best method of preparing the next season's seedbed, and this chore can be done this fall before August plantings are fully mature.

The farm gardener made a planting of purple top white globe turnips the middle of last week. This variety requires a cool weather growing period, and matures in 55 days. Turnips can stand light frosts, therefore can still be planted this week to mature in early October. Early purple top and early white milans mature in 45 to 48 days.

All of these varieties should be sown sparsely in rows 15 to 20 inches apart, and after germinating should be thinned to stand four to six inches apart in the row.

GETS PROBATION AFTER 3 THEFTS AT WAR GARDENS

Arrested on the complaint of two women who said he stole beets, carrots, corn, and cabbages in moonlight raids on their war gardens, Aloysius Augustyniewicz, 27, of 8228 Crandon av., was found guilty of petit larceny and placed on probation for one year yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in South Chicago court.

Judge Gorman said Augustyniewicz, who is employed as a maintenance man by a steel company, was ented to probation because he had no previous criminal record. First offenders customarily are given probation on convictions that would carry short jail sentences or small fines, Judge Gorman added.

Mrs. Anna Dabrowski and Mrs. Julia Dalewski, who live in apartments at 8100 Coles av., said they saw a man make three trips from their gardens. They led police to 8117 Coles av., where the vegetables were found on the back porch. Augustyniewicz was in the apartment, where his father lives. He denied that he stole the vegetables, and said he could get all he wanted from his father's garden.

AIRMEN PLAY DARTS WITH SPIKED BOMBS; SCORE JAP BULL'S-EYE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—It's not a game, but airmen over Burma play darts with hundred pound bombs—called spike bombs. Instead of dart boards they use Japanese railways and bridges. Scores have been impressive.

Spike bombs, the army reported today, were improvised in the India, Burma theater, where delayed action fuses are necessary to let low flying planes clear the target before the explosion. Ordinary bombs showed a tendency to ricochet and explode harmlessly a few feet away from the target.

To meet the need, airmen took the nose fuse out of each bomb, replacing it with a long spike made from an old axle. The plan worked, so spike bombs were made by hand in the theater until supplies ordered in the United States began to arrive in quantity.

ONE of Lafayette's gifts to Washington was a pack of fine French hounds, the largest a huge brute named Vulcan. At a company dinner Martha Washington was disturbed to see that a lordly ham she had ordered served did not appear. Inquiry disclosed that Vulcan had raided the kitchen and made off with it. But George Washington gleefully explained to their guests that Vulcan never was able to resist anything really delicious.

YANKS CAPTURE GUAM MOUNTAIN; 10,000 JAPS DIE

Enemy Forces on Island Split in Two.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 8 (AP).—American forces cleaning up the Guam campaign have surged north the last six and one-half miles up Guam's west coast, captured 870 foot Mount Santa Rosa, dominating the northeast shore, and have pushed a center wedge threatening to cut the doomed Japanese in two.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced the successes today in a bulletin which listed the counted enemy dead since the invasion opened July 20 at more than 10,000—not taking into account the Japanese buried in a cemetery since overrun by the Yanks.

Push Three Miles.

The west coast advance carried the marines and soldiers to Point Ritidian. The east coast force pushed ahead more than three miles close to Anao point, an equal distance from the northeast tip. The central wedge is within less than a mile of the north end of the island, making the line resemble the letter W.

Japanese pinched into the northeast corner of Guam are in an area of little more than 15 square miles.

Kuriles Bombed Again.

Nimitz announced three straight days of aerial attacks, Aug. 5, 6, and 7, on Nauru, southwest of the Marshalls, with Japan's phospate industry and air fields the targets. The former United States base of Wake Island also was raided.

Other planes on Aug. 4 went back to the intermittently attacked Kuriles, guarding Japan's approach from the north. In daylight, the navy search planes raided air fields and also went after small shipping near Paramushiro.

137 TOOL SECTION WORKERS STRIKE AT DODGE PLANT

A group of workers in the tool section of the Chicago Dodge plant went out on strike at 11 o'clock last night. One worker estimated the number of strikers at 1,000, but the company said that only 137 out of 235 walked out. Their grievance was said to be over seniority rights, the specific complaint being that new employes had been given day hours, while older employes on the night shift were not given an opportunity to work on the preferred day hours. The plant builds engines for B-29 bombers.

DAD WHO BURNED SON AS 'LESSON' WINS PROBATION

Walter J. Shalitis, 29, of 3038 Lock st., accused of burning the hand of his 6 year old son, Walter Jr., to teach him not to steal, was placed on probation for a year yesterday when he confessed he decided on that kind of lesson because he had been a juvenile thief himself.

Shalitis said he feared the boy would grow up to be like him unless severe punishment was inflicted. He admitted he held the boy's hand over a gas stove flame.

Shalitis, father of three children, said he ran away from home and eventually was confined in the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles. Later he stole an automobile, was sentenced to Pendleton, Ind., reformatory, and paroled at 15.

Judge Kula told him the punishment was cruel. However, Shalitis won mercy because his employers, the Griffiths Laboratories, Inc., vouched for him.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Aug. 8.—The Puerto Rican Liberal party's convention has voted three to one to join the anti-Governor Tugwell coalition of Union Republican and Socialist parties in an effort to overthrow the governor's support by the Popular Democratic party in the coming election and force his removal regardless of the result of the Presidential contest in the United States.

STILWELL MADE A FULL GENERAL FOR BURMA WORK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—Joseph Warren Stilwell, 61, commander of American troops in the China, Burma, India theater, was elevated today to the temporary rank of full general.

His confirmation by the senate raised to six the number of four-star officers on active army duty. The others are George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme allied commander in Europe; Douglas MacArthur, Southwest Pacific commander; H. H. Arnold, army air forces commander, and Malin Craig, chairman of the officer procurement board.

Chicagoan Promoted.

Stilwell's promotion was described by a senate military affairs committee spokesman as a reward for the successful termination of the Burma campaign. "The general is a remarkable man to have endured what he has in Burma," he added.

Other promotions confirmed today include that of Jens A. Doe, Chicago, to be a major general.

FOUGHT AT ST. MIHIEL.

Jens A. Doe, 52, whose advancement to major general was announced yesterday in Washington, D. C., is a native Chicagoan and the son of Mrs. Ronald Doe of 810 Lakeside pl. YANKS TRAINED AT FT. SHERIDAN SET JAP RECORD

Bag 29 Planes at Biak in Month.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BIAK ISLAND, Aug. 8.—The sharpest ack-ack sharpshooters in the world—that is the slogan of former Fort Sheridan, Ill., anti-aircraft boys who in their first month here shot down 29 of 72 Jap planes which attempted to raid this island.

The commanding officer said the Biak record is unequalled anywhere and any time.

In addition to the army ack-ack victims, three more of the 72 were blasted out of the sky by naval anti-aircraft guns from ships offshore, and fighter planes knocked down two more to bring the total Jap losses to 34—almost 50 per cent.

34 from Chicagoland.

Thirty-four of the men are Chicagolanders.

The life of the ack-ack boys was not all one sided. During the early days the Japs ambushed a truck hauling a 40 millimeter gun into postion, overturning it and killing all but Sgt. Hubert Curry, Neoga, Ill. Curry got another truck, and with three other men returned thru sniper fire in an attempt to recover the gun. The Japs attacked and fired that truck also and drove the men away. Curry undaunted returned again, this time with a tank and rescued the gun, which made the Illinois boy the No. 1 ack-ack here and earned the silver star for all four.

GUAMIANS TELL WHAT IT MEANS TO LOSE LIBERTY

Japs Loot Homes, Slap Women Around.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUAM, Aug. 4 [Delayed].—Persons who have endured a 31 month Nipponese rule in Guam today gave a vivid insight into how things would have been if the Japs had won this war. The interviews have been an inspiring reminder that freedom is a state of being that can be snatched away.

These refugees, 23,000 Guamians coming over to our lines, know firsthand how it feels to lose individual freedom. They know now also how it feels to regain that freedom. They are so jubilant that it is difficult for the observer to remain objective in describing the reaction.

Francisco B. L. Guerrero, 48, father of seven grown children, was a civilian ordnance clerk for the American marines from January, 1921, until the Washington disarmament conference eliminated the artillery here in 1933. He became a policeman for a year, then served as sanitary inspector till the Japs came.

Freed from Jap Camp.

He, his wife, and four children were liberated last Saturday from the Japs' Asinan internment camp, but three sons still were unaccounted for. He was one of 3,000 refugees camped on a low hilltop south of Agat, to which a hundred new arrivals poured hourly, and was pursuing his old work of maintaining sanitary conditions.

Because of his clerical experience the Nips employed him in their civil affairs office at the Agana convent where he had an unusually good chance to observe the Jap government in action.

"Almost with the first instant of the Japs' arrival the Guam standard of living nose-dived out of sight and never returned while the enemy remained." Guerrero said. "Conditions got progressively worse and during the last year became almost unendurable. The soldiers began by looting our homes before our eyes, taking everything that caught their fancy—radios, trinkets, clothing, food. Protests brought only two handed face slaps, the common form of summary punishment in the Nip army.

Woman Is Beaten.

"With a terrible suddenness the things that made life in Guam sweetly pleasant vanished. Only the dogs lived worse than we did. I heard slap after slap behind me. I turned to see punishment being administered by a Saipanese interpreter to mild mannered Pedro Martinez, an Agana merchant who was accused of not turning over all his American currency. Pedro, who was about 50 years old, took the insults and slapping with unsuspected courage, then was turned loose.

Mrs. Ignacio Butler, wife of a wealthy Agana business man, was brought in for the same accusation and got similar treatment. She reacted like a wildcat, fighting until finally she was subdued and made to kneel facing a wall for two hours. That made my blood boil, but I was helpless in a roomful of Japs.

"In three weeks the army left and 300 Nip navy personnel, and perhaps as many civilians, took charge. With the 7,000 or so loosely disciplined troops went also the constant threat of violation of our womanhood, which sometimes flared into ugly incidents, husbands, brothers, or fathers being maltreated for interfering.

Labor in Fields for $1.

"Every able man was forced to labor in the fields and military establishments for a promised one yen and 20 sen per day [approximately one dollar]. After the first two months American surplus goods played out and money was practically worthless except as souvenirs. Farmers required clothing in payment for food, refusing cash. Our daily rice ration of about three ounces was augmented only with a couple of pieces of daikon, a turnip-like Jap food staple."

Japanese flags were distributed to every one and every few weeks the natives were called out to parade, waving these flags and crying, "Banzai, Singapore, Manila, Australia," he related.

"We all realized that we were dealing with men who are inhuman by our standards, to whom individual rights mean absolutely nothing. Everything they do is for the emperor. It was a way we knew we could never embrace. Deep down in our hearts we knew that the Americans would be back despite hourly propaganda to the contrary. In those dark days that realization was all that kept us alive.

Many False Hopes.

"Many, many times our hopes soared at false reports that deliverance was near. Each time our hopes were dashed, but they never died. The first false news of the Americans' arrival came Dec. 24, 1941. We knew that death would range the seacoast when you came, so we natives packed our Christmas dinners and hiked back in the boondocks [back country] where we had a gay feast, waiting in vain for our troops.

"Somehow the belief took root on every American holiday that the Americans would come. That first Washington's birthday, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving we flocked from the coast into the hills, each time returning sadly. Sometime in 1942 a Jap ship was torpedoed in the harbor, and in wild enthusiasm we evacuated, to the anger of the small Jap garrison force.

"Early this year we saw American planes overhead. That was a glorious sight.

"Last February eight American planes bombed the air fields at Sumay and Jalaguac, called by the Japs Suma and Tomi Oka. There after almost every day, at the same hour, 10:30 in the morning, they would come over. We were afraid, for we knew that many of us would be killed, but those planes and their bombs to us were the most cheerful sounds in the world.

"By Feb. 22, when the huge Jap army force arrived, we had all moved out of Agana to the boondocks, and most of us never went back. On the days when the planes failed to bomb we were downhearted."

Bombs Kill Only Japs.

Last June 11 is forever burned in the memories of the Guamians, Guerrero said, for then came our first mass air attack on Guam which the natives, with canny prescience, interpreted as being the forerunner of our landing.

"The sky was dark with American planes," he said. "They bombed both air fields, Piti navy yard, and other military targets. There was evidence of our beloved America's might that we could get our teeth into. There was proof that the one-sided sea victories the Nips announced were futile lies.

"By some miracle those first bombs killed only Japs. In the last few years we had had several destructive typhoons, followed by the Nips, which made us think that perhaps we had offended God in some way. Now it seemed that our trial by fire was nearly ended. Remembering our other disappointments, we all feared, of course, that this might be another one."

Every new bombing meant new back breaking work for the natives, they said, even women and children being forced to join the crews filling in bomb craters. When the Jap soldiers could no longer at gun point compel the Guamians to remain in the vicinity of the fields during the bombings, they were forced to work nights and sleep days.

THE GUMPS

SMITTY

The Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION.

What is the most unusual experience you have had while reading meters?

WHERE ASKED.

Peoples Gas Bldg., 122 S. Michigan av. [Asked of meter readers.]

THE ANSWERS.

Robert Pullen, 2827 Loomis st.—On my way to a basement I noticed smoke coming out of a first floor apartment window. A child ran out screaming, "Fire!" I ran into the bedroom as a flaming curtain fell across a baby's crib. The children had been left alone. I took the baby upstairs, called a doctor, and put out the fire.

Robert Ferguson, 865 N. Wells st.—To reach a meter, I went thru an inner hallway and then to the basement. As I started upstairs again I heard cries of "Give it to him!" and "Let him have it!" I beat a hasty retreat downstairs, then dashed thru the kitchen and out. But the cries only came from two parrots in the hall.

Clifford Kerns, 4926 Rice st.—It was my last stop. As I was about to leave the basement I discovered I had been locked in by pranksters. The windows were barred and nobody was at home in the apartment above. I banged and yelled and paced the floor for what seemed like hours. Neighbors finally let me out.

Robert Sieglinger, 701 E. 80th pl.—Two dogs came downstairs as I was reading the meter. They tore at my clothes and chewed them up. I was about to say "Good-by, world," when the dogs' owner called them. She explained that one of the dogs opened the door by turning the knob with his teeth.

John Noble, 3321 Pierce av.—My most startling experience was when I came out of bright sunlight into a dark room where white rats appeared to be floating thru space. After my eyes were accustomed to the dark I realized it was an illusion, for the mice were on the arms and shoulders of a woman.

Willard Cooke, Palatine, Ill. — A woman who was called next door to answer a telephone call asked me if I would mind her baby for five minutes. The time stretched to about 30 or 45 minutes before she finally returned. Everything in the book had happened, including having to feed the baby and sing cradle songs.

WHILE FIVE SONS AND A GRANDSON ARE IN SERVICE

Agent and Mrs. White "Can All They Can"

● Over in Concord, Nebraska, "North Western's" Cecil G. White is busy with his daily tasks. His is a service record of many years. But since war came the Whites have won distinction in another way—five sons and a grandson wear Uncle Sam's fighting uniforms.

You might say this is enough glory for one family. But patriotic Mrs. White thought differently. She turned to victory gardening and last year canned over 600 quarts of fruits and vegetables. That's deserving of comment. This year she expects to do as well or better!

But to get back to the White boys.

Russell, a 1st Lieutenant of Marines, has seen action at Guadalcanal and Tarawa, and is now on Saipan. Sergeant Vilas is over in New Guinea. Vernon, in the Southwest Pacific, is a Navy Aerographer's Mate. Norman, still in the States, is an Air Cadet, while Private Merton is at Camp Phillips, Kansas. Then there's Jerry, Lieut. Russell's son, in Officers' Training Camp at San Diego.

Marvin, we might add, enlisted in the army in 1939, but received a medical discharge last September. He's still carrying on, though . . . in a Minneapolis defense plant.

A most unusual family, you'll agree. Every member is doing what he can

ARMY DAD BEGS HELP TO CARE FOR HIS BABY

Injured Wife Unable to Lift the Child.

Corp. George B. Hungerford, 28, of 3518 Pine Grove av., has a problem that he has been unable to solve. He asks help of Chicagoans.

On emergency furlough from Camp Cooke, Cal., Hungerford has spent 12 days in a futile attempt to locate a woman to help his wife, Marjorie, 22, care for their two year old son, Danny. Mrs. Hungerford suffered a fractured spine in a train wreck July 3. Since then she has been forced to wear a plaster cast.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Corp. G. B. Hungerford helps looks on. Soldier is seeking some Marjorie, injured in train wreck, looks on.

She is able to care for herself, but the cast makes it impossible for her to lift or care for Danny.

Soldier's Hunt Is Vain.

Distraught from worry and hours of walking from agency to agency, the soldier said he had called on every practical or trained nursing registry in the city. He has found no available help for his wife and child. Employment agencies have been unable to put him in touch with a domestic worker.

The corporal's mother is old and unable to care for the baby. Mrs. Hungerford's mother, a resident of Detroit, soon must go to a hospital. Neither of the older women has a home to which Mrs. Hungerford and Danny may go.

Hungerford said he had called upon service men's organizations without getting aid. Among those organizations that he said he called are: American Red Cross, United Service organizations, army emergency relief, the personal affairs division of the army, the Chicago health department, and an organization known as G. I. Joes.

Furlough Is Extended.

The Red Cross obtained a furlough extension for the soldier. The personal affairs division of the army suggested a nursery school for Danny; a foster home was suggested by the health department. Mrs. Hungerford protests against Danny being taken from her because "he's all I will have when George goes away." She expects another baby early in January.

The corporal says he has walked thru Lincoln park to ask nursemaids if they knew of a woman who would help his wife. He offered a room with a private entrance, board, and wages.

Asked what he would do if he had not found an answer to his problem at the expiration of his furlough, the soldier shook his head. "I can't leave my wife and child alone. I guess it will be another case of A. W. O. L."

KINTNER NAMED TO KEY POST IN BLUE NETWORK

The appointment of Robert E. Kintner, one time pro-administration columnist, as vice president of the Blue Network company, effective Sept. 15, was announced yesterday by Edward J. Noble, chairman of the board and former under-secretary of commerce to Harry Hopkins. Noble's acquisition of the chain last year for $8,000,000 brought a congressional inquiry in January.

Kintner, a lieutenant colonel in the army's bureau of public relations, recently was given a medical discharge. Prior to the war he was co-author with Joseph Alsop, a distant cousin of the President, of a syndicated Washington column.

Kintner, before launching the column, was a reporter for the New York Herald-Tribune. So far as is known he has had no experience in radio management.

Noble said Kintner would handle aspects of publicity, promotion, and programming.

Clipper Crashes

Arrow points to Nipe bay and Antilla, where Pan American Clipper flying boat crashed in takeoff.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 8 (AP).—The four engined Clipper used by Pan American Airways in blazing a trans-Pacific trail to China crashed while taking off from the port of Antilla today. At least two passengers were killed.

Fifteen other passengers could not be accounted for but there was no way to determine the full toll until the plane is lifted out of the water. Some of the passengers not accounted for may have mingled with the crowd of spectators. Nine passengers and five crewmen were safe. The Clipper was en route from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Miami.

The plane—a Sikorsky S-42—once made a pioneer Pacific flight from San Francisco to China by way of Hawaii, Midway, Wake Island, and Guam.

OFFER NEW HOPE OF AIDING YANKS IN PHILIPPINES

Reds' Ships Urged to Carry Supplies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—Sen. Chavez [D., N. M.], who has been active for months in trying to get American Red Cross relief supplies thru to suffering American soldiers and civilians imprisoned in the Philippines, said today that he is hopeful that food, clothing, medicines, and mail soon will be moving to the internment camps.

"We have been working thru all the channels possible and I think we may have some good news soon," he said.

Chavez asserted he had urged the state department to ask the Russians to prevail on the Japanese to permit the Russians to take the supplies direct to the Philippines in a Russian ship if it is impossible for the Japanese to pick up the supplies at a Siberian port.

Countries on Good Terms.

"After all, the Russians are on good terms with us, and they are on good terms with the Japanese, and it should be possible to work this out," he said.

Chavez said that an Albuquerque, N. M., man who is a member of the Bataan Relief association recently returned from Vladivostok, where 7,500 tons of Red Cross relief supplies have been stored since last fall, and reported that prospects for delivery of the supplies to Bataan prisoners had improved.

Last May Japan, thru the Swiss government, informed the United States that it would pick up the supplies at Vladivostok, but when this offer was transmitted to the soviet government by our state department, Moscow demurred.

Jap Answer Awaited.

Instead, it proposed to deliver the supplies at another Siberian port, or to carry them overland to a Japanese border rail terminal.

The state department announced June 10 that it had communicated this plan to Japan via Switzerland. Japan's answer still is awaited.

"It appears that Russia doesn't want Japan to have a look at Vladivostok," Chavez said.

Sailor Stabbed to Death in Home of Former Wife

Davenport, Ia., Aug. 8 (AP).—Francis C. Fitzgerald, 39, a sailor, was stabbed fatally in the chest with a butcher knife last night in the home of his former wife, Police Chief Reed Phillips reported. Phillips said John Thompson, 38, who was in the apartment, confessed to the stabbing after accusing Fitzgerald of breaking into the place and starting a fight. No charges have been filed.

CAPT. HARRISON SCANS STORY OF MRS. GOODBODY

First Account of Murder in Drake Sketchy.

room is not the time" [meaning that nothing unusual had occurred on a previous visit]. "I went in before. Mother was in there, too. I looked around the bathroom, and there was no one in it, only that door there."

Mrs. Goodbody was not asked to explain her statement. "I looked around the bathroom and there was no one in it." A hard driving examiner—and I have known many—might have asked her why she made such a statement; did she expect to find some one in the room?

"Then when you went into the bathroom, what happened then?" Pope asked.

"I sat down facing the door and this woman stepped out, and went like that," replied Mrs. Goodbody.

"Stepped out from where?"

"Behind the door."

"What did she have in her hand?"

Had Gun in Hand, She Says.

"A gun, like that." [She pointed to a policeman's gun.]

Mrs. Goodbody said she had never seen the woman before. Asked for a description of the gunwoman, she replied:

"To the best of my knowledge, all I remember is that she had a black coat. I think it was Persian lamb, something red. It may have been a red scarf or it may have been a hat."

Mrs. Goodbody said she did not see the woman's face.

"Did the woman say anything?" Pope asked.

"No, she never said a word."

At the inquest held on Feb. 8, Coroner Brodie argued with Mrs. Goodbody that she [Mrs. Goodbody] had told him on the night of the shooting that the woman had cried, "I will shoot you! I will shoot you!" But at the inquest, as at the police station, Mrs. Goodbody depicted the killer as mute.

[Mrs. Williams, too, is quoted as telling questioners before lapsing into unconsciousness that the woman slayer had cried, "I'll get you yet." [I'll go into that more fully later.]

"I Screamed; She Shot."

Resuming the questioning at the police station, Pope said:

"Tell us what happened."

Patricia said:

"I saw the gun pointed, and I went like this [indicating that she leaned forward and downward], and I screamed. Then she shot."

"Was anything said at that time?"

"No."

"How many shots were fired, do you remember?"

"One, I know. It went right over my head. . . . Then I thought I heard another one. Then I heard two right after that. It all happened so quickly."

"Did you see whether the party left the bathroom?"

"No, I did not. I went like this [leaning over]."

"You stayed that way?"

"For a minute."

Hard to Measure Time.

No one can measure time in a moment of excitement or danger. Patricia said she stayed in the bathroom "for a minute." In a frightened mood one second may seem like 60 seconds.

Mrs. Goodbody did not, when the first shot was fired, run out of the room. She remained in the room; in fact, remained until three more shots were fired. In her words, she stayed "a minute."

Then Mrs. Goodbody told the prosecutor and police that she finally "saw her [the gunwoman] walk by."

"Did you see her go out of the room?"

"I saw a black thing go by like that."

"You were still in the bathroom and she went out the door?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Goodbody remembered that she cried: "Mother, mother." She continued: "I looked and saw her lying on the floor, and I was so scared . . . I ran out in the hall and screamed. There was a man standing in the hall."

"Did you see anybody in the corridor besides the man?"

"No."

Informs Man of Shooting.

That man may have been Stanley A. Cook, a witness, or Walter Shanke, a hotel waiter.

"I screamed," Mrs. Goodbody told Pope. "The man came up to me and I said, 'My mother has been shot!'"

Prosecutor Pope asked Mrs. Goodbody to volunteer any information which had not been specifically asked, and she continued: "I said [apparently to the man], 'Get a doctor.' I ran back into the room and picked up the phone. I went like this, and said, 'Operator, operator, get a doctor.'"

Farther along in the examination, Mrs. Goodbody voluntarily exhibited the forefinger of her left hand.

"Did the bullets affect you in any way?" asked Pope. "None of them hit you, did they?"

"No," replied Mrs. Goodbody. "See that?" [showing her left hand].

"What have you got there?"

"I do not know. When I got down to the hospital I said: 'Look at this on my finger. What is it?'"

Capt. Ryan, at this point in the examination observed: "Powder burns."

Mrs. Goodbody, upon further questioning, said she did not see any gun flash, but remembered "smelling gunpowder."

"You do not know how you got those powder burns?" asked Pope.

"No," she replied.

In my opinion, it is unfortunate that Mrs. Goodbody did not receive paraffin tests that night, unfortunate for her sake and peace of mind. As you probably know, the firing of a gun unloosens tiny powder particles. For example, if I fire a revolver, these particles will be imbedded in the web part of my hand behind the hammer. Likewise if a gun is fired at you at close range, powder particles will be imbedded in your skin at that point nearest the muzzle of the gun.

Fires at Close Range.

In the case of Mrs. Goodbody, the gunwoman fired at relatively close range, and the forward burst of the explosion buried particles in the forefinger of Mrs. Goodbody's left hand. Had a test been made it would have shown whether powder burns had been made on her right hand, or head. Incidentally, the back of her dress, over which the bullet sped, showed no powder marks.

I know Mrs. Goodbody lent herself wholeheartedly to police questioning the night of Jan. 19, and I don't believe that she personally would have objected to the test. Her counselors are said to have advised her that she did not have to submit to such a test. She didn't.

Now let us reëxamine Patricia's story. She and her mother find their room door unlocked as they enter, but are not alarmed.

Find Nothing Disturbed.

They find nothing disturbed. The two go into the bathroom. Nothing unusual there. In fact, Mrs. Goodbody makes perhaps two individual visits, and it is not until the second that tragedy occurs.

Then, she says, she saw a woman in black. She cannot identify her. The woman says nothing, and fires over Mrs. Goodbody's head. Mrs. Goodbody hears several other shots. Then she sees the woman walk out of the room. As Mrs. Goodbody comes out of the bathroom she sees her mother in blood on the floor.

Mrs. Goodbody dashes out of the door. She sees a man. She sees no one else. She does not, according to her account, see that woman, nor any other woman in the hall. She calls to the man: "My mother has been shot." She implores this man to help, to get a doctor.

The woman is gone. Is she racing down the hall, unperturbed, escaping from sight and capture? Mrs. Goodbody does not say she saw the woman in the hall.

[Tomorrow Capt. Harrison will discuss the eyewitness stories of Stanley A. Cook and Clyde P. Brewster, who saw the fleeing assassin.]

Putting Stories of Drake Murder to Test

MRS. WILLIAMS' ESTATE $432,316, COURT INFORMED

Mrs. Adele Born Williams, whose murder in the Drake hotel on Jan. 19 is still unsolved, left an estate valued at $432,316 in an inheritance tax appraisement filed yesterday in the County court. The net estate was estimated at $316,281, after deductions of $9,051 Illinois inheritance tax, $89,463 federal estate tax, and executor and attorney fees.

The will of Mrs. Williams, wife of Frank Starr Williams, a state department attache, directed that the estate be divided between her two daughters, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, who will receive $163,140, and Miss Elizabeth Born, who will receive $153,140.

Mrs. Williams left $165,765 in cash.

17 GROUPS UNITE TO CAMPAIGN FOR A WORLD POLICE

New York, Aug. 8 [Special].—A new national organization called Americans United for World Organization, has been formed by the consolidation of six existing organizations, and with the collaboration of eleven others, to fight for the establishment of a world organization with power to enforce peace, and to oppose nationalist candidates for office. A number of the groups involved favored the entrance of the United States into the war before Pearl Harbor.

The new movement has been formed by consolidating the activities of the American Free World association, the Citizens for Victory committee, the Committee to Defend America by aiding the Allies Fight for Freedom, the United Nations association, and the United Nations Committee for Greater New York.

Collaborating are the following groups: The Catholic Association for International Peace, the Church Peace Union, the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, the Committee for National Morale, Federal Union, Freedom House, the League for Fair Play, the League of Nations Association, the Nonpartisan Council to Win the Peace, the Union for Democratic Action, and the World Alliance for International Friendship thru the Churches.

3 Point Policy.

The avowed purpose of the new movement is set forth in a three point statement of policy, which calls for the immediate establishment by the allies of a world organization, eventually open to all nations, with authority to adjust disputes and with automatic power to use force to prevent aggression and preserve peace.

It also calls for the mobilization of public sentiment and mass enrollment to attain the goal of a just and enduring peace thru political action, and for combating subversive activities, and "the propaganda of the defeatist, reactionary and imperialist minority at home."

Americans United, for the present at least, expects to stay out of the Presidential campaign but to concentrate its efforts on electing candidates for the senate and house of representatives who are sympathetic to these purposes, according to Ulrio Bell, director of the new organization, and former Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier Journal.

Opposed Sen. Clark.

Bell said that the new group actively opposed Sen. Clark [D., Mo.] in his recent unsuccessful fight for renomination, and that it would oppose such isolationists as Senators Nye [R., N. D.] and Danaher [R., Conn.] and Rep. Fish [R., N. Y.] He said it would also oppose such newspapers as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the New York Daily News, and the Hearst newspapers.

Hugh Moore, chairman of the board of the Dixie Cup Manufacturing company, is chairman of the organizing committee of the new movement. Its vice chairmen are Donald J. Cowling, president of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn.; Mark Ethridge, vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal; W. W. Grant, Denver lawyer; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former minister to Norway; Charles A. Hart, Portland, Ore., lawyer; Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, widow of Maj. Kermit Roosevelt; Chester H. Powell, editor emeritus of the San Francisco Chronicle, and W. W. Waymack, editor of the Des Moines [Ia.] Register.

Among the members of the organizing and sponsoring committee are Grenville Clark, lawyer; the Rev. Edward Conway of the National Catholic Welfare conference; Marshall Field, Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, president of Brooklyn college; Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, and Dr. William Allan Neilson, president emeritus of Smith college.

Cass Canfield, the publisher; Russell Davenport, former editorial writer for Life and Fortune; Dr. Foster Kennedy, neurologist; James B. Carey, secretary of the Congress of Industrial organizations; William L. White, writer and son of William Allen White; Dr. Mary E. Woolley, retired president of Mount Holyoke college; Prof. Ralph Barton Perry of Harvard university, Dorothy Thompson, and James P. Warburg are other members.

U.S.-BRITISH OIL PACT VIEWED AS 'PEACE WEAPON'

Agreement Puts Stress on World Security.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—The United States and Great Britain today signed a pact on oil policy designed to prevent peace time disputes between the two allies and to serve as a weapon to enforce world peace.

The agreement, negotiated by Acting Secretary of State Stettinius for this country and Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook for Britain, is the first to deal directly with post-war trade and security.

Both countries agreed that it shall go into effect when each has notified the other "of its readiness."

Senate Issue Undecided.

For the United States, the pact leaves open the question of senate ratification, which a state department spokesman said had not been decided. It is not expected that the agreement in its present form will be sent to the senate, since it can be enforced as an executive agreement and both Britain and this country consider it a temporary arrangement until a multilateral agreement including all nations interested in oil can be concluded.

The agreement looks toward an eventual international oil conference and the establishment of an international commission that would make recommendations to governments on how companies should produce and sell petroleum.

It sets up an Anglo-American commission for this purpose.

Emphasizes Security.

The two governments pledge to "endeavor, in accordance with their respective constitutional procedures, to give effect to such approved recommendations" made by the commission.

The agreement emphasizes the view that world security must remain uppermost in all international considerations. It makes the distribution of oil "to all peaceable countries" subject to a future world organization to check aggression and maintain peace.

In addition to establishment of the Anglo-American commission, the main points of the agreement are:

1. Assurance that "adequate supplies of petroleum shall be available in international trade to the nationals of all peaceable countries at fair prices and on a nondiscriminatory basis," subject to provisions for the maintenance of peace.

Equal Opportunity.

2. "Development of petroleum resources with a view to the sound economic advancement of producing countries."

3. "Recognition of the principle of equal opportunity in the acquisition of concessions."

4. "Respect for valid concession contracts."

5. A ban on unnecessary restrictions.

The United States, Britain, and other allied shipping powers also signed in London today an extension of their present shipping pool agreement insuring that when Germany has been defeated there will be an adequate pooling of tonnage to carry on the war against Japan. The action was announced jointly in London and Washington but no details were available here.

FULBRIGHT WINS IN DEMOCRATIC SENATE PRIMARY

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP).—Gov. Homer M. Adkins formally conceded defeat tonight in the face of returns from more than two-thirds of the state's precincts showing him trailing Rep. J. W. Fulbright by almost 18,000 votes in their race for the Arkansas Democratic senatorial nomination, to succeed Sen. Hattie W. Caraway.

Adkins, completing his second term as governor, took the action after returns from 1,470 of the state's 2,087 precincts gave Fulbright 69,801 and Adkins 52,080.

Returns followed about the same trend as they did in the preferential primary two weeks ago in which Fulbright finished about 16,500 votes ahead of the governor in a five cornered race.

Negro voters turned out in greatly increased numbers for the runoff, estimates placing the number who voted as high as 5,000.

Danaher Renominated.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 8 (AP).—Connecticut Republicans gave the top places of their state ticket today to Sen. Danaher and Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, renominating both by acclamation.

The 4th district Democratic congressional convention nominated Miss Margaret E. Connors, 29, of Fairfield, an attorney, as the party's candidate for congress to oppose Rep. Clare Boothe Luce.

Proctor Wins in Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 8 (AP).—Lt. Gov. Mortimer R. Proctor won the Republican gubernatorial nomination in today's primary on the basis of nearly complete returns. He polled 21,880 votes to 13,100 for W. Arthur Simpson, former state director of old age assistance, with 236 of the state's 246 cities and towns reported. If elected, Proctor will succeed Gov. William Wills [R.], who did not seek renomination.

Texas Governor Candidate.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 8 (AP).—Texas Republicans, in convention here today, nominated B. J. Peasley for governor.

ANTI-NEW DEAL REVOLT SPREADS IN OKLAHOMA

G.O.P. Predicts Gains in Congress.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 8.—This is the city where the revolt against the New Deal in Democratic states of the south had its genesis more than two years ago, and it is still blazing in the state, scouts report.

The citizens are displaying resentment against regimentation in agriculture, against the performances of federal burocracy, needless squandering, Communist infiltration at Washington, D. C., and the political activities of the CIO political action committee. The July primaries are interpreted as reflecting all this.

The farm vote in Oklahoma is interpreted by some experts as definitely anti-New Deal. The farmers are protesting against subsidies, red tape encountered in getting tires, gasoline, replacements of farm machinery, and endless questionnaires.

Voters Rebuke Thomas.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, a prophet of the New Deal, was reproached in the primaries because he got off on the wrong foot in relation to the 1942 uprising. His opponents made much of the measure he sponsored in 1941 for a national lottery to help the treasury.

W. J. Otjen of Enid, his Republican opponent for the senate, is rated as having excellent chances of unhorsing Thomas. Two years ago the uprising led to the election of a Republican, Sen. E. H. Moore, an old Jeffersonian Democrat and a fundamentalist on the Constitution, and the defeat of Sen. Josh Lee, a New Deal exponent.

G. O. P. leaders point to some election returns which they regard as straws in the wind. In Tulsa last spring a Republican mayor and six council members were elected by about 3,500 majority. It was the first time in 16 years Tulsa put in a Republican mayor. The campaign was devoid of important local issues and personalities but the Republicans tore loose on the New Deal.

Expect a G. O. P. Congressman.

In November the G. O. P. expects to elect a Republican congressman from the Tulsa district, now represented by Wesley E. Disney, who denounced Sen. Thomas in the primary campaign. Disney lost the senate nomination and Thomas won, due to a divided field. Thomas polled only 38 per cent of the total Democratic votes.

At present Oklahoma has seven Democratic congressmen and one Republican. The Republicans say this time they will elect at least two, in addition to a senator. They figure they have fighting chances, too, in the 4th, 5th, and 6th districts, depending on the national trends.

In the July primaries incumbent Democratic congressmen had more votes cast against them on the average than in the last 10 or 15 years.

Negroes Go Republican.

In recent elections, statisticians say most of the Negro vote has gone Republican. In 1940 the bulk of it went to the Roosevelt ticket.

Internal strife, too, is splitting the Democrats. Leon C. Phillips, former Democratic governor, has registered as a Republican. A lot of old Jeffersonians trooped over with Sen. Moore to the G. O. P. side.

In 1940 Roosevelt beat Willkie by approximately 126,000 plurality in Oklahoma, getting 57.6 per cent of the vote. Republicans are hoping the trend on the state-wide ticket will be reflected by November on the national ticket.

National Chairman Herbert Brownell is scheduled to come here this week to confer with Republican organization chiefs, on campaign plans.

CURRAN ACCEPTS NOMINATION FOR SENATOR IN N.Y.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Thomas J. Curran, 46 year old secretary of state, accepted the Republican nomination for the United States senate this afternoon with a speech attacking the Reds who are supporting President Roosevelt. It was the opening gun in the G. O. P. fight for New York's 47 electoral votes as well as for the seat of the Democratic incumbent, Sen. Wagner.

"This is not a fight between the Republican party and the Democratic party of former years," Curran told the state committee, which had just nominated him unanimously. "It is a fight of the Republican party against the Browders [Earl Browder, Communist], the Hillmans [Sidney Hillman], and the CIO political action committee, which would do everything to change our constitutional form of government."

"I'll do everything in my power for a Republican victory," he declared with impressive earnestness "because I believe our country is in an hour of crisis. The responsibility would make any one humble."

Son of Immigrants.

Curran, a son of immigrants from County Kerry, Ireland, was born in lower Manhattan. His father, a longshoreman, was killed when Tom was a 13 year old student in Xavier High school. The boy worked his way thru Fordham university, took a postgraduate law course, and taught school until he was admitted to the bar.

Physically, the Republican candidate is a contrast to the 67 year old Sen. Wagner, who was nominated for a fourth term by a meeting of the Democratic state committee in New York City today, notwithstanding his ailing health. Curran, 5 feet 10, 168 pounds, with swimming and tennis has preserved a body developed by backetball and baseball at school.

Curran was a lieutenant at 20 in the first World war. He served two terms in the New York City board of aldermen as minority leader. He was Gov. Dewey's first appointee. The secretary of state here is a $12,000 a year cabinet post.

Has Dewey Approval.

Curran was picked last night at a meeting with Dewey in the governor's mansion. Two factors in his selection were his New York City residence and his religion, Catholic, both factors needed to balance the state ticket. He is married and has two sons.

Two rivals for the candidacy made nominating speeches. They were Irving M. Ives, majority leader in the state assembly, who has a strong following in the American Federation of Labor, and W. Kingsland Macy, utility man.

Supporters of Wendell Willkie had tried to land the job for the unsuccessful 1940 Republican Presidential candidate, urging that he "be drafted in the best interests of the Republican party, the national ticket, the state and the nation." The Willkie bid, which was made in a letter to Edwin F. Jaeckle, state G. O. P. chairman, was passed off lightly, however.

DRINKER TALKS OF WAR; WINDS UP IN UNIFORM

William T. Daniels, 19, a Vermont, Ill., railroad laborer who says he was given a medical discharge from the marine corps last March after 26 months in New Caledonia and Australia, was ordered held on $1,000 bond yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, charged with failure to have a draft card.

William T. Daniels.

Daniels, attired in an army uniform, surrendered himself yesterday to Central police. He said last Thursday he met a soldier named Sam Phillips in a tavern in Galesburg, Ill. Daniels told Phillips he wished he were back in uniform. Phillips told Daniels he wished he were out.

So the two men traded clothing and identification papers, Daniels said, and came to Chicago, where they continued drinking. Ultimately, he said, he became separated from Phillips.

Commissioner Walker continued Daniels' hearing until Aug. 15 to permit Assistant United States Atty. Michael J. Boyle to write to a Bakersfield, Cal., draft board, where Daniels said he registered for the draft.

GAMBLING JURY HEAD PAYS FINE IN PARKING CASE

John T. Moran who, as foreman of the October, 1943, grand jury, helped to indict 13 police captains for gambling conspiracies and conducted an investigation in Chicago and Cook county which led to suspension of eight police captains, paid a fine of $2 in Traffic court yesterday.

Park police said Moran was notified June 12 that a truck belonging to the Gunthorp-Warren Printing company, of which he is vice president and general manager, was left in front of 2100 Lincoln Park West on June 9. He failed to appear in court and subsequently was notified by a chancery summons, which he also ignored, police charged.

A warrant for Moran's arrest was sworn out by park police Monday, charging him with failure to comply with two previous court summons. In Traffic court, Moran testified that his failure to answer the summons was an oversight on the part of his company.

Abortion Murder Verdict Is Returned at Inquest

A verdict of murder by abortion was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Mildred Maddalone, 32, of 817 S. Laflin st., who died July 26 after she declined to identify the abortionist. Her husband, Louis, 33, testified he had been separated from her and did not know about her condition.

BROWNELL AIMS TO BARE ILLEGAL KENTUCKY VOTES

BY GUY GENTRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—Exposure of illegal registrations declared by Kentucky Republican leaders to exist in several sections of the state will be among the first efforts made to swing Kentucky into the Republican column next November, National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. announced here today.

After a day long series of conferences with party leaders and workers, including Gov. Willis, Senatorial Nominee James Park, State Chairman W. A. Stanfill, and members of the state committee, Brownell predicted Kentucky would not only go Republican on the national ticket but would also add one of the 11 new Republican senators needed for a party majority and would increase its present two Republican congressmen by at least two more.

Help from Democrats.

"It will be one of the first jobs of the revitalized Republican party in Kentucky under the leadership of Gov. Willis and Chairman Stanfill to expose these illegal registrations so we can have an honest count of the sentiment of the people of Kentucky," Brownell declared.

"We know the fight in Kentucky will be a difficult one, but we are prepared to meet it. Some of the Democratic leaders are giving support to the Dewey-Bricker ticket."

Recall Willis Victory.

Kentucky Republicans are basing much of their predictions of a November victory in the radical change of sentiment among Blue Grass voters who gave Roosevelt a 660,000 majority in 1940 but swung to elect Gov. Willis, a Republican, by 8,619 in 1943.

Republicans claim the 1943 victory of Chester O. Carrier as the Republican representative in congress from the traditionally Democratic 4th district will be repeated again this year. The other Kentucky Republican congressman, John M. Robsion, is expected to have little trouble gaining reëlection in the 9th district.

Brownell's hopes for an additional Republican senator from Kentucky are pinned on Commonwealth Atty. James Park of Lexington, who will be pitted against Majority Leader Barkley.

DEVELOPS SKIN-LIKE PLASTIC TO RESTORE MISSING NOSES, EARS

A flexible, lifelike plastic, tinted to blend exactly with any skin pigmentation, has been developed by Dr. Stanley D. Tylman, University of Illinois dental college professor, as an immediate replacement for missing noses, ears, fingers, and other parts of the human body, it was announced yesterday in Champaign.

The new material, described as more lifelike than any ever used before, was perfected after more than three years of research by Dr. Tylman and his staff. Medical officers of the army and navy are investigating the possibility of using the plastic as a mass restorative for maimed service men.

The material has a texture similar to skin, a tissuelike flexibility, and a lifelike translucency. It can be permanently colored to blend with the coloring of an individual and finished to a paper edge to hide the union with living tissue. The new plastic restorations can be made to serve the functional purpose of the parts they replace.

LAWYERS ASSAIL TRIAL TACTICS IN GRAFT CASE

Mason, Mich., Aug. 8 [Special].—Defense counsel today charged in fiery arguments that the 22 men being tried here for an alleged 1939 legislative graft conspiracy have not been given a "fair trial" because of prosecution tactics.

Roy F. Conley, Lansing, attorney for D. Stephen Benzie, Norway, and Henry F. Shea, Laurium and Lansing, former Democratic senators who are among the 17 legislative defendants, asserted that "as far as the prosecution is concerned everything has not been honest at this trial."

On objection of the prosecution this remark was stricken from the record.

Conley and Benjamin F. Watson, Lansing, counsel for Sen. Jerry T. Logie [R., Bay City], both assailed the part in the prosecution's case played by Maj. Charles F. Hemans, former University of Michigan regent, a Democrat, who testified that, as a lobbyist employed by a group of finance company executives of whom five are defendants, he had paid bribes to the legislative respondents. Watson asked why Hemans was not made one of the defendants instead of being granted immunity to appear as a state witness.

New Deal Checks Can't Buy Farm Vote, Says M'Kelvie

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Roosevelt's name has no magic to lift the curse from unpaid debts, Sam R. McKelvie, western headquarters manager for the Republican party, said yesterday in discussing the agricultural vote in the November election.

McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska, having opened the G. O. P. western office here, left last night to resume supervision of his By the Way ranch for three weeks. An unusual choice for his party job, he was in his hay field when summoned by Herbert Brownell Jr., new national chairman.

Negro Assistant Named.

McKelvie does not profess to know all about the large metropolitan areas when it comes to voting. He will have assistants who do, he says, revealing the appointment of Patrick B. Prescott Jr. of Chicago as Negro assistant in the campaign. But about men of the soil he is positive.

"I suppose no group in the United States is more anti-New Deal than the range cattle men," said McKelvie, a former president of the American Hereford association. "The reason is simple: The New Deal has projected so many rules and regulations violently opposed to the practices that slowly grew out of experience.

Republicans Hold Confidence.

"Our cattle go to the corn belt feeders, and their attitude toward the New Deal is about the same as ours. New Deal checks to farmers won't buy votes.

"These people are confident that Republican candidates are capable business men who will use the government agencies to be helpful rather than injurious.

"Roosevelt's name holds no magic for those who are tax conscious. In Nebraska we have never had a state debt. We have no income or sales taxes. The extravagant use of money is offensive."

McKelvie, publisher of the Nebraska Farmer, visits the publication's office only twice a month, he said, because those who grew up in the business with him can run it. He spends nearly all of his time on his ranch in the Nebraska sandhills region, which he describes as "God's own cow country." Recently his sales at an auction totaled about $50,000.

McKibbin to Be in Charge.

Chicago is familiar to him. He has offices here and in Detroit. He has been a member of the Chicago Athletic association for 25 years. Once golf champion of his home country club, he said, "People would be surprised if I broke 100 now."

McKelvie expressed enthusiasm for George B. McKibbin, Illinois director of finance and 1943 mayoral nominee, who will be in charge of headquarters during his absence. Quarters on the second floor at 105 Adams st. are being outfitted rapidly and will be completely staffed when McKelvie returns.

A publicity director is expected to be appointed this week. There will be a teletype machine to aid the liaison with national headquarters in New York.

THE TASK THAT FACES THE REPUBLICANS.

The vast bulk of Americans are industrious, thrifty, and patriotic. They are not organized to demand that the affairs of their government be conducted with the same industry, thrift, and patriotism that they practice in their daily lives.

The Republican party, which must make itself the spokesman of these industrious, thrifty, and patriotic citizens, itself is not organized on a national scale. There are 26 Republican governors and there are healthy, hard hitting Republican organizations in every state outside the one party states of the south, but these state organizations need to be coördinated into a smoothly working and effective national organism.

The national organization is weak. Republican leadership in congress has often been faltering, despite the 1942 victories that inspired the party. The national organization of the party itself fumbled too often. It has been a foolish Republican custom since 1928 to let party organization on a national scale slide between Presidential campaigns. As has been the custom in recent campaigns, the party starts out with a new national chairman.

Mr. Brownell showed himself in the campaigns in his adopted state of New York to be capable and industrious and he approaches his national task with the coöperation of the party organization thruout the country. Time is precious, and he himself would be the first to admit that by his efforts alone the miracle of organization cannot be accomplished which must be accomplished if the Republic is to be saved from dictatorship. Every Republican leader and every Republican voter must do his part if victory is to be won.

The Democratic party, as it still calls itself, in the hope of retaining the allegiance of the habitual Democrats of the south, has more organization than it has strength. Outside the solid south it has little beside gangland and the politico-criminal alliance in the big cities; a few hundred thousand Communists who are working night and day to overthrow our form of government; and actually only a few hundred expatriates, physical or spiritual, with large investments abroad, who do not care what happens to this country if they can endear themselves to the foreign aristocracy.

These pernicious elements are hiring the vilest minds and the most poisonous pens that can be had for money or official protection and preferment. Their vicious screamings fill the air waves and the columns of the New Deal press. They have attempted to force the adoption of their smear manual as a standard of political morality and they have the effrontery to demand that the Republican candidates and organization disavow any one against whom they direct their filthy attacks.

The Republicans won't get anywhere by endeavoring to conciliate or avoid these verbal assaults. They have a perfect counter-attack and they should launch it. Who has Mr. Roosevelt disavowed? Does he accept the support of the Communist tool, Marcantonio, who was the only man in congress to vote against many measures of national defense before Russia got into the war and began to look for lend-lease? Does he disavow Browder? Does he disavow the Benedict Arnold internationalists of Park avenue and Long Island? Does he disavow Paving Blocks Flynn or Hague or Kelly? Does he disavow Hillman and the CIO slush fund extorted from the working people of the country with Roosevelt's assistance? Does he disavow his own running mate, who was the creature and defender of the grafter Pendergast?

Obviously he doesn't disavow any of these people because he doesn't dare. He is as much their prisoner as they are his. The whole gang must stand or fall together. When the Republicans start fighting the New Deal smear artists are going to be glad to forget the whole subject of disavowals.

The fight for America is just as real now as in 1776. The majority of Americans love their country today as the majority of Americans loved it then. Today, as then, there must be leadership that that love of country and confidence in its future may be expressed and be effective. It is the task of the Republicans to furnish that leadership, and to organize all patriotic Americans behind it.

THE COOPER CASE.

Jackie Cooper, the former motion picture actor who has been in the navy studying for a commission, was accused several days ago in a nasty case in South Bend involving a 15 and a 16 year old girl. Altho warrants have been issued for the arrest of Cooper and a companion, also in the navy, naval authorities who have them in custody have refused to deliver them to the South Bend civil authorities.

Their excuse is that a report on the case has to go all the way to the secretary of the navy for action. Even if this is true it is inexcusable. The only conscionable reason the navy could have for refusing to surrender Cooper would be that it intended to court martial him for his alleged offense, and that action surely does not require the approval of the secretary of the navy. The offense was primarily one against civil law rather than military law, and an orderly conduct of affairs would have led to the surrender of Cooper to the civil authorities.

Both the navy and the army have shown a disposition in this war, which they rarely exhibited in the past, to set themselves above the civil authority. The dangers inherent in such an attitude are too obvious to require comment. Cooper's Hollywood connections do not serve to quiet suspicion that he may be getting protection that he does not deserve. But the broader issue is that of the superiority of civil over military government, which must be maintained if the Republic itself is to be maintained.

WARD HEELERS IN UNIFORM.

A soldier wrote to the Friend of the Yanks department recently asking whether his commanding officer would have the right to inspect his ballot in the November election. He said he had voted two years ago and was "burned up" when his commander looked over his shoulder to see where he marked his X's. He added that he was "in the dog house" thereafter because he voted wrong.

The only relationship an officer possibly can have to the marking of a soldier's ballot is to certify to the man's identity and execute for him whatever affidavits may go along with the absentee ballot. The marking of the ballot must be secret, and the soldier voter should seal it for transmission before handing it to any officer, mail clerk, or any one else.

Already, some of the political officers in the navy have handed out federal bob-tailed ballots to their men, and the men have voted them and turned them in. The federal ballot is valid in only 20 states and its use even by voters of those states is prohibited, by the federal statute, before Oct. 1, so the officers succeeded only in disfranchising their men and preventing them from voting in the Presidential election.

This may have been their intent. The political secretaries in the war and navy departments have done their best to sabotage the soldiers' vote. They hamstrung the fighting men who wanted to vote in 1942. Apparently they are not relying too heavily on the OWI propaganda and fourth term promotion carried in the official army news channels. Like all the other New Deal bosses, the army and navy politicians and the minority of officers who seek to curry their favor are determined not to lose their precincts in this election.

LEND-LEASE FOREVER.

The National Manufacturers' association, in the current issue of its weekly news bulletin, confirms a report from other sources that the British government has asked the American government to continue lend-lease after the war in Europe is over. Such aid would have nothing to do with winning the war but would be solely to help make the British solvent again. The amount being asked for is in the neighborhood of 2½ billion dollars a year, the NAM bulletin says.

Lend-lease is and always has been a fraud. In his message of Jan. 6, 1941, proposing lend-lease, Mr. Roosevelt described it as follows: "For what we send abroad we shall be repaid within a reasonable time following the close of hostilities in similar materials or, at our option, in other goods of many kinds." The congress and the people were told that lend-lease was a debt to be paid in kind soon after the war was over. But last August a letter bearing Mr. Roosevelt's signature was sent to congress in which it was stated that we didn't want to be repaid—we didn't want any intergovernment debts hanging over when peace came.

The letter later was withdrawn, but the English knew all along that lend-lease was a false label. Thus, in an article written for the London Times last year, the Rt. Hon. Walter Eliot, a member of parliament and for many years an important figure in the British government, spoke of "the novel principle of lend-lease, which is to say, the principle of gift." He said that the true meaning of lend-lease is "giving the stuff away," and that it is "so carefully drawn as to conceal this essential implication."

Eliot said that lend-lease is "the most powerful and important economic phrase of our time, the beginning of whose importance we do not yet see, let alone the end." The beginning of the importance of lend-lease THE TRIBUNE certainly did see, and pointed out that for the billions we advanced that way there would be no repayment. What we did not see then was that any one would have the audacity to suggest that it be continued after the war was over.

The NAM news letter says that the British rejected all suggestions that the post-war assistance they ask for be placed on the basis of direct loans or that they go to the proposed international bank for assistance. This attitude should tear away all the pretenses about lend-lease. Naturally, of course, they don't want the help on any loan basis if they can get it as a gift.

And the end of lend-lease, or giving the wealth of America away, is not even in sight with this request from the British. For, if they can take us for 2½ billions a year we can hardly deny Russia and China. And we can't stop there unless we are willing to incur the enmity of France, Holland, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece. And what kind of a good neighbor would we be to distribute goods and gold in Europe and Asia and ignore the countries in this hemisphere?

The British asked us for financial help in their war and we gave it. The war into which we have been drawn as a result will nearly bust us. Our debt already is about 210 billion dollars, about three times as much as Britain's, leaving out the 5 billion they owe us from the last war. The United States debt can hardly be less than 300 billions when the war is over. This country then will have mortgaged its future more than any other, and possibly as much as all the rest put together. If England faces a serious economic situation, so do we.

The help we should give and are prepared to give is limited to food until the next crop is harvested, and some small loans, possibly running to no more than a half billion in total, for currency stabilization. Beyond that the world needs to understand we cannot go. America is unable to carry the rest of the world on a WPA pay roll. The sooner the British are told that lend-lease ends with peace the sooner they will start to make headway in solving their own post-war problems. Encouraging them in the hope that we'll continue to be a sucker delays real progress.

Our post-war plan is to give Hitler a ride on a flying bomb.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

POETS ARE CANNIBALS.

Poets eat each other, or what amounts to the same thing, they eat each other's rhymes. Worse still, they are ghouls, for they eat not only the rhymes of the living but those of the dead.

Two of the Line's most industrious bards have offered within the last fortnight verses rhyming "church" with "lurch" in almost the exact pattern of a song which was popular a generation ago. You remember . . . "waiting at the church" . . . "left me in the lurch . . ." And the truth is that lunches and churches have been going together for centuries. Samuel Butler in Hudibras wrote in A. D. 1663:

And tho th'art of a diff'rent church
I will not leave thee in the lurch.

We can prove, too, that the late W. S. Gilbert stooped to cannibalism in his Iolanthe, when he rhymed "Ovidius Naso" with "say so," the identical words used by Richard Harris Barham in one of the Ingoldsby Legends. And Barham was dead before Gilbert was 9 years old.

To assist the lurch-church destitute, we present a few lines we made up just before starting this essay.

Why must lurches rhyme with churches
In the bard's vocabulary,
When assiduous researches
Thru a rhyming dictionary
Would have led to words like smirches,
Tho of that one I'd be chary,
Or to pleasant groves of birches,
Where, in treetops high and airy,
All the lovebirds have their perches?

. . . . . .

[There's another, but I'm wary
Of its use, for it might hurt yes,
Which is quite unnecessary.]

As for the unfortunate ladies l. l. t. l. by the Line's two poets, may we express the hope that the lurches they have been left in shall prove to be lurches of the better class—snug and well-appointed lurches, with all modern comforts and conveniences, including Webster Unabridged.

MOMENT D'AMOUR.

Let love be sport;
A momentary flare.
Let love be short;
No long drawn out affair.

Just let it gleam
Far brighter than a star;
A brilliant dream
No wakening can mar.

For longer love
Is far beyond our ken.
The gods above

A Legacy of Legs.

[The man we traded hats with [Line, Aug. 2] contributes a lagniappe.]

Sir: Perhaps you have noticed the curious camaraderie that unites the wearers of wooden legs? The fact appears to be that every man who wears a wooden leg has an uncontrolable desire to fraternize with other men who have wooden legs. Once, as a friend of mine sat in a park at Las Vegas, four men entered, all strangers to him and to each other, and all had wooden legs. They got together at once, and inside of five minutes were trying on one another's legs. Shortly two of them traded. In the conversation that ensued something of the fascination of their hobby emerged. One man, an ex-soldier, had all the battles in which he had fought painted on his leg. Another had painted his leg in deep mourning because his wife had just died. One of the men had a friend, he said, who had a cork leg that he used as a life preserver when bathing, and another friend utilized his as a propeller. A vain man of somebody's acquaintance had his wooden leg tattooed. One of them knew a man who had seven wooden legs, one of them for Sunday.

A WINDING ROAD.

I like to drive on a winding road,
To meet each changing scene it brings;
You turn, and there before you see
So many unexpected things.

It may be just a wayside tree
That greets you with its friendly leaves,
Or fleecy clouds above a field
That holds a wealth of golden sheaves.

I like a winding road's surprise;
A straight road has no charm for me.
I like a road that at each turn
Some unexpected thing you see.

Jennie Orr Leui.

Thoughts While Thinking.

Thinking thoughtfully, I thought of a thought which I thought was a good thought. On first thought I thought I would send the thought to the Line, but on second thought I think I will keep my thought for more thoughtful thinking. Think my second thought the better thought? I thought you would think so. W. L. L.

M. K. M. asks: "Is it likely that a navy recruit about to be discharged after four months of service because of asthma, would be drafted and accepted for service in the army?" Would it be possible for him to request limited service in the navy before signing discharge papers?"

He probably would be rejected, especially if his discharge papers bear the legend, "not recommended for reënlistment." After his discharge and before being submitted for induction, he would be examined by the selective service medical advisory board. He can request limited duty before discharge.

H. S. S. asks: "Did the recent announcement of drafting men not 'necessary men' in war production between 26 and 30 years of age, signal the speeding up of drafting fellows in this age group?"

We have not learned of any states around Illinois enlarging their quotas for the present, but it is reasonable to expect them to be enlarged shortly.

MIGRAINE VICTIMS NEED REST.

MOST of us find that migraine headaches will appear more frequently when we are worried. It is difficult indeed to shake off natural concern about members of the family who are with the armed forces. Thus we note that stress will be accompanied by aching which will vanish as soon as rest has brought about repair.

This disorder is as old as the hills and was described accurately by ancient Roman physicians. But no one as yet has had the temerity to announce a specific cause. Nevertheless the symptoms are definite. The victim awakens with an abyamal sense of fatigue. It is as tho he had spent a sleepless night.

As a rule, nausea will not come on for several hours but pain will be exhibited shortly after breakfast. Inasmuch as this is not a new experience, the patient will know what to do. He realizes that he is in for a visitation which will last from one to four days. When the battle is over no discomfort will be felt until a week or a month later—when the incident is repeated.

No matter how vigorous an attack is made upon diet, there is no régime which will ward off the siege. Prescriptions have varied from bold starvation to the use of a modified food program. For many, the only answer seems to be plenty of sedatives with absolute quiet.

Within the last few years, attention has been directed to ergotamine tartrate, which will certainly cut short a mild bout. Unfortunately, the drug has the property of raising blood pressure and cannot be employed with impunity. Now and then endocrine preparations have been reported upon favorably. In a few, a high blood uric acid has been found. If the level can be brought within normal limits the intensity of the paroxysms may be eased. But in spite of the procedure adopted, complete cure is seldom accomplished.

There can be no question that these sufferers will not only be helped, but seizures will be few and far between, if mental and emotional strain can be avoided or neutralized. In addition, every effort should be made to bring the general health up to par.

Not long ago I observed a patient who feels that she has practically recovered, as she now encounters but one mild incident about every six weeks. Her aforetime average was every four or five days. Her schedule is as follows:

Ten hours in bed. On arising, she drinks two or three glasses of warm water. One-half hour later, she partakes of a substantial breakfast, which is now her most enjoyable meal. Appetite has been aided by the use of vitamin B complex. Her lightest repast is the evening dinner, while lunch is largely fruits, vegetables, and salads. She has endeavored to cultivate poise and to forget her "stewing" tendencies. Occasionally her physician will administer a dose of the hormone derived from the front portion of the pituitary gland. While this no doubt is of value, she ascribes the success of her treatment to more rest and the resulting mental calm.

SYNTHETIC FISHERMAN'S LUCK

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

How to Be a Pin-Up Girl.

The letter was on V-mail and brief. It brought tremulous joy and unexpected delight to what had started out as another day.

"I would appreciate your autographed picture," the writer stated, "for my morale booster pin-up display."

The signature was that of a chaplain in the South Pacific, and this department could hardly contain its joy. Such frankness as ours must be disconcerting, but, to be extremely truthful, it was the first request received here for such a project during the war.

Maybe you don't know how you do with such mail. You walk over to the next desk and say to that poor unfortunate lady in modest, self-effacing tones which with difficulty hide your true elation, "Well, well. Look what I just received in the mail. Some one I don't know wants my pin-up picture. Mine!"

"Hmmm," says this unfortunate one. "You're going to send one, of course?"

"O, well," comes your properly deprecating reply. "O, I don't know." Mentally you are planning to race out to that studio that makes even Sophie Tucker look beautiful and say, "Look, I want it, too." At the same time you are wondering whether one picture is enough. If they are really good, you might send more. O, perhaps two dozen, with a cheerful, "Here you are, Reverend. Pass them around, will you?"

"O, but you must," your fellow worker replies. At this you think you detect a nasty note in her voice. You say to yourself that the poor thing is undoubtedly seething with envy. "Yes," she goes on in her clear, precise tones. "Get out your shorts, baby, and get into them. Remember it's leg art that counts in this war."

You bridle and say the letter is from a chaplain, a c-h-a-p-l-a-i-n. He is earnest. You will be, too.

"Don't be silly," the fellow worker comes back at you. Now you are certain the nasty note is there. "Remember, dear," and how she can stretch out "dear," "you are contending with Betty Grable."

"Nonsense," you say, your beautiful soulful character beginning to crack at the seams, your voice taking on a touch of sharpness, "this man reads my column. Well, maybe he doesn't read it. But he must have seen my name on it because the V-mail carries both my name and the column title."

"It is wonderful, isn't it," the lady, rapidly becoming our former friend, coos. "Imagine . . . I wonder how he happened to pick out yours."

You realize then that you have overstepped the mark. You begin to retreat into false modesty. You pooh-pooh all your own words. You say, "O, I guess he just picked up a stray issue of the paper and saw that name. Probably writes to every name he sees."

Now it is the fellow worker's turn to say "Nonsense." She does. You beam at her. "You don't really think so, do you?" she asks.

This produces a ladylike subdued sound which is supposed to represent tolerant laughter. You say no, no, of course not. It is a genuine request all right. Of course, it is strange that a chaplain whom you don't even know would sign his request with his first name, Kenneth, which he did. But then heaven only knows what happens to dignified modes of address out in the South Pacific.

"Of course," you say, hoping she will deny the very shadow of such a suggestion, "it would be fun to send a picture of something gawgeous like Miss Grable and sign my name to it."

Deny it? She snaps at it. "Now that," she says acidly, "is a fine idea."

A little battered by all this, you start a strategic retreat, still clutching your original V-mail. Then comes her final thrust:

"You know, dear, don't you, that every woman on the paper received an identical request?"

Could it be possible that Chaplain Kenneth frowns on pin-up girls? And that some member of his flock, aware of this, is trying to have him snowed under?

Ephraim, Wis., Aug. 2.—I just recalled the bows the President took in his acceptance speech recently in which he reminded the service men of the apple selling and the bread lines following the last war, and taking credit for the food situation today.

Let us remind the service men that he also claimed the payment of the bonus would wreck the country and that he had the bonus army sent to the Florida Keys, there to die a tragic death.

Let us also remind the mothers and fathers of the men in service that he made them a solemn promise in his infamous "again and again and again" speech, that their sons would not be sent to fight in foreign wars, knowing at that time that he already had us in it.

If he is allowed to continue in office there won't even be bread for bread lines after this war. He has this country in such a deplorable mess now that the boys who are fighting to save this country will also have to save it from financial ruin.

ADVICE TO JAPANESE-AMERICANS.

Chicago, Aug. 2. — As one who only recently returned to Chicago after a 12-year stay on the west coast, I was especially interested in Edna Koyama's letter in which she stressed the loyalty of Japanese-Americans and rightfully deplored racial hatred assertedly being directed against her race here in Chicago. Those among us who have nothing but profound sympathy for the Japanese-Americans also have a few words of advice to offer. They should remember that few minority groups in our land ever have escaped the lashes of the hate mongers, and that their day of travail will pass away, providing they do not react stupidly to the barbarism of intolerance.

Let them not indulge in self-pity. And above all, let not the relocated Japanese-Americans repeat their west coast error of so living unto themselves as if oblivious of the common man. Out there, and especially in California, the Japanese-Americans made the undemocratic and un-American mistake of establishing and maintaining little Tokyos and thus they lost communion with other men.

Japanese-Americans may answer that the little Tokyos were not of their own choosing, that they were forced upon them by the people of the west coast. Such an argument would be refuted by the record, for the fact is the common man on the west coast extended his hand of neighborliness to the Japanese-Americans and some of the latter warmly accepted it. Here in the middle west, the Japanese-Americans should make a special effort to avoid any segregation that may suggest new little Tokyos. Let them continue their loyalty and they will receive three fair strikes from every midwest citizen who is loyal to Americanism.

REFRIGERATOR TROUBLE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—I am one of several dozen people in Chicago who have had refrigerator trouble. In my case, all that is lacking is a very small part, a float. It would take infinitesimal labor to produce, and the old, useless part would furnish most of the material. Will the government agencies permit the manufacture? They will not! And here we sit, sickness in the family and no refrigerator. I call it unnecessary hardship. E. G. STOCKERT.

HIGH TAXES AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Our private industrial setup is taxed to the limit. It is a taxation exceeding the dividends distributed to stockholders, and the stockholders are again taxed on the corporate dividends. The result of this is a scaling down of profits to 3 per cent in the event of success. Does any one think an individual possessed of average acumen would venture into business with a knowledge that 3 per cent is his limit in the event success is achieved? It must be admitted the greater percentage of new endeavor is failure and total loss of investment. It follows that if no new business is undertaken there will be post-war unemployment.

Should we then kill private enterprise by unwarranted taxation which puts the brakes on initiative, invention, and new investment? This staggering tax load should be lifted to enable our corporations to plow in their earnings for reconversion; also, to increase their dividends. We should strive for a continuance of the system that made the United States the greatest industrial nation of all time. R. E. WAGNER.

SAYS THEY'LL DONATE ANYHOW.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Some educational and religious leaders appear to be excited over a provision in the new income tax law allowing a blanket 10 per cent deduction on low incomes to cover contributions, interest, etc., stating that it will cut donations. This will have no effect, since regular contributors will continue to donate. Even, if this provision is repealed, the tax saving is too small to be an incentive to giving. A church member, giving $50, at a 20 per cent tax rate saves $10 in taxes. If he gives nothing, he saves $50 to apply on his total tax bill.

The real cause of declining contributions is the high tax rate. Contributions always decrease as taxes increase. Opponents of the new tax law can accomplish more by opposing high taxes and the public officials who are responsible for same. TAXPAYER.

GIFTS TO BALANCE EXTORTIONS.

Kewanee, Ill., Aug. 4.—May I suggest that those unwilling contributors to the CIO political funds double their gift anonymously to the Republican party? This will not get at the root of the noxious weed, but at least it will keep it from going to seed.

SIXTY DAYS TO MOVE.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—We recently purchased a home. The contract allowed the seller 60 days in which to move. 1. Has he any legal right to remain beyond this period? 2. What right do we have to enter the building? 3. If he does not move at the end of 60 days, can we ask him to put his furniture in the basement and occupy the living quarters ourselves? R. P.

1. No. 2. Your right depends on the wording of your contract. 3. Obviously you can ask but you should not take the law into your own hands. If he refuses to move out, you should employ an attorney to force him.

SEDITION TRIAL WORKS HARDSHIP ON DEFENDANTS

Many Encounter Difficulty Eking Out Existence.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—In the sound and fury over conduct of the sedition trial in the federal District court here, the poverty and suffering of some of the defendants and the financial loss of defense attorneys, jurors, and witnesses have gone virtually unnoticed.

With the trial in its 17th week and no end in sight, many of the defendants are having difficulty eking out an existence while seeking vindication. Some of the defendants out on bond are professional men of some means, while other defendants are penniless.

There are 26 persons, including two women, on trial. Eight are in jail, where subsistence is no problem. Others are having difficulty getting quarters and food, regardless of their means.

Some Do Odd Jobs.

Those who are described as penniless do odd jobs when they can at night or Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays, when there is no trial session. These are staying in cheap lodging houses.

Three defendants are tool and die makers. They cannot get work at their trades here, but have various odd jobs. One is helping on a Virginia farm. Another defendant is working nights as a waiter. One defendant, a painter by trade, has complained that every time he gets a job, some one calls up and warns his employer that he is a sedition trial defendant, with the result he is fired.

Mrs. Lois Washburne, one of the women defendants, sits in the courtroom during the trial and sews ribbons into various ornamental shapes. Cryptic initials make the ribbon sunbursts, which, she explains, spell words connected with her "work." Sale of these ribbons helps defray her expenses.

One Defendant in Army.

Prescott Dennett, one of the defendants, is in the army. He was drafted during the investigation which led to the trial. He is not allowed to wear his army uniform, altho he is drawing pay as a member of the fighting forces. The pay is not enough to support him during the trial. At times he has had to sleep in the open. He was forced to depend on charity to get clothes to wear to the trial.

Gerald B. Winrod of Wichita, Kas., is a clergyman of a small Christian sect. He and his wife have taken a room in a private home here. He is supported by contributions from his flock.

A number of defendants prefer not to discuss how they get along during the trial. Their attorneys have reported privately that these are having difficulty getting along but are too proud to acknowledge their sufferings, because they might appear to be begging for charity. Several defendants reportedly have exhausted their savings and are living on the bounty of friends or on loans.

Several Ill During Trial.

Several of the defendants have been ill during the trial. They have left the courtroom for treatment and the trial has gone on.

Defense counsel, appointed by the court, have been hard hit. Some 14 lawyers have been appointed to represent defendants. None of these will receive compensation, as there is no provision for fees in such cases.

Lawyers accept the minor inconvenience of taking turns in charity cases, but giving four days a week to a trial which has run 17 weeks and shows no sign of ending is something else.

So far these attorneys have reaped nothing but abuse in certain segments of the press. Contrary to intimations in the smear press, these attorneys are not crackpots or fellow conspirators, but are substantial members of the District of Columbia bar.

Suggestions have been advanced that congress provide some payment for these lawyers, but nothing has materialized in the way of action.

Some Jurors in Difficulty.

Some members of the jury also are in difficulty. There are 10 men and two women on the jury. One of the women is a housewife and the other a night chief telephone operator, who manages to get in two nights of work a week.

The only federal employe is a metallurgist. The government keeps up his salary, collecting his jurors' fees, however. Utility employes are also paid during service.

The trial also has been hard on witnesses. These are paid $4.50 a day each while in Washington—$3.50 for subsistence and for court fees. They also get carfare at the rate of 5 cents a mile. The witnesses complain that it is almost impossible to make ends meet on the allowance.

The government is having no trouble in bringing witnesses here. Defendants expect to encounter difficulty on this score, however. Those who are not paupers will have to pay expenses of witnesses or expect witnesses to meet their own expenses. Those who represent themselves as paupers can have witnesses brought at government expense, altho there is a local code provision against bringing such witnesses more than 100 miles.

NOTE DESCRIBING F.D.R 'CRAZY ADDRESS' READ TO SEDITION JURORS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—Chief Prosecutor O. John Rogge today read to the jury in the sedition conspiracy trial a 1941 letter which asserted President Roosevelt "seems like one possessed of devils."

The letter was signed "Larry," and Rogge said it was written by Lawrence Brown, an editor for the former Silver Shirts leader, William Dudley Pelley, to George E. Deatherage, former commander of the Knights of the White Camelia. Pelley and Deatherage are defendants.

The writer spoke of "F. D. R.'s" crazy address of last evening," and added: "I never heard him talk like that but once before, and this was even more belligerent, to the point of exhibiting a man well unbalanced, as charged by Berlin spokesmen. . . . His pictures show a man beside himself. Maybe you have heard something not published about what got into this man, for he seems like one possessed of devils."

Defense counsel continued objections to Rogge's use of some 200 documents seized from Pelley's files, which Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher admitted in evidence yesterday. The court denied motions to strike the exhibits from the record.

FBI MAN LINKS 2 WOMEN TO MAPS IN TREASON CASE

Herman A. Loescher.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 8 (AP).—Nearing the close of its case, the government today sought to prove that two of the three Japanese-American sisters being tried on treason charges left their fingerprints on maps allegedly taken from Heinrich Halder and Herman A. Loescher, German prisoners of war whom they are accused of helping to escape.

John R. Robyak, FBI finger print specialist, came from Washington to testify that prints found on the maps were those of Mrs. Billie Shitara Tanigoshi, 32, and Mrs. Tsuruko "Toots" Wallace, 25.

The third of the sisters is Mrs. Florence "Flo" Shivze Otani, 33, who was not named in the finger print testimony.

The government charges that the sisters furnished clothing, maps, and other equipment to the Germans last October.

SPURNED LOVER HELD IN SLAYING OF SWEETHEART

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 8 (AP).—A young war worker, described as spurned in love, was held for prosecution today in the death of Louella M. Parfitt, 19, found beaten and choked beside a road last night.

Prosecutor Donald C. Noggle of Oakland county said Ernest Parsons, 23, had signed a confession that he struck and choked Miss Parfitt after she had refused to marry him and had taunted him about her "going out with other fellows." Parsons will be charged with murder.

Parsons entered a police station in Detroit last night, Noggle said, and told officers "I choked my girl friend. I don't know whether she's dead or not."

The police found Miss Parfitt's body under some brush in a ditch off 19 Mile rd. near Royal Oak.

A Visit from Flower Lady Blossoms Into Police Case

When Mrs. Dorothy Zigabarea of 9029 Exchange av. went back into the house to get some money for a woman selling flowers at her door yesterday, the flower lady went with her. The stranger found $115 in a bedroom and fled with it, Mrs. Zigabarea reported to police.

COUNCIL GROUP FAVORS BUYING TRACTION LINES

Asks $84,650,000 Deal for Trolleys and 'L.'

The city council committee on local transportation yesterday adopted the municipal ownership plan for the street car and elevated lines and recommended that the council approve the proposal and make it a definite purchase offer from the city. The committee further asked a special council meeting for Tuesday, so that if the plan and offer are approved the council can direct their submission to Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe at a traction hearing the next day.

The city ownership proposal was explained at the committee meeting by Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and super-highways, who drafted the report and recommendations at the committee's request.

$84,650,000 Price Set.

The municipal plan includes a cash offer of $84,650,000 for the elevated and surface lines properties; inclusion of the Chicago Motor Coach company in the system; distribution of the cash to security holders; and financing of the purchase and modernization of facilities thru the sale of revenue certificates.

Harrington said he has been informed that the city offer is acceptable to major groups of street car and elevated security holders. Bond houses have indicated they are prepared to buy the proposed revenue certificates, he said.

Carl R. Latham, attorney representing a majority of junior security holders, said at the meeting yesterday he favors the municipal ownership plan. Referring to Judge Igoe's objections to the city plan when presented last April on the ground that it did not provide for junior security holders, Harrington said that the present plan makes fair and specific provisions for this group.

On May 23 A. W. Harris, veteran banker and representative of senior bondholders with 72 millions in securities, denounced as "confiscation of the properties" a proposal for their acquisition, but it was reported last night that here had been some change in views in hat quarter. Mr. Harris for 17 years led the fight for the protection of senior bondholders.

Position Not Disclosed.

In the absence of William P. Sidley, chairman of the traction committee appointed by the federal court, its secretary, William J. Friedman, said the committee could not state its position until it had given the plan further study.

The council transportation committee asked a council measure informing Judge Igoe that it is prepared to pass an ordinance of city ownership and operation of the traction system for submission to a referendum of the voters. The council also was requested to ask court approval of the proposal and authorization of a foreclosure sale of the transit properties and distribution of the cash upon the approval of the city offer by the security holders.

TEN SOUTH SIDE ADELINES PICKED IN TRIANON VOTE

Advance Toward Goal of Festival Queen.

Ten south side war workers who discarded their factory clothes for feminine finery were cheered in the Trianon ballroom last night as they won the first of a series of contests that will name Chicago's sweetest "Sweet Adeline." The ultimate winner will be crowned queen of the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldier's field on Aug. 19.

A similar contest for war workers on the north, northwest, and west sides will be held tonight at the Aragon ballroom, where 26 girls, all of whom are named Adeline, will participate.

Dancers Vote by Ballot.

Eighteen Adelines, chosen by their fellow workers, participated in the Trianon contest, in which several hundred dancers voted by ballot for their favorites. Introduced by Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE, the Adelines assembled on the stage while Lawrence Welk's orchestra played Harry Armstrong's "Sweet Adeline" and the dancers marked their ballots.

After ballots were counted under the supervision of Nelson J. Goodsell of the accounting firm of McCoy, Holland & Goodsell, the 10 winning contestants returned to the stage. The dancers then serenaded the girls by singing "Sweet Adeline."

None of the blushing winners joined in the singing, possibly because only one is a musician and she's a pianist. Six of the winners are married, two to service men.

The married Adelines are Adeline Ahlgrim, 22, of 4117 W. 31st st., and Adeline Morton, 21, of 6800 Ridgeland av., whose husbands are in the service; Adeline Allbritten, 22, of 1010 W. 3d st., Gary, Ind.; Jeane Adeline Christensen, 24, of 8245 Ridgeland av.; Adeline D. Kotowski, 28, of 8700 Baltimore st., and Adeline W. Nawrocki, 24, of 1305 Garfield av., Gary, Ind. Mrs. Morton is a musician.

Semi-Finals on Aug. 12.

Unmarried winners are Adeline Rita Holm, 21, of 6930 S. Claremont av.; Adeline Loretta Nijak, 21, of 8410 Baker st.; Adeline Pisciteli, 22, of 504 S. Morgan st., and Adeline Rudzinski, 20, of 8236 Mackinaw av.

The 20 winning Aragon and Trianon contestants will compete in the semi-finals in Grant park Saturday night, Aug. 12, at the Chicago Theater of the Air concert. There an expected crowd of 40,000 will select 10 girls from among whom the queen will be chosen at the festival luncheon on Aug. 18 in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel.

100 AUTOS FOLLOW MANGANO AND $5,000 CASKET TO HIS GRAVE

Clad in a tuxedo and lying in a pre-war silver and bronze casket valued at $5,000, the body of Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, 52, former Capone gangster slain with shotgun slugs by unidentified assassins, was viewed by mourners thru a glass canopy during funeral services yesterday. Anthony and George Salerno, undertakers, intoned prayers in their chapel at 813 Taylor st., and afterward, 100 cars, 12 of them hired for the family and flowers, were directed by police to Mount Carmel cemetery. Christopher Columbus post, American Legion, of which Mangano was a member, and Dempster MacMurphy post were in charge.

State Rep. Roland Libonati, a Legionnaire and one of the pallbearers, said that Mangano was a private of company B, 1st division, 161st brigade, in World War I. in France. Mangano's sobbing widow, Ila, and his mother, Laura, who screamed hysterically, were the chief mourners.

ORDER TRAINING PLAN RESUMED IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP).—Philadelphia looked to FBI agents and a federal grand jury tomorrow for possible sensational disclosures in the paralyzing, six day transit strike here.

"We are going after the big fish," a federal spokesman said as the FBI massed data and the grand jury prepared to convene tomorrow to hear at least 35 persons, including strikers, Philadelphia Transportation company officials, officers of the CIO Transport Workers' union, and government war agency officials.

At midnight, Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, war department representative in operation of the transportation system, issued this statement:

"Operations of the Philadelphia Transportation company have now been restored to normal. Therefore, the training program for both white and Negro operational trainees will be resumed Wednesday morning."

The five day tieup was blamed on upgrading of eight Negroes to operational training positions.

Color Is Vivid in Fur Trimmed Coats of Fabric

BY REA SEEGER.

Vivid memories of former August sale prices on important fur trimmed fabric coats for winter may cause a twinge, but those collections never did feature as brilliant colors as are displayed now. For even tho sale prices are not sensationally highlighted these days, the coats are something to make fashion and shopping history. The fur trim is lavish without being ostentatious; amply wide tuxedo collars, wide bands, deep cuffs, and flattering high, round collars dramatize most effectively such jewel colors as ruby, emerald, and amethyst.

New shades to check are the eye-catching tones of cerise, the winter version of shocking pink, flame-scarlet, and vermilion; also such exciting green shades as almond, chartreuse, a metallic mustard green, and a deep rich empire green. Luscious tones of gold, deep caramel, blonde-beige, chamois yellow, lemon, and tangerine tones are especially exciting when contrasted with such flat brown furs as caracul, beaver, kolinsky, ocelot, leopard, and mink.

Three shades of gray, silver, stone gray, and a deep steel gray are high fashion neutrals in fabric coats accented with fur. The fabrics are of the soft duvetyn textures, flexible, yet thick enough to ward off the most penetrating weather, without the unwieldy bulk of the usual heavy fabrics. Sheen and depth of texture are exceptionally attractive in these high colored coats, assuring the proper opulence for contrast with luxury furs. There isn't a winter coat now on display that doesn't flatter the figure lines, with various lengths and silhouettes, wide shoulders, and easy-to-slide-into sleeves.

Service Wives Back Home to Visit Parents

BY JUDITH CASS.

A NUMBER of Chicago homes are brightened, or will be, shortly by the presence of married daughters who, until recently, have been with their husbands at army or navy posts and who are returning home either for the duration or for a short visit. Mrs. Lester Armour Jr., the former Bessie Cowles, has returned to Lake Forest to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Knight C. Cowles, now that Lt. Armour has gone overseas with the army air forces.

Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey and her two children, Jean and Daggett Jr., who have been living in Carmel, Cal., for the last few months, are expected at the Lake Bluff home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm, the middle of September, to be here during the winter while Lt. [j. g.] Harvey is serving in the South Pacific. Mrs. Harvey will have a reunion with her brother, David Wilhelm, who will be wearing two new silver bars on his army uniform to denote his promotion to the rank of captain, when he arrives on leave at the end of the month. Capt. Wilhelm is a fighter pilot and has shot down five enemy planes over southern Europe in the year he has been overseas.

Lt. and Mrs. H. William Bottomley [Frances Fisher] arrived yesterday in Winnetka for a visit with the latter's parents, the Charles W. Fishers. Lt. Bottomley is on leave from his army air force base at Key field, Meridian, Miss., where he and his bride of January have been at home for the last several months.

Mrs. Chandler left her Lake Forest home Monday for Huron Mountain, Mich., to join two other children, Nora and Bruce, who already are vacationing at the club. They plan to return after Labor day.

The Vaughan C. Spaldings will welcome their youngest son, Pvt. Edward Spalding, today when he arrives at home on a 15 day furlough from Napier field, Ala. Pvt. Spalding's two brothers, Ensign Charles Spalding and Capt. Spalding Jr., are also in the air forces. Ensign Spalding is serving in the Pacific and Capt. Spalding, who just has received his new rank, recently has been transferred from Africa to India, where he and his unit have been awarded the Presidential citation for their work in the India-China-Burma theater.

U. S. School System Lacking in Equality, Sociologist Declares

The belief that every American boy has a chance of becoming President is unsound, for the American school system operates as a conservative force to keep most people in the class in which they were born, W. Lloyd Warner, University of Chicago sociologist and anthropologist, said in a free public lecture at the university yesterday.

He deplored the fact that the size of the parental bankroll and other irrelevant considerations are allowed to become factors in determining the amount of education a boy or girl should receive, and he declared that America would not be able to boast of equality of educational opportunity until every child of average or above average intelligence has been assured a chance to get the education which his natural endowments merit.

The speaker advocated a broad scholarship program which would be financed by federal agencies and which would be available to help deserving youth from the age of about 14 or 15 on.

Pick 2 Judges for Festival's Vocal Finals

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Two of the three judges who will hear the four finalists in the Chicago Music Festival vocal contest Saturday night, Aug. 19, in Soldiers' field will be Bianca Saroya, opera star, and Chief Specialist John Carter of the Great Lakes Naval Training center. Mr. Carter, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, also will be soloist for the evening's performance.

Miss Saroya, a dramatic soprano, is well suited to be a festival judge as she also teaches voice. She has sung in Bucharest, Berlin, Milan, and South American cities. In this country she sang with the San Francisco and San Carlo Opera companies and has appeared many times at Ravinia and at Radio City in New York.

With a third judge, to be named later, Miss Saroya and Mr. Carter will take seats at desks placed several hundred feet south of the festival stage at the north end of Soldiers' field. The singers, two men and two women, will be accompanied in their arias by the festival orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. A "best man singer" and a "best woman singer" will be selected. The contestants will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, giving them an audience of millions.

Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, chairman of the vocal committee, reports greater interest than ever in the vocal compositions. She says that more advanced students are entering the contest each summer.

The contests have become more difficult, too. Formerly the contestants could choose their own numbers, but now a committee of three, Mr. Weber, Lewis James, production director of W-G-N, formerly a member of the famed Revelers' quartet, and Miss Marion Schroeder, also of W-G-N, select the three numbers which each singer is asked to have prepared. Often the vocalists are called back for a second and third audition.

Miss Schroeder, who is assistant librarian of W-G-N, entered the first festival vocal contest in 1930 and won in the lyric soprano division on the west side of Chicago.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

On the Boss' Time.

Perhaps you've heard about the office manager, reported by Gladys Hanson, who was interviewing a white collar girl for a job. He asked her if she had any particular talents or qualifications and was mildly interested when she said why yes—as a matter of fact she had won several prizes in crossword puzzle and slogan writing contests.

"Sounds all right," the manager told her, "but we want somebody who will be smart during office hours."

"O," the white collar girl explained, "this was during office hours."

Typewriter Drawing.

Gosh! A prizefighter!

BARR.

Spellbinder.

Can you conceive it
Can you believe it?
We've got a girl
Who spells it "receive!"
Also my heart is
Ineffably cheered
This steno, by golly,
Knows how to spell "weird!"
"Recommend!" and "accommodate!"
Blithely I yell
To Hades with glamor—
Our steno can spell!

BOB PROVIDENT HEIM.

Ear-ritability.

"The Private Secretary's Manual" calls attention to a point too often overlooked by stenographers: The difference between the written and spoken word. Were this taken into account by most stenographers, there would be more employers capable of dictating smoothly and comfortably with that sense of ease which is the dream of any man who says to his secretary: "Take a letter . . ."

The employer who is dissatisfied with a letter he sees in cold type [despite the fact that he dictated it] is not necessarily changeable or unpredictable; he is suddenly confronted with the recorded evidence of his dictation which—in print—may not convey the thought he had in mind when he spoke the words. This is evidence of the conflict between the auditory and visual sense. His dissatisfaction should not be put down to irritability but to "ear-ritability"—the immense gap between the sound and the sight of words.

Some business girls recently amused themselves at a club meeting by dictating to each other. They were astounded at the results. The stenographer, ready with her pencil, was not so ready with her tongue when the situation was reversed. It taught the girls a sorely needed lesson and sent them back to their desks more sympathetic toward the man who dictates slowly and often awkwardly. It taught the girls words may not appear as they sound.

According to Culbertson

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2 spade	Pass	4 spades	5 clubs
Double	Pass	5 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

West could not make his five spade contract after North had opened a club to his partner's bid. He was down only one trick, 100 points, but this represented quite a "swing" from the 500 points that the doubled five club contract would have been defeated.

Needless to say, this loss to East-West was exclusively the fault of the East player. His jump to four spades on the first round had been the clearest sort of message that his hand was essentially "a spade hand"—that it did not contain great defensive potentialities. Yet, in the face of this warning, West chose to double five clubs rather than persist for his own vulnerable game. This was an action of the most positive nature, and East should have accorded it due respect. If West had been in doubt over whether to double he would have made a forcing pass, leaving the decision to East.

Of course [as East ruefully mentioned] the five spade contract would have been a laydown if the diamond finesse had been on, but a sure 500 point penalty is far better than a vulnerable game contract that requires a finesse.

'Miss Lieutenant' . . . . . By Nina Wilcox Putnam

(Copyright: 1944: By Ines Eliot.)

SYNOPSIS: Lt. Carol Melton of Kansas, an army nurse in North Africa, overhears a military conference in which the need for maps and photographs of the crooked little towns along the Riviera is discussed. She tells Col. Barlow that her identical twin, Lita, is married to a Frenchman who has a collection of maps, drawings, and photographs of all the secret passageways along the coast, that she was educated at Nice, speaks French fluently, and knows every inch of the coastline. She persuades the colonel, who is in love with her, to recommend her for the mission. Carol is called to American headquarters, warned of the danger, and transferred to intelligence. Two experienced Commandos will accompany her. Col. Barlow confides to her that information known only to trusted officials about the troops in Africa has been leaking out. The informer knows the Riviera well. Taken by ferry to a submarine, Carol discovers one of the Commandos is Bright Stoner of Kansas, a childhood sweetheart, who has always stood between her and other men. From the submarine they go by fishing smack to the shore. Carol will lead the way to Le Bastion, home of Lita and Jacques Cassard. They come to the old restaurant of Papa Brochard, husband of Carol's old nurse, Mme. Victorine, and learn Lita and Jacques are friendly with the German officials. Wearing clothing Lita had given Victorine, and with Stoner disguised as her porter, they contact a member of the underground.

INSTALMENT IX.

AT THE CASTLE.

Papa Brochard and the farmer, Ricci, talked. Presently his stall cleaned of its scanty wares, the latter handed Bright a gunny sack containing a few potatoes. It was time for Brochard to leave then.

Then, mounted on the clumsy two wheeled cart, the three rode unchallenged thru the streets, along the quays, past the very spot where Bright had felled the German sentry. People strolled wanly along the deserted promenade. There were more gun emplacements visible now in the noonday light, and everywhere soldiers of the axis forces walked in solemn pairs.

At Mount Boron the farmer turned into the sweep of the approach to the Middle Corniche. They climbed slowly up and up and the wide-flung white city spread out below them in the valley. Impossible, from here, to believe it was a captive city already starving under a cruel master. At Upper Villefranche the farmer Ricci stopped at the entrance of the crude trail which led to his tiny, rock strewn manse. Bright helped Carol down over the high wooden wheel.

"The military trail begins just yonder," said Ricci. "It is a bad, dangerous road for cars, but you will find it of a sufficient ease on foot. Good luck."

He turned his animal and drove joltingly out of sight toward his home. Bright slung the sack of potatoes over one shoulder and followed a step or two behind Carol, as became a respectful porter, while she led the way to the little used stony road which twisted at a breath taking pitch down toward the lower highway and the sea. Then suddenly a noise intruded. A powerful motor car was coming toward them, laboring up the steep grade, but gaining momentum as the driver changed gears with a grim crash. With a single bound Bright reached her side and pulled her off the road into the dubious shelter of a clump of seedling lemon draped with wild cucumber vine.

He had hardly done so when a great black limousine rounded the curve and passed them, the driver too intent on the chasm at his left to give them a glance. Inside were brown uniforms and in the midst of the uniforms, a civilian. The car went by, followed by a cloud of dust which completely enveloped it. Bright drew a sigh of relief.

"Gestapo," he said briefly. But Carol could not answer him immediately, for the man seated in the midst of the Gestapo uniforms had been her brother-in-law, Jacques Cassard.

For a moment Carol stood still, paralyzed by surprise. Then urged by the conviction that Lita was in trouble, she started running down the road, blindly, instinctively, slipping and stumbling on the rough surface. In a few swift strides Bright caught up with her and swung her to a standstill, shaking her gently by the elbow.

"Hey, maverick! What's up?"

"That man. It was my brother-in-law, Jacques!"

"The fellow with the little brown beaver?"

"Yes. What do you suppose has happened?"

"Your guess is as good as mine, Miss Pinkerton!" he said grimly. "Looked to me like he was being taken for a ride."

"He's supposed to be friendly with those people," Carol was making a desperate effort to keep well balanced, "but that didn't look friendly. And why use this dangerous road, unless . . ."

"Unless they didn't want to be conspicuous," he added for her. "There's some mighty lonesome stretches up there on the mountainside where a little lynching could happen very cozy."

She put up her hands as if to push the idea away. Somehow such a horrible thing could not happen here in the still, warm sunshine!

"Let's get down below quickly," she said. "I have a feeling that Lita wants me to do something for her—that I'm needed at the castle right now!"

From the next bend in the road they could see Le Bastion perched on a little prominence which faced the sea—a small, grim pile of stone and stucco, its gardens a handkerchief of bright patches from this distance. Below it, on the north side, the ancient town which had once been its feudal holding sloped sharply to a small harbor. On the south side of the castle edged a steep cliff which dropped away from the very foundations a hundred and fifty feet or more to the sea. Beyond the white quay a German cruiser lay in the harbor, a green gray blot upon the opalescent water.

"Quite an outfit!" Bright said.

"It's small, for a castle, but terrific," Carol said. "Complete with trap doors, ghosts, and high taxes."

"How do we get in?"

"Let me think," she said briefly. "We can tell better when we get nearer."

Le Bastion vanished as they continued their way down. Then, as the military trail with its warning sign, "Do not enter here," debouched on the lower main road, the castle loomed at them suddenly again, a high wall with a sentry walk on top of it presenting a blank surface to the highway, and sloping upward to the south.

"Look, Bright!" Carol told him. "There is a little market place down by the church and we'd better try and act as if we'd just come from it. We are going to walk around the wall to the tradesman's entrance. If it's locked, we'll go on into the grove and try another spot."

"Okay, big chief!"

It was horribly conspicuous, crossing the open road, and the sun seemed to take on the uncomfortable quality of a spotlight. Carol had difficulty in making herself walk slowly. There were several townspeople and peasants moving about, but with a new sullen lassitude, and one, Lejonne, the cobbler, looked at her with cold recognition and then deliberately averted his eyes and hurried past without speaking. It was further evidence of Lita's changed status, and pointed to alarming things. Presently they were on the fringes of the castle grounds and standing at the service entrance. It was firmly locked.

"Something tells me not to ring," Carol said. Then with a gesture she beckoned him on.

A few yards behind, the wall led into a grove of storm twisted cork trees. The road dropped away behind them and presently they were out of sight of it. Carol paused beneath a gnarled tree which stood close to the old masonry.

"There ought to be a toolshed on the other side, just about here. From its roof it wouldn't be a bad drop into the back garden."

"Wait a second," said Bright, "and I'll tell you."

He swung the potato sack to the ground and went up the tree as swiftly and silently as a cat. Then from the top of the wall he nodded down at her, climbed back into the stripped branches, holding out his hand to hers. Carol abandoned the sack and reached up. His clasp was strong and secure. In another moment she was beside him, they had stepped over the sentry walk, and were lying on the roof of the clumsily built shed. Carol raised herself on her elbows and peered over the edge.

Don't Ever Let That Boy in Service Down

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Remember him as he was before he left. Remember him as he was in the old days before he learned about skip bombing, flight decks, obstacle courses, and P-38s; when he was still civilian enough to care about checked sport coats, smooth dance floors, and Harry James' recordings. You thought he was pretty wonderful then. You thought no evening could be complete if he didn't call and no week could come to an end without a date with him Saturday night. But that was before the distance of months in the army and miles to camp came between you.

on the SOLID side

Now things are different. It may be laziness or carelessness or a switch of affections, but somehow that mail going off to G. I. jackson in coconut heaven or across the sea isn't getting thru as it should. And you're the bottleneck because you're not knocking out those letters very often these days.

Perhaps he didn't answer your first letters as quickly or as ardently as you would have liked and your interest slacked off. You took that "a boy in the hand is worth two in the service" attitude. You didn't realize how busy he was those first months with the rigorous drill of basic training or cramming in facts for officers' candidate school. You forgot that marching in the hot sun, drilling each day, or beachheading in Normandy might leave him too tired to pen off something sweet and lovely to you every evening.

But even tho his letters don't come thru to you, he still looks for news from you. He may be off where men are men, but there are too many of them and he would like to hear from a girl once in a while.

And every soldier thinks that the girl he left behind him really is behind him. He thinks she realizes automatically how much he misses her and how much he'd give for just one night in his own home town. And every soldier thinks the people at home know how hard he is trying and how much is expected of him.

It's a bad time to let your boy down. Keep saying your prayers, keep working with the Red Cross, and keep saving that folding lettuce for war bonds—but don't forget those daily bulletins from the home front is you really want to do something for the boys!

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the best investments a woman with very, very dry hair can make is in a bottle of oil to be used before the shampoo. And one of the best expenditures of energy she can make is to use it!

Entirely aside from the fact that dried out, strawlike hair never looks decently groomed there is the more disturbing certainty that it's the most unflattering face frame imaginable. It's a halo of hay instead of a halo of gleaming silk, as hair should be.

A hair oil we can recommend without reservation, because it's something of a cleanser and a whale of a good lubricant, is a thin, transparent lotion with a faintly lemony scent. It's not expensive, and in any case two tablespoonfuls are all you need for a marvelous hot oil treatment. It's to be heated and applied, as warm as you can take it, directly to the scalp either with a small brush or a piece of cotton. Personally, we prefer the brush, because it can be more stimulating to the dry, tired scalp—and stimulation is just what lazy scalps need.

Once the oil is applied to the whole scalp surface start a massage, placing the finger tips on the bony structure and moving the scalp rapidly back and forth in a rotary motion. Chances are, if you're dry haired always, that the scalp will be plenty tight, but you should lift it and move it as long as there is strength in your fingers and arms. Leave this oil on at least an hour—but every additional hour of oil soaking is all to the good.

You'll see a difference in your hair after a shampoo, even the first one. Do this for six shampoos in succession, tho, and you'll see an improvement you wouldn't have dreamed possible. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Men in Service Send Reminder of—Christmas

An indication that thoughts of Christmas are becoming prevalent in the Southwest Pacific was received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE in a letter from three soldiers who listed "desirable gifts" which would be appreciated in their theater of war.

A sure way to a soldier's heart, the letter stated, would be films, sizes 127, 120, 620, and 616, on which they could record their life on the islands. Shower clogs, those one-strap wooden slippers that even the men at home swear by, are useful on Saipan, New Guinea, and other captured islands. Body and face towels, seldom thought of by proud parents or the "girl back home," are impossible to obtain, they added.

Other items high on the list are pocket knives, nail files and clippers, fountain pens, razor blades, cigaret lighters and flints, small compact gasoline stoves, pipes, detailed war maps, subscriptions to detective, western and comic magazines, books, metal or plastic cigaret cases, and identification tag chains.

Obviously, the men can't get too many snapshots of home, for they, too, are listed, along with writing portfolios, watch bands, and photo albums to accompany the films. All of these gifts are available in Chicago stores, a check revealed, but on some qualities are limited. The soldiers also listed undesirable presents, topped by perishables [candy, cakes, cookies], unless vacuum packed or sealed tightly in a metal container.

"Please do not send stationery, V-mail blanks, envelopes, stamps, cheap Christmas candy, money belts, sewing kits, cigarets, clothing, shoe shining kits, soap or money orders unless requested," the men wrote.

The postoffice added the warning that all packages must be wrapped and tied securely and that the address, along with the name of the addressee, should be typed or printed on both sides of the package. The size of the package may not be larger than 42 inches over-all, or the approximate size of a shoe box. It must not weigh more than five pounds.

Christmas packages for overseas mailing will be accepted without a signed order from the addressee between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. All packages mailed before Oct. 15 will be delivered by Christmas, the war department has promised.

Critic Looks Over Variety of Film Fare

"HEROES ARE MADE."

An Artkino picture, directed by Mark Donskoy, featuring Vladimir Perist-Petrenko, and presented at the World Playhouse.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The little Michigan av. temple of cinematic art, mostly dedicated to the exploitation of films singing of soviet achievements, presents, in "Heroes are Made," another excellently served dish of Red propaganda.

The picture was adapted from Nikolai Osteovsky's autobiographical novel, "How the Steel Was Tempered," and is notable principally for its introduction of Vladimir Perist-Petrenko, a brilliant 17 year old lad, who makes his screen debut as the youthful hero of the film. Early in life he sees the Red light and becomes a leader. . . . Action, much of it concerned with underground resistance to the Nazi invaders, follows a familiar pattern. . . . Romance is briefly introduced.

Herbert Rawlinson, Bryant Washburn, Barton McLane, and Fifi D'Orsay, take a bow! Awfully nice seeing you again—but we'll just pass over the monkey absurdity in which you are featured ["NABONGA" is its name] and flit to mention of the other feature on the Studio theater's program—"DEATH AT A BROADCAST," which, in its turn, brings to grateful notice Ian Hunter, that splendid English actor so long conspicuous by his absence, for reasons deponent knoweth not.

You've read often of the "clipped British accent"? This movie is so thick with it that you have to take a lot of the conversation on faith—which is rather a pity, because, judging from the dialog you can make out, it must be interesting. . . . Photography is also rather lousy. HOWEVAH—the acting is tops and this murder mystery, "Death at a Broadcast," keeps you interested and guessing from start to finish.

During the radio broadcast of a mystery story, the victim of the yarn is actually choked to death during the part of the script calling for him to feign strangulation. . . . So what the audience hears are sounds wrung out by real death agony. . . . The murdered man proves to have been a blackmailer whose demise many persons might easily have desired. . . . Mr. Hunter is the gentleman from Scotland Yard called in on the case. . . . And he is SWELL!

See you soon.

Advice Is Given Ailing Mother on Handling Son, 3

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I have such a bad little boy of 3," writes a mother. "He is perfectly well, so the doctor tells me, and he isn't hard of hearing—altho sometimes you would think him stone deaf when I scold him. He is just bad. He is up to everything. He climbs and takes awful chances that keep my heart in my throat.

"I haven't been well for the last few months, so Jerry gets on my nerves with his naughtiness. If punishments are the cure with most children, they simply don't work with him. I've tried them all. I'm at the end of my rope, so please give me some suggestions."

When a mother is ailing, tired, and nervous she is not in shape to handle well a lively small son of 3. In addition, she may not naturally have that gift for getting along happily with a child at this most fascinating age. They are so interesting to watch—so sweet, responsive, loving, and full of laughter at 3, and yet so easy to manage.

This mother is open to suggestion. So, first, she must try to get herself in better physical condition. To do this, she should get her doctor's help in building her up. She should get a daily rest or a short vacation, if possible, and also diversion.

Second, she must approach her small son in an entirely different attitude. Obviously, he senses her reaction to him and all he does, and it is bad for him. A child of 3 should never be considered, or told that he is, bad. Naughty, perhaps, but never bad. Constant scolding, spanking, or other punishment for his perfectly natural curiosity and ceaseless activity, only confuse him and make things worse. The new attitude his mother must adopt must be a compound of interest and love, patience and approval.

And, third, she must be content to wait for the changed measures to show results, and not expect too much too soon from this little lad of 3.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 8.—Clark Gable has become so interested in "Week-end at the Waldorf," because of Mrs. Lucius Boomer of the Waldorf, that he's asked to be allowed to read the script. That, I think, is the 12th picture for Clark. If he does it, it means he'll play opposite Katharine Hepburn and Lana Turner. . . . Raoul Walsh moves over to Paramount to direct Alan Ladd in "Salty O'Rourke." . . . When James C. Petrillo gives the green light, John Charles Thomas, Jimmy Melton, and Jeanette MacDonald will do an album of "Oklahoma!" tunes. Wish Mr. Five by Five would hurry. . . .

Katharine Hepburn. Clark Gable. Lana Turner.

Mary Blake, Jeanette MacDonald's sister, has been telephone operator in all 14 Kildare and Dr. Gillespie pictures. Sometimes she's had only a bit. But now, after six years, she's getting her reward. She'll have as many scenes with Van Johnson in "Dr. 'Red' Adams" as Gloria de Haven. She keeps pinching herself over the switch from the switchboard to reel scenes.

Too Bad It Had to Happen.

I can hear you say, after reading about the Jon Hall-Tommy Dorsey fracas, "If those fellows want to fight so much why don't they join the army?" There's more to that story than meets the eye. It's one of those things that gives us a bad name. The person I feel sorry for is Frances Langford, Jon's wife, who's in the South Pacific entertaining our soldiers. . . . The yarn about Charles Bickford beating up three men at the Somerset House was a little garbled. Bickford horned in on a private conversation three men were having. Seems he picked on the little one and slapped his face. 'Twas then a 200 pounder at the table got up and knocked Bickford out. Instead of Bickford knocking three gents out, it was he who had to be revived. . . . Jeanne Lorraine is back after five months in England. Jeanne can't dance any more but she sings and tells jokes. The boys loved her. She's a swell little entertainer. I hope Hollywood comes forth with a good part.

And a Happy Birthday to Jack!

Jack Warner's birthday party was one of the best ever. Salvador Dali provided an extraordinary painting of Jack's wife, Ann. Errol Flynn was the most-sought-after male. Tallulah Bankhead wanted him for her dinner partner, as did six others, but Joan Blondell got him. Dorothy Di Frasso was done up stunningly. Clark Gable was devoted to Kay Williams. Ida Lupino was nursing a broken wrist. Bette Davis was excited over the compliments she's getting from her last picture. Sam Goldwyn raved about what a good thing "Wilson" is for the entire industry and admitted he had been wrong. Alfred Hitchcock told how good Bill Goodwin is and said he will go far on the screen. "And," Hitch added, "you've never heard me rave about an actor before." Lillian Gish, with her golden hair down her back, looked like Ophelia.

Add One More Party—Hollywood Style.

On to Orson Welles' party. He's got the kind of place you dream of. House is modern, built like a skyscraper on five different levels, much like a ship that's built for a pleasure cruise around the world. You look down from the house into a swimming pool, only it's a lake. It's got an island in the middle of it with palm trees. Lt. Comdr. Robert Montgomery stopped by for a minute, looked around and said, "They'll never be able to get this thing off the ground to launch it." Hundreds of people milled about. Hans Hanreid and a friend walked a plank over the swimming pool to the island. When they got there the plank was brought back and they were stranded. A rowboat with one oar was pushed over to them. They tried that and couldn't make our side. Then, like Robinson Crusoe, they used the boat as a shelter, built themselves a camp fire. All the time, guests were throwing over suggestions. Finally they stripped to their shorts and swam ashore. That encouraged others to go in swimming and the lake was soon filled. There was Ethel Waters, who told me she'd worried off 25 pounds. Frankie Sinatra was there but didn't sing. A colored band arrived to make music at 3 a. m. Our hostess, Rita Hayworth, retired long before that. . . . I'm betting Orson will write a picture about that place and use it as a background. He wants to do comedy. Well, this is it and it wasn't built by a movie mogul, either.

Never a Dull Moment.

Bill Hebert, back from Mexico, has signed up as associate of Frank Ross, who's making "The Robe." He tells me that Henri de Chatillon, Mexico's Mad Hatter, is sending me a chapeau. I can hardly wait. . . . Dolores del Rio is still carrying a torch for Orson Welles. Argentine rummy, which is played with three decks of cards [you hold 16 in your hand], has swept that country like a scourge of locusts and Hebert is introducing it here. . . . Dennis O'Keefe, who plays "Brewster's Millions," has doubled his salary since "Up in Mabel's Room." He now gets four thousand per. . . . Herb Moulton is doing "The Great American Mug" for Metro. Does that mean he's playing himself?

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

A grandmother doing a responsible job in one of the most critical war industries, Mrs. Alvina Shipley, 67, has worked for the last year as a core assembler at the Howard Foundry company, 4918 Bloomingdale av. Described as an outstanding employe, she has no absenteeism demerits against her employment record.

Mrs. Shipley, a motherly looking woman with white hair worn in a knot atop her head is alert, tireless, and diligent. Her work requires great care and deftness. The pasting of cores determines the quality of castings made from them.

Her present job is by no means her first. Thirty years ago Mrs. Shipley went to work to assist Mr. Shipley, who died six years ago, in the education of their five children, one of whom is a veteran of the last war. The youngest daughter, Mrs. Lil Tollakson, also works at the Howard company. She is a coremaker, forming sand and binder into molds for castings. Mrs. Tollakson works to care for four children and her husband, who is unemployable.

The women with whom Mrs. Shipley works affectionately call her "ma" and say that she never makes an excuse, because of her age, to avoid any task. Holding a war job is only one of her contributions to winning the war. Her home at 4851 St. Paul av. is near the plant, so Mrs. Shipley spends some of her lunch hours every summer in tending a war garden.

Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, head of the army 6th service command, and Mrs. Aurand were hosts at a farewell dinner at 7:30 o'clock last night at Gardiner General hospital for Lt. Col. Pearl C. Fisher, who has retired as the command's chief nurse.

Col. John R. Hall, commander of the hospital, attended with Mrs. Hall. Also present were Lt. Col. Martha Jane Clement, who succeeds Col. Fisher as head nurse; Maj. Nellie Denison, chief nurse at Gardiner, and 80 army nurses on the staff of the institution.

Mrs. Ada Crocker, chairman of the Illinois State Nursing Council for War Service, said yesterday that there still are 200 openings in September classes in 17 schools of nursing in the Chicago area for young women eligible to enroll in the United States cadet nurse corps.

Prospective students are asked to call Mrs. Crocker at Central 9708, or visit the office, 8 S. Michigan av. Students in the corps, in return for free tuition, board and lodging, uniforms, and allowances, pledge their services, upon graduation, to essential nursing, both civilian and military.

Yeoman 3d Class Mary Eileen Lenihan, stationed with the visual aids training section in the recruit area at the Great Lakes naval training center, says her job has the atmosphere of a movie studio. Yeoman Lenihan operates a projector and acts as film booker and reviewer. She writes synopses for the files, schedules movies for all recruit activities, and runs the films at the showings.

Chemical Aids Kill Odors and Clean Homes

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

In the heat of summer time, strong cooking odors are more objectionable than in the winter. So why not try to get rid of them before they are wafted all thru the house?

There's a liquid made especially for this purpose, and it is very efficient. Put some of it in a spray gun [any kind is suitable] and simply spray it into the air three or four times. Its makers claim it destroys odors [sick room as well as kitchen] by chemical means, while some deodorants simply mask them with another smell. A pint bottle of this spray costs only half a dollar.

And, to keep food odors from roaming around inside your refrigerator, there's a neat little round box filled with another type of chemical which is both odorless and harmless. Holes are punched in both top and bottom lids. Place the box on a shelf in the refrigerator, and after three or four weeks remove it, dry it out by placing it in a warm, sunny place, or in a slow oven, then return it to the ice box for more service. This handy gadget also is 50 cents.

A moth killing product, new to us, comes from Atlanta, Ga. It is a chemical with a terrifically long, unpronounceable name, but just call it moth killer. Four cakes of it are packed in a convenient round box priced at 98 cents. You simply place these cakes on your clothes closet shelves, where they are supposed to destroy not only moths, but the eggs and larvae, as well. They're effective in an area of 100 cubic feet of closet space. Of course, you keep the door tightly closed.

This chemical also serves to dry the air, absorbing moisture and thus helping to control mildew, rust, and rotting.

If you like to keep your rugs in good condition by removing surface dirt fairly frequently, you'll be interested to know that at least one dry cleaning product, intended for home use, acts as a moth-proofing agent as well. It comes in two forms, one of them a foam, and the other a clear liquid. Each is priced at $1.25 a quart, and full directions are on the bottle.

Another product in the foam class, and which, its makers claim, contains no ether, ammonia, or naphtha, cleans not only rugs, but upholsteries, draperies, automobile upholstery, and felts, and canvas. It comes ready to use and will dry in about half an hour. A gallon of this foam will clean a couch, a couple of chairs, and several small rugs. You apply it with a sponge to upholstery, with a brush to rugs. It leaves no odor.

If you like a creamy liquid furniture polish, there's one that goes a long way because you use it sparingly, buffing with a flannel cloth before it has a chance to dry. It's good too for leather, and varnished and enameled surfaces, and for Venetian blinds. It's priced at 85 cents a pint, $1.50 a quart.

The Chicago Woman's club is to have an airman recently returned from the Pacific as its guest speaker today in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. He is Lt. Paul S. Carroll Jr., bomber navigator, veteran of 81 combat missions, 49 of which were bombing raids. Since he will talk on the work of the WAC in combat areas, the club has invited young women interested in WAC recruitment to attend. The meeting is set for 11 a. m. On one mission Lt. Carroll saved the life of the co-pilot of his plane after the airman had been gravely wounded.

Thos. F. Beade, 1617 W. 80th st., Chicago—Cut thru sides of wax milk container top, turn back, and use for garbage. When full, press back top. You can save all newspapers and wrapping paper that you've been using to wrap garbage in for the war effort if you use these containers.

Mrs. Ernest H., Elgin—Our basement game room had concrete walls which had been painted. They looked well but the room was certainly noisy with its hard walls and ceilings, as well as floors. So we hung some fairly oldish draperies on walls, put some rugs on floor, and lined ceiling with insulating sheet. No more "echoes" nor undue noise now.

Mrs. Harry A., Des Moines, Ia.—I soak all my family's handkerchiefs in a salt water solution before laundering. I soak them half an hour, using a tablespoonful of salt to a quart of water. I keep a special bowl for this purpose. It's worth while as a hygienic measure.

Danger of Training Veterans for Already Crowded Fields Told

A warning against training returned war veterans for fields already overcrowded was sounded yesterday by Mary P. Corre, director of counseling, Cincinnati, O., public schools, at the eighth annual guidance and personnel work conference at Northwestern university. Her topic was "The Study of Occupational Information."

"Mistakes made by the government after World War I should not be repeated," Miss Corre said. "The education of returned veterans ought not to be undertaken without careful survey of the anticipated human needs. Our human resources will be wasted if we train individuals without first accurately determining whether society is going to need them after they are trained. In formulating any educational post-war program there should be taken into account such variant factors as the size of the merchant marine, industrial inventions, tariff laws, and the expansion of commercial aviation."

WALDORF TO HEAD ALL-STAR COACHES' STAFF

CUBS AND WYSE MEET DODGERS AT HOME TODAY

Plan to Renew Bid for 1st Division.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Charley Grimm's Cubs, who made the mistake of stopping in Pittsburgh where they were hoodwinked out of an 11 game winning streak in trade for a two game streak on the losing side last Sunday, will launch a new assault in Wrigley field today against the eastern clubs they found so helpful during their recent tour.

First of the callers in a quartet of series embracing four games apiece will be Leo Durocher's Dodgers who are making a gallant fight to remain in eighth place. Leo's hapless baseball artists can't say the Cubs haven't helped them maintain their cellar rights. The Chicagoans have thumped them 12 times in 15 games and will endeavor to continue the treatment during the next four days.

Headed for 2d Place?

Chances for the Cubs to resume their fancy climbing that will carry them to one of the spots that pays off in world series' cash are better than bright because the remainder of the league, the Cardinals excepted, doesn't seem to be especially snappy by comparison. It was this comparison, touched on here or there, while the Cubs were in that 11 game streak, that induced most of the foreign baseball writers to proclaim that Boss Grimm should be able to hole up in second place before winter arrives.

Grimm's big worry now is that injuries might creep into the picture. The Cubs have had a few mishaps to regulars but to date the revised infield has hung together amazingly well. Any disturbance there would be serious because of a scarcity of suitable reserves.

Hank Wyse will operate against the Dodgers today, leaving Claude Passeau and Bill Fleming for the second and third games of the series. By that time Bob Chipman will be ready for another job of southpawing his former Brooklyn associates into submission.

Lose Exhibition Game.

Al Piechota, a former National league pitcher, yielded only two hits to a makeshift Cubs' array last night and the Michigan City Cubs gained a 5 to 2 exhibition game victory before 6,000 in Michigan City.

One big inning, the seventh, was all the Michigan City club needed to score all of its runs on six hits and a walk with 10 men facing Mack Stewart. Piechota struck out nine Cubs, Bill Nicholson being a victim three times.

SOX OPEN IN BOSTON

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Six weeks ago today the White Sox pranced out against the Red Sox in the first game of their second eastern invasion. They were in second place, only four games behind the leading St. Louis Browns.

This afternoon the White Sox again will prance, or shuffle, onto the field in Boston. This time they will start their final eastern invasion. Still back of the Browns, also the Red Sox, Yankees, and Tigers.

On that trip, which started six weeks ago today, the Sox lost 14 and won 6. In the second division and three games under the .500 mark, the Chicagoans may be able to do a little better, tho it's tough they have to start the jaunt against the Red Sox and Tex Hughson. The Red Sox, you know, have whipped our in-and-outers 12 out of 14. Hughson has spanked 'em four times.

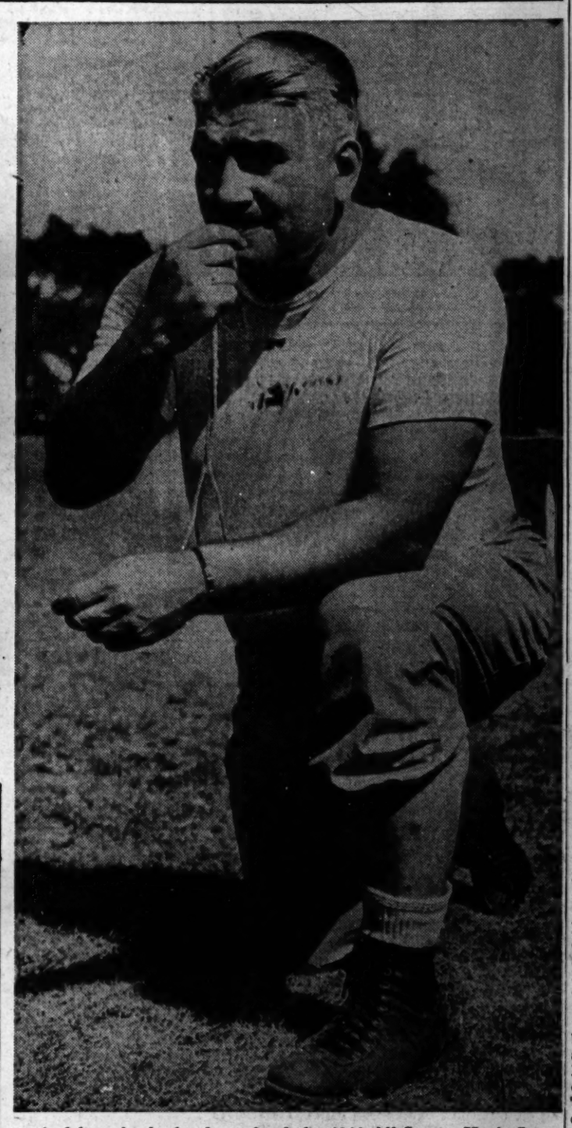
Call at Six Cities.

The White Sox haven't won in Boston in seven tries this year. There is no special reason to believe they will not continue to fall on their faces this afternoon and during the current four game series, but they could win. Orval Grove beat 'em, 5 to 4, in Chicago on July 19 and Buck Ross turned the trick, 5 to 3, two days later. That by the way, was Ross' only victory of the season.

The Sox, on this trip, will visit all four of the eastern American league cities, also Cleveland and Detroit. They have not had a postponement in the east this year.

THEY'RE ALL THINKING OF ONE DATE—AUG. 30

The first contingent of Chicago Bears gathers in the Palmer House to leave for their Collegeville (Ind.) training camp yesterday. Coaches Luke Johnsos (right) and Paddy Driscoll (second from right) remind the professional champions that when they return to Chicago it will be to meet the College All-Stars in the 11th annual charity game the night of Aug. 30. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



And here is the head coach of the 1944 All-Stars. He is Lynn Waldorf, veteran Northwestern chief, whose appointment completes the board of strategy. His aids will be Bo McMillin of Indiana, Henry Frnka of Tulsa, and Jeff Cravath of Southern California.

SALLY SESSIONS TAKES WOMEN'S AMATEUR MATCH

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The defending champion and the medalist will be very much around this afternoon at 2 o'clock when the second round of match play in the 44th Women's Western Amateur Golf tournament begins at Lake Forest's Onwentsia club. So will 14 other talented ladies, but absent from the playing premises will be a number of stars, including one of the 1943 semi-finalists, a co-medalist of last summer, and one of the quarter-finalists.

Sally Sessions, the industrious Muskegon, Mich., girl who ran off with the qualifying medal Monday, thanks to a record 74, moved along with a 7 and 5 victory over Mrs. Thomas Nolan of Newcastle, Pa. Sally was over the first nine in 40, two over par, for a six up advantage at the turn. She played in for a 78, three over Onwentsia's full par.

Plays Miss Wall Today.

This afternoon Miss Sessions meets the 1943 runner-up, Mary Agnes Wall, a fellow Wolverine from Menominee. Mary Agnes gained the second round by eliminating Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 3 and 2.

Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia, winner of last year's title and runner-up for the 1944 open crown, had a sorry finish in Monday's medal play test. She more than adjusted that error yesterday by the manner of her 6 and 5 conquest of young Carol Clark of Cincinnati. The correction took the form of birdies on the first four holes. She had another at the eighth, and managed to finish the nine five up with a 37, one under par.

Ann Casey Eliminated.

Miss Germain's second round opponent today will be 23 year old Jean

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE fieldhouse at St. Joseph's college, Collegeville, Ind., where the Chicago will train for the All-Star game on Aug. 30, was dedicated on Dec. 7, 1941, the day the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor. . . . Dominic Dallessandro of the Cubs, who is called Dal by the fans, signs his first name Del on admirers' score cards. . . . Pitcher Japhet [Red] Lynn never uses that unusual first name. . . . He calls himself Jim. . . . The slender right hander is a brakeman on the Santa Fe railroad, his run being from Galveston, in south Texas, to Temple, in the northeast part of the Lone Star state. . . . Manager Charley Grimm was 100 per cent lefty on the ball field, throwing and batting, but he's orthodox in the autograph league, signing his name in fine Spencerian flourish with his right hand. . . . Wally Muelder, who starred for the Illinois Normal football team, is pitching winning games for the United States Naval academy these days. . . . In a recent 11 inning game with Villanova he struck out 15, yielded only four hits, and walked one to triumph, 5 to 4. . . . The Kearns Field Eagles won the Utah semi-pro baseball championship with the aid of Pitcher Hooks Iott of the St. Louis Browns, Catcher Frank Lamanna of the Cincinnati Reds, and Infielder Johnny Sturm of the New York Yankees. . . . In clinching the title the Eagles hung up their 24th victory in 25 starts and their 21st in a row. . . . Now they are seeking permission to compete in the National semi-pro tournament in Wichita, Kas. . . . High school students in Rock Springs, Wyo., chipped in nickels and dimes to make up a pool of $135, which they sent to Bob Zuppke and ordered two of his paintings. . . . It pleased Zup so much he wrapped up the two paintings and sent them, with the $135, to Rock Springs.

Jittery Joe Berry, the Athletics' relief pitcher, throws practically every toss known to the profession, including sliders, twisters, jug handle curves, and half speed balls. . . . Bucky Walters believes, along with a lot of other experts, that young Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants staff is destined to become one of the finest pitchers in the National league. . . . When the Reds are in New York or the Giants are in Crosley field Bucky takes the kid aside and instructs him in the use of his famous sinker pitch. . . . The Daniel Field [Georgia] Flyers' baseball team has won 39 games while losing six. . . . Thirteen of the victories were pitched by Chubby Dean and 12 by Pete Center. . . . Both belong to the Cleveland Indians. . . . Bill Posedel, who pitched for the Boston Braves, is nearing completion of three years' service as chief of a navy gun crew in Pacific waters.

Last Stand.

All right, old girl in the mirror there,
So here we go again,
I look pretty much my right age tonight
With those wrinkles from 'way back when;
Well, this new jar of cream ought to doctor them up,
That is, if the lights aren't too bright,
And La Belle did a pretty fair job on my hair,
It really looks almost all right.

Listen, you there in the looking glass,
I'm tired as the deuce tonight,
Wait! Are those crowsfeet under my eyes?
Well, I can camouflage them all right;
But what's the use? The wide eyed babes
Always walk off with the prize,
Sure, I'm witty and half way smart,
But who wants a femme that's wise?

Okay, old girl in the mirror there,
Chin up, abas the dead pan,
One more try, tomorrow we die,
But tonight we may meet that man!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

49 BEARS, WITH STARS IN MIND, HEAD FOR CAMP

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Old faces were far outnumbered by new faces yesterday when the Chicago Bears left the loop for their new training camp at St. Joseph's college in Collegeville, Ind., to prepare for their fifth College All-Star adventure the night of Aug. 30 in Northwestern's Dyche stadium.

The coaches and club officials, after a rapid count, decided 49 athletes were in the party which left at 5 p. m., on the Monon. Eight other Bears, most of them veterans, were due to go direct from their homes to St. Joseph's, giving the National league champions 57 individuals, thought to be a record number ever taken to training camp. A 58th would be Ensign Sid Luckman, but the Bears still are waiting to hear whether he will be available.

Brumbaugh Comes Back.

Even the Bears' coaching staff took on added proportions with the somewhat belated announcement that Carl Brumbaugh, former Bear quarter back, has been signed. It will be Brumbaugh's task to work with the quarter backs. He joins the two co-coaches, Luke Johnsos and Heartly [Hunk] Anderson, and Paddy Driscoll, coach of the half backs.

Ray McLean, the speedy half back, showed up in top condition after having played baseball in the east.

There Are Some Veterans.

Veteran tackles who were in the squad are Al Babartsky and Al Hoptowit. Dom Sigillo is one of those due later at St. Joseph's. The Bears held little hope that Bill Steinkemper would play this year. Only veteran ends in the group were George Wilson and Connie Mack Berry.

Twice a day workouts will begin this morning. The following players made up the traveling squad:

ENDS—Connie Mack Berry; Elmo L. Kelly, Wichita university; Hilliard Long, University of Washington; Joseph Neff, Piqua High school; Louis Rosanova, St. Ignatius High, Chicago; Rudolph Smeja, University of Michigan; George Wilson.

TACKLES—Al Barbartsky; Marion Di Maggio, Duquoin, Ill., High; Al Hoptowit; Walter Kuhn, Naperville High; James McClowry, Wilson Junior college.

GUARDS—Ed Bannon, University of Minnesota; Al Kleinhans, Knox college; George Zorich, Northwestern; Mike Zabinski, Chicago; Andrew Grant, Purdue; Joe Locallo, Waller High; Paul Podmajeraky, Illinois.

CENTERS—Robert Moses, University of Wisconsin; Fred Mundee; Darwin Seeley, Stanford; John Wiatrak, University of Washington.

QUARTER BACKS—Al Gryzo, University of South Carolina; William Glenn, Charleston [Ill.] State Teachers; John A. Long, Colgate; William H. McWilliam, University of Iowa.

HALF BACKS—Wallace Baucke, York Community High; James Dougherty, University of Miami, Fla.; Edward Gawel, University of Illinois; Harley Greenich, University of Mississippi; Duke Jacobs, University of Maryland; Henry Margarita, Brown university; Tip Mooney, Abilene Christian; Ray McLean; William Petrilas, Wilmington Clippers; William Phillips, De Paul; Ray Quaglia, De Paul; Louis Sink, Purdue; James Trebbin, St. Olaf; Ralph Wagner, Macomb [Ill.] Teachers; Harold Kopp, South Dakota State.

FULL BACKS—Gary Famiglietti; James E. Fordham, University of Georgia; Bernie Gerrard, Oak Park High; Doug McEnulty; Frank Paldina, Indiana; Dave Pate, Stanford; Ed Simonich, Notre Dame.

Where no school is listed, player was with Bears last year.

HAMBLETONIAN TODAY DRAWS 11 TROTTING STARS

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—The Hambletonian, blue ribbon event of light harness horse racing, returns home tomorrow with a Kansas owned but Kentucky bred filly, Yankee Maid, the odds-on choice to take down the major share of the $34,427 purse.

After a year's sojourn in metropolitan New York, the classic of all trotting stakes again will be raced in the county fair atmosphere of Good Time park's triangular shaped track as 11 hand picked 3 year olds match speed and stamina before a crowd that may reach 20,000.

If the Jayhawk filly takes down the winner's purse of $18,467 she'll be the first of her sex to do it since Henry Thomas drove Shirley Hanover to victory in 1937.

Yankee Maid's principal opposition is expected to come from Enac, W. H. Cane's hope of getting into the money in his own race for the first time since he won with Walter Dear in 1929, and Gibson White's Rose Dean, a speedy but erratic filly.

The others figure to be in the race only with the hopes of getting at least one of the six monies. They are Octave Blake's Foster Hanover and Joseph F. Burke's Fighting Scot of Plainfield, N. J.; Mrs. James B. Johnson Jr.'s Rapid Hanover of Rochester, Mich.; Walter J. Michael's Eva's Boy of Bucyrus, O.; C. W. Phellis' Emily Scott of Greenwich, Conn.; W. N. Reynolds' Betsy Babcock of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Princess Juliana from Mrs. E. P. Wilkinson's Wilkco farms of Logansport, Ind., and Aaron F. Williams' Ruth's Day of Corning, N. H.

BY ARCH WARD.

Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern university will direct the College All-Stars against the Chicago Bears in Chicago's 11th annual charity football game the night of Aug. 30.

He and his assistants—Bo McMillin of Indiana, Jeff Cravath of Southern California and Henry Frnka of Tulsa—will take charge Saturday of 71 players, the largest squad in the history of the All-Star series.

"Selection as head coach of the All-Stars is the greatest honor that can come to a football coach," Waldorf said last night. "I appreciate the opportunity to serve in that capacity and I'll give every ounce of energy I possess to make this game as successful for the collegians as the one they enjoyed last year in whipping the Washington Redskins, 27 to 7.

Praises 1944 Squad.

"The squad which THE TRIBUNE has assembled is remarkable in view of war conditions. It probably is as strong as any other in this spectacular series. There is no finer evidence of the prestige of the game among this generation of college players than the willingness of so many boys in service to spend their leaves and furloughs in the All-Star camp. I am happy to work with the other coaches who have been chosen by THE TRIBUNE and we'll give our best efforts to develop a team that will maintain the fine traditions of the enterprise.

"This is the ninth All-Star squad with which I have been connected," Waldorf added. "I have valued the association with hundreds of fine young men who now are scattered over the world serving their country. Getting a team ready to beat the Chicago Bears always is a tremendous assignment. Despite their losses, the Bears will have at least one lineup to send against us that will be as tough as any the All-Stars have faced. However, I'm sure that the capacity crowd in Dyche stadium the night of Aug. 30 will see another thrilling chapter added to the greatest sports spectacle of our time."

It's a Football Family

"Pappy" Waldorf, as he is affectionately known to his friends, is the eldest of four sons of the late Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf of the Methodist church. All the brothers played football in college and three of them became coaches after graduation.

Waldorf learned football under Chick Meehan at Syracuse, where he was rated an All-American tackle in addition to lettering in crew. He majored in philosophy and sociology and was considering a business career when offered the position of football coach at Oklahoma City university.

The first coaching venture of the boss man of the All-Stars proved a good training ground. Lynn fell heir to a team that had not won a game in its conference in four years. In his three year tenure the school won 19, lost 9, and tied 3. His next move was the University of Kansas, where he served as line coach for a year.

Brings Aggies to Front.

In 1929 Waldorf was appointed head coach at Oklahoma A. and M., where he remained five years, during which span he rejuvenated the Aggies' sagging football fortunes. His teams won two conference championships and four state titles. A record of 34 victories, 10 defeats and seven ties attest to his success at that base.

Waldorf's next move was to Kansas State, where in 1934 he succeeded Bo McMillin, who had transferred to Indiana. In his only year there, Kansas State won the Big Six conference championship for the first time, a record which resulted in his appointment to Northwestern.

Col. Frank, Yale Football Star, Back from War

Lt. Col. Clinton E. Frank, 28, twice an All-American football player and captain of the 1937 Yale team, returned to his home in Wilmette yesterday after two years of active service as executive officer of heavy bombardment groups stationed in Africa and Italy.

Lt. Col. Frank.

As modest as he was about his prowess as a football star, Col. Frank dismissed his exploits as a soldier with a smile. "Everybody lived and worked the same way," he said. "What I did or saw was no different than any infantryman or airplane mechanic."

He participated in the invasions of Africa and Italy and did special work with the army bomber command on new tactics. His leave will be spent with his wife, Frances, and daughter, Marcia, 2, in their home at 2232 Beechwood av., Wilmettte.

TWILIGHT TEAR LOSES TO VIENNA IN TURF UPSET

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—William Woodward's Vienna sprang one of the turf's biggest upsets today, coming from behind in the stretch to beat the odds on favorite, Twilight Tear, by three-quarters of a length in the Alabama stakes, feature race of the day in the Saratoga meeting at Belmont Park.

The unexpected defeat for Twilight Tear, 1 to 20 in the betting, halted her winning streak at 11.

Vienna, previously beaten by Twilight Tear in the Coaching Club Oaks at Belmont on May 27, covered the mile and one-quarter in 2:03 3-5 and paid $18.20.

32,000 OFF JOB AS ADDITIONAL STRIKES START

Gen. Motors Units Tied Up Again.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Five Detroit plants of General Motors Chevrolet Gear and Axle division, active for one day after an 11 day strike, were idle last night with no assurance of an early resumption of production despite a new back to work order from the regional war labor board.

Renewal of the Chevrolet walkout plus a strike at two plants of Wright Aeronautical corporation increased to approximately 32,000 the number of workers idle thruout the United States and Canada. More than 2,700 workers in the Fair Lawn and Paterson, N. J., plants of the aircraft maker remained off production lines to protest the transfer of workers to jobs in lower labor grades.

Carry Fight to Washington.

In Detroit leaders of the CIO United Automobile workers, dissatisfied with the WLB order because it failed to direct the reinstatement of seven employes, discharged for instigating the walkout, said they would carry their fight to the national WLB.

Vice President Walter P. Reuther of the UAW-CIO, 7,000 of whose members were again idle, said the union would make a formal appeal to WLB to override the regional board's directive.

The original strike was precipitated by the laying off of six men in a dispute over production rates. The plants make parts for Pratt & Whitney aircraft engines.

Five More Plants Periled.

An army ordnance spokesman, who warned that the previous strike affected five General Motors plants in other cities, said those plants faced early shutdowns because of lack of parts. The plants, producing aircraft engines, tanks, truck parts, and other war materials, are in Tonawanda, N. Y.; Pontiac, Mich.; Norwood, O.; Atlanta, Ga., and St. Louis, Mo.

Nearly 5,000 over the road truck drivers remained on strike in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, Des Moines, and six other Iowa cities in a strike which leaders of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters said was unauthorized.

At Washington, D. C., William Wilson, president, and Lou Hosking, secretary, of the Midwest Operators association, representatives of the affected truck lines, saw "little or no hope" of ending the walkout and contended the office of economic stabilization had failed to complete an implied bargain with the lines.

"Financial Relief" Implied.

The trucking spokesmen said OES officials after approving an increased wage scale for the drivers ordered by the WLB told the operators they realized the lines must be given "some kind of financial relief" by the government to permit them to comply. Refusal of the operators to meet the increased wage scale is the basis for the walkout.

At Shenandoah, Pa., John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, ordered 4,000 striking miners of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company to return to their jobs at once after six weeks of idleness and termed the walkout a "flagrant violation" of the union's word.

At Harrisburg, Pa., a strike involving 774 employes of the Pennsylvania Truck Lines in York, Lancaster, and Harrisburg entered its third day despite a statement from the WLB that the walkout affected shipment of vital war material and "must be terminated immediately." The Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, and Helpers [AFL] asked its members to return to work.

CASH INCREASED, SECURITIES SOLD BY ATLAS CORP.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Large sales from its stock portfolio were reported today by Atlas corporation, an investing company, in a summary of operations in the first half of 1944.

Cash and United States government securities increased to $23,056,000 on June 30 from $10,313,000 on Dec. 31, 1943. Investments in the six months totaled $2,100,000.

The largest sale was of 57,337 shares of Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation preferred for $5,045,656, Atlas retaining its common stock in R-K-O.

Floyd Odlum, president, reported asset value per common share rose to $21.12 on June 30 from $19.01 six months earlier. He said also that Atlas reacquired 68,892 shares of its own common during the six months for $810,869, or an average of $12.69 a share.

Seek Change in Union Rule to Get Tires

Akron, O., Aug. 8 [Special].—War production board officials, who will confer here Thursday or Friday in an attempt to effect a 30 per cent increase in heavy tire production, are scheduled to propose a 90 day "moratorium" on union work practices said to be impeding peak production and to examine court records purporting to show that the union restrictions have been enforced by a terror campaign.

L. R. Boulware, WPB chairman in Washington, D. C., said today he and two vice chairmen, Joseph D. Keenan and Clinton S. Golden, would confer with representatives of tire companies and the CIO United Rubber workers.

Emergency Measures Sought.

The emergency measures, which Boulware said should remedy the "alarming" shortage of big tires for army, navy, bus, and truck use, are:

[1] That seniority rules be changed to permit transfer of strong men workers from light passenger car tires to truck tires without losing their seniority, and [2] that informal individual production "quotas," regardless of ability, be dropped temporarily to encourage larger output. The pay would be increased proportionately.

The WPB officials will examine records of rubber workers convicted and sentenced to jail for beating fellow workers who ignored union restrictions in attempts to increase tire production.

Eight Workers Sentenced.

Eight union workers in the Firestone Tire and Rubber company began serving six months jail sentences June 28 for assault and battery on Raymond L. Elliott, 40, who refused to slow his production of army tires to the union limit. For a time, the machines formerly used by the eight men stood idle because other workers refused to operate them.

A union committeeman was sentenced last March to one to 10 years in the Mansfield reformatory for falsifying testimony in a trial in which he was acquitted of assault with intent to kill Robert Konstand, 22, foreman, who tried to increase production of self-sealing airplane tanks. Last month the 9th District appellate court affirmed the verdict. A worker in Konstand's department pleaded guilty to taking part in the assault and is awaiting sentence.

WPB BROADENS BASIS FOR ADDED PAPER SUPPLIES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—Extraordinary increases in circulation and population will be recognized in granting appeals from newspapers for extra supplies of newsprint under a new code of appeals standards made available today by WPB.

Where the average circulation of a newspaper in the second quarter of 1943 was more than 10 per cent larger than its average circulation for the year 1942, WPB ruled that the newsprint allotment could be increased "to the extent of such circulation increase in excess of 10 per cent." A newspaper need not show that a population increase in its trading area also took place.

Relief is also provided, by a more complicated formula, where there has been an extraordinary growth in population in the trading area since Dec. 31, 1942, accompanied by a circulation increase.

Additional adjustment shall be made, WPB ruled, for newspapers in trading areas whose population has gone up more than 50 per cent since the census of 1940, "In order to maintain adequate newspaper service in the trading area."

COURT UPHOLDS WAR POWER TO CUT ROYALTIES

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP).—The Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld unanimously today the constitutionality of the royalty adjustment act of 1942, which gave government war agencies authority to reduce or cancel royalty rates paid to patent owners on material sold to the government for the prosecution of the war.

Court attaches said the decision was the first on the law's validity. The ruling came in patent litigation involving the Alma Motor company and the Timken-Detroit Axle company of Detroit.

Confirm Hinckley as War Contract Settlement Chief

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—The nomination of Robert H. Hinckley, Ogden, Utah, as director of contract settlement in the office of war mobilization for a two year term was approved today by the senate.

WARNS CAPITAL IS REQUIRED TO GIVE VETS JOBS

Lift Trade Shackles, Dr. Haake Urges.

The committee for economic development errs in saying business under present conditions can create jobs after the war for returning soldiers and sailors, Dr. Alfred P. Haake, economist and president of the Executives club, asserted last night. Addressing the annual banquet of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers in the Palmer House, Dr. Haake asserted that business cannot create the jobs unless some way is found to encourage capital investment.

Under present conditions, because of the curbs that have been placed on free enterprise and the profit system, capital investment is yielding only 0.10 per cent return on average, he said. For each new job created, $3,000 must be invested, and approximately 25 million jobs must be found after the war.

Must Create Income.

The jobs must be the kind that support themselves and create income, said Dr. Haake. Government made jobs do not create income, and merely necessitate more and more taxes, he added.

Dr. Haake assailed the New Deal doctrine that the country has more than it needs, the "exhausted frontiers and mature economy" policy, which contends that the only problem left is one of distribution. Undreamed of new fields in industry have yet to be explored, he said, and "any one who believes we're thru and need government control of distribution is subscribing to the Nazi way of thinking."

America will have to make major adjustments after the war that could have been insignificant, had the country been led by economical instead of political thinking, he maintained.

Vast Debt Unnecessary.

"The war debt could have been that way," he said. "Look at Russia. She didn't have to bribe her people to do what they ought to do anyhow. If we had early in the war changed to a six day week, and obtained more work per man per hour, our vast debt could have been averted. We will pay after the war for the things we didn't have the courage to do before and during the war."

The danger of inflation, such as Germany experienced after World War I., still is present, Dr. Haake asserted, saying that 90 million dollars more is in circulation than should be under safe standards.

PACKARD MOTOR EARNINGS CLIMB FOR HALF YEAR

Packard Motor Car company had a profit of $2,151,737 in the first half of 1944, compared with $1,974,488 in the corresponding period last year, George T. Christopher, president and general manager, reported yesterday. Post-war reserves were increased to 3½ million dollars.

"A 69 per cent larger output of Rolls-Royce aircraft and Packard marine engines combined to increase our dollar volume 44 per cent for 1944's first half," he said. "Business was $231,117,176, compared with $160,622,308 last year."

People and Events

Edward J. Connors.

Edward J. Connors, on leave from the Union Pacific railroad of which he is operating vice president, yesterday was appointed assistant director of the office of defense transportation in charge of railway transport. He will replace Henry F. McCarthy, who resigned to return to the Boston and Maine and Maine Central railroads as passenger traffic manager.

Thomas J. Deegan has been named director of public information for American Airlines, succeeding Buell A. Patterson, who will take up other duties in the company. Deegan will make his headquarters at the company's executive offices in New York City.

Lawrence E. Apitz was named sales control manager for United Air Lines at Chicago.

THE PUBLIC UTILITY INDUSTRY as a field of sound investment was early recognized by this organization. Over a thirty-seven year period, it has participated as an original underwriter in 979 bond, note, and debenture issues of public utility operating companies. The aggregate principal amount of such issues is in excess of 7.1 billion dollars.

Plans for U.S. Liberty Ships Worry British

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The danger of the United States dumping surplus Liberty ships abroad at low prices while maintaining a powerful merchant navy herself, thereby depriving Britain of its pre-war shipping supremacy, is one of the major problems which will be debated by the house of commons after its summer recess.

Conferences already are being held by government departments, shipping employers organizations, and trade unions regarding post-war problems but so far no decisions have been reached.

Hugh Chevins, an industrial expert who has just completed a tour of ship yards on the northeast coast and in Scotland, said today that as to future international, political, and economic relations prevent definite planning.

"What About U. S. Ships?"

Reporting the views expressed by ship owners, trade union leaders, workers, and government officials, Chevins said all maintained that the dominant factor would be the "use the United States intends to make of between 2,000 and 2,500 Liberty ships they will have for disposal after the war."

American tonnage, it was estimated, jumped to nearly 50 million from about 12 million in pre-war days. One authoritative estimate, said Chevins, is that Britain's available mercantile tonnage at the end of the war will be about 10 million.

"United States Liberty ships will be of unquestionable value in the immediate post-war period for transporting food and other commodities to liberated countries," he added. "But concern is felt about the terms of American arrangements with other countries for the use of ships and if the vessels are sold to countries in urgent need of shipping at low prices British shipyards are certain to be affected."

Want No Reparations Ships.

Apart from worries over American shipping plans some concern is expressed here regarding what is described as "reparations" ships.

A spokesman of one group of shipyard workers is quoted as saying "we want no more of them. After the last war we took over two great German liners which became the Berengaria and the Majestic. With the exception of a few special ships we built no comparable ocean liners until the Queen Mary in 1936. Thus reparations had a direct effect on shipyards and on our employment."

SHORT COVERING CHECKS SLIDE IN GRAIN MARKETS

Several rallies, attributed largely to short covering, yesterday almost offset bearish sentiment arising in grain markets from the extended advances of allied armies in Europe. Wheat futures resisted selling pressure to close ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel higher on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Oats and rye recovered a large part of their losses after dropping to seasonal lows in early trade. Oats finished unchanged to ⅜ cent lower. Rye closed ¼ cent higher to ½ cent lower after selling down 1¼ cents. Barley was unchanged to ½ cent lower.

At its low level this week September wheat was off 18¼ cents from its recent peak, with the break checked by buying of cash grain by the Commodity Credit corporation. September oats has broken 10¾ cents; rye, 31⅞ cents, and barley 15½ cents from seasonal highs.

Business Failures Drop to Only 15 During Week

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Industrial and commercial failures totaled 15 for the week ended Aug. 3, a drop of four from the preceding week and less than one-third of the 51 in the corresponding week a year ago, Dun and Bradstreet reported today.

JULY AND 7 MONTH DIVIDEND PAYMENTS EXCEED 1943 FIGURES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—Cash dividends in the United States amounted to 340.9 million dollars in July, compared with 334.1 million in July, 1943, the commerce department reported today. The total for the first seven months of 1944 was 1 billion 979 million, a 3 per cent increase over a year earlier.

Manufacturing corporations disbursed 974 millions in dividends in the seven months, 6 per cent over last year. Payments by the automobile industry rose 27 per cent, oil refining 12 per cent, and paper and printing 7 per cent. No other group reported an increase exceeding 6 per cent. Textiles and leather, iron and steel, and machinery [except electrical] showed minor declines. Mining payments were up 8 per cent and miscellaneous industries 18 per cent.

Railroad dividends rose 5 per cent. Payments by electric light and power companies declined 5 per cent.

Deliver First Morse Diesel Train Engine

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 8.—Fairbanks, Morse & Co.'s first diesel-electric railroad locomotive, exemplifying the conversion of an instrument of war into an implement of peace, was unveiled today in a brief ceremony viewed by approximately 5,000 persons, including industrial leaders from Chicago and other cities and government officials.

The brightly painted orange and gray locomotive, driven by the same mighty engine which powers the newest United States navy submarines, was christened by Mrs. J. T. Gillick, wife of the chief operating officer of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. Its cost was estimated at $90,000.

Built for Milwaukee Road.

R. H. Morse Jr., general sales manager of Fairbanks Morse, substituting for Col. Robert H. Morse, president, formally presented the new power unit, No. 1802, to the railroad. The locomotive will be put into switching service immediately.

Congratulatory messages were delivered by Gov. Goodland of Wisconsin, and Lt. Gov. Cross of Illinois. Both officials commended the company for its foresight and business judgment.

The company, which is more than 100 years old and employs more than 7,000 workers in its Beloit and subsidiary plants, builds its new engines in 2,000 horse power sections, so constructed that three can be coupled together to form a 6,000 horse power locomotive.

Uses Exclusive Design.

Its diesel engines are exclusive in design with two pistons operating opposite each other in each cylinder. They are powered by the same combustion chamber charge. This saves space and weight and each cylinder does the work of two, company officials said.

For a time the navy took the entire output of Fairbanks, Morse diesel engines. In recent months, however, it has been possible for the company to divert a few engines for locomotive construction. The company said it took this opportunity to translate its post-war blueprints into action to be ready to manufacture diesel powered locomotives on a large scale as soon as submarine engine needs no longer require full scale operation.

THE RAILROADS IN POST-WAR

What's Ahead for the Carriers?

• Few industries have benefitted from the war as have the railroads. Peak earnings have been used to a substantial degree in debt reduction and in supporting finances.

• We have just published a review of these changes and the outlook for the railroad earnings with emphasis on their post-war prospects. Atlantic Coast Line, B. & O., Erie, Great Northern, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, I. LATE SELLING WAVE FORCES STOCKS LOWER

Low Priced Issues Fail to Hold Gains.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Another early bulge in low priced stocks, mainly motors, met selling opposition in the final hour in today's stock market and initial gains of fractions to a point were trimmed or converted into losses in many cases at the close.

Accounts were unloaded by many customers on the belief recent active purchasing of the junior issues on reports of merger discussions, new capital, and bright post-war prospects may have been overdone. Talk of a large investment trust entering Graham-Paige, was denied and this stock, fastest sprinter of the last week, dipped ¾. Hupp Motors, after touching a high for 1944, ended down ¼ at 5⅛.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.2 at 54.1. When transfers expanded toward the finish, dealings totaled 1,270,810 shares compared with 1,071,960 yesterday.

Buying sentiment was propped to some extent by another climb in the stock exchange short interest to 1,327,641 shares as of July 31, largest since May, 1938.

RAILS LEAD BONDS UP.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Altho bond market prices and volume improved today, the rise was selective and trading remained below recent average sessions. Rails made the best showing, many ending with advances of fractions to a point. Investment rated industrials and utilities were steady under quiet demand from institutional investors. United States government securities were mostly unchanged.

Sales of $6,189,500 compared with $4,725,900 yesterday. Only six individual issues had turnover over $100,000 and the results were mixed. Milwaukee 5s and adjustment 5s both ended lower after having held unchanged or a little ahead most of the day.

CHICAGO SHARES DECLINE.

Prices were lower yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in increased volume of 40,000 shares. Among volume leaders were Hupp Motor Car, which closed at 4⅞, down ⅝, after reaching a 1944 peak of 6; Aviation corporation, up ⅜; Chicago corporation, unchanged, and New York Central, down ⅛. Butler Brothers preferred closed at a new 1944 high of 29¾, up ¼.

ALL HOGS POUND AT CEILINGS, THO RECEIPTS CLIMB

Farmers sent more hogs to market yesterday but broad demand absorbed all offerings at the highest prices permitted by the office of price administration. Packers are being pressed for delivery of more pork for lend-lease and, with production below last year's August tonnage, buyers fought for volume.

All good hogs weighing 150 to 240 pounds sold at the $14.75 ceiling for stock weighing 240 pounds and below, and the $14.00 top for heavier hogs was paid for almost all swine over 240 pounds.

Heavier selling of cattle swelled receipts at 20 markets to 74,000, against 57,000 a week earlier and 58,000 a year ago. After a steady opening on best grades of steers, with $18 the top, the market for all classes broke 15 to 25 cents.

Steady prices were paid for most of the lambs offered.

20 E. Delaware Building Modernization Planned

Fifty thousand dollars will be spent modernizing the 16 story 20 E. Delaware pl. building as soon as federal restrictions are removed, Julius J. Schwartz, attorney, and a member of the syndicate which purchased the property for $327,500, said yesterday. The Maryland hotel, east of and adjoining No. 20, was not involved in the purchase of the latter, as was first reported.

Yank Trucks Assembled in Norman Field

BY GRAHAM MILLER.
[Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY, Aug. 8.—An important factor in United States troops' big sweep on the Brittany peninsula is the typical American production line which has been started under sheltering poplars in what until three weeks ago was just another Norman field.

Here an army ordnance unit has been charged with the task of assembling 2½ ton trucks from parts contained in boxes sent from the United States via the United Kingdom. In the open, without protection against the luftwaffe, the men of this unit have instituted a production line off which complete trucks roll ready for battle.

Symbol of American Energy.

Along several hundred square miles of allied front nothing was more symbolic of American energy than this unit's effort. It was so typically American, the calm, unhurried efficiency of it, the almost unnatural way in which each of these dusty G. I.'s knew his job and realized his part in the great job ahead.

Radio sets were rigged alongside production benches. Each flash of a new advance was greeted with excited comment. Wrenches seemed to work faster and trucks seemed almost to assemble of their own volition as news of success after success was received.

It's difficult to give an adequate report to some of you back in the United States who helped build these trucks of the reception they've been given by the boys of the ordnance corps in Normandy. But let me tell you none delays. The trucks which you have built or boxed are being reassembled in a manner which would please you. Within a short time after arriving in boxes they're roaring down the dusty Normandy roads headed for action.

French Happy to Work.

Also working were 90 Frenchmen. It was their first day of work as free men. For the menial tasks of breaking open cases and making themselves generally useful, they were being paid 2 cents an hour. These Frenchmen were the happiest I have seen in France.

"We weren't compelled to do this job," one of them said. "We volunteered and we are now able in a small way to help the liberation of our country."

The wreckage of a defeated country was represented in this field—old men with sinews creaking and school teachers, lawyers, and doctors clumsily handling unaccustomed tools, heartened by skilled G. I.s who spoke no French but who smiled encouragement.

Helping to supply the United States army with the trucks it needs were Lt. Col. Arthur Decker, Homewood, Ill., commander of the unit, Capt. Robert Voorhees, Cuba, N. Y., and Maj. Larry Doyle, Astoria, Queens, N. Y.

Am. Airlines Mail Total for Six Months Is Higher

Air mail handled thru Chicago by American Airlines in the first six months this year increased to 1,869,702 pounds from 1,335,680 a year earlier and air express poundage was 1,461,563 against 1,467,191 a year ago, J. Stuart Riordon, central cargo traffic manager, reported yesterday. He said trans-Atlantic flights under contract to the air transport command set a new high.

PEAK QUARTER BUSINESS DONE BY UNITED AIR

Four Chicago Firms Report Profits.

W. A. Patterson.

Four large Chicago companies engaged in widely different types of operations yesterday reported profits in the second quarter and first half of 1944. Two showed gains over corresponding 1943 periods.

United Air Lines had the largest operating revenues for any quarter in its history during the three months ended June 30. W. A. Patterson, president, said the gain to $8,577,853 from $6,940,707 a year earlier resulted from record equipment utilization and abnormal war time passenger-mail-express traffic.

Patterson warned stockholders, however, that "these extraordinary conditions cannot be expected to continue in the post-war period."

Profit Rises to $1.13 a Share.

Profit in the quarter rose to $1,814,754, equal to $1.13 a share, from $1,170,622, or 78 cents a share, a year earlier. Earnings in the quarter were favorably affected by a credit to expense accounts of $278,000, representing additional billings to the federal government for military contract services performed in 1943.

Patterson said United expected an immediate curtailment of its domestic military contract services for the air transport command, but would retain operations to Hawaii, the South Pacific, and Alaska.

More planes have been returned to the commercial air transport industry, he said, but many will not be ready for scheduled service until later this year. Nevertheless, United schedules on Aug. 1 called for approximately 7 per cent more daily miles than were flown at its pre-war peak with a much larger fleet.

Belden Reports Decrease.

Belden Manufacturing company had a half year profit of $169,088, equal to 70 cents per share, against $276,818, or $1.14 a share, a year earlier, Whipple Jacobs, president, announced. Sales amounted to $5,422,840, compared with $5,597,881 in the first half of 1943.

"Barring major changes in the war demand, the last six months should compare more favorably with the second half of last year than did the first six months," Jacobs said.

Henry M. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company, reported approximate consolidated profits in the six months ended June 30 were 6½ million dollars, equal to $1.14 per share, compared with $5,600,000, or 92 cents a share, a year earlier.

He said extensive new refinery facilities were put into full operation and that improved results in the second half of the year were expected.

Household Finance corporation's profit, in the first two quarters was $2,215,474, slightly below the $2,240,523 reported a year earlier. Customers' notes receivable on June 30 declined to $60,849,924 from $62,943,640 a year earlier, with gross income reduced $560,156.

TAX EXEMPTIONS ALTERED.

We should be pleased to know if the personal exemption provisions of the federal income tax law have been changed as applied to married couples filing separate returns.—W. B.

Answer: The individual income tax act of 1944 makes various changes in the exemptions. For computing the new 3 per cent normal tax [replacing the former Victory tax], there is allowed each taxpayer an exemption of $500. On a joint return by husband and wife this exemption is $1,000 unless the adjusted gross income of one spouse is less than $500, when the total exemption is limited to $500 plus the adjusted gross income of such spouse. The adjusted gross income is after certain authorized deductions.

For the surtax each person has an individual exemption of $500. There are further exemptions of $500 for wife or husband and of $500 for each dependent whose income is under $500. The surtax exemption for wife or husband, however, may be claimed [1] only in a joint return, or [2] in a separate return if the spouse has no gross income and is not a "dependent" of any other taxpayer.

Under prior law an exemption of $1,200 was allowed to married couples living together. This could be taken in a joint return, or in separate returns the entire exemption could be taken either by husband or wife or divided between them in any proportion.

Inasmuch as withholding tax deductions during the current year are based generally upon exemption certificates filed under the prior law, some adjustments will be necessary in many cases in individual returns for 1944 to conform to the new exemptions. Every employe must furnish his employer with a new withholding exemption certificate on or before Dec. 1, 1944. The forms have not yet been distributed.

U. S. Steel Banks Blast Furnace; Iron Not Needed

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP).—The United States Steel corporation announced today that its No. 8-1 blast furnace at Braddock, Pa., has been banked "for an indefinite period because the iron is not required." A company spokesman said the man power shortage has seriously affected steel finishing units and that it had been found imposible to process all the iron produced.

RED CIO LEADER DEMANDS PLANT FIRE HIS SIX FOES

Acts After Board Expels Them from Union.

Joseph Weber, graduate of the Lenin Training school in Moscow in strike violence strategy and other subversive tactics, climaxed his purge of six anti-Communist leaders from a CIO local at the International Harvester company yesterday with a demand that they be discharged at once from their jobs.

The expelled leaders were members of the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union and included Thomas Dublinski, former local president; William Godek, former financial secretary, and Robert Walsh, educational director.

Forces Board to Act.

Weber, who recently emerged from hiding as an "organizer" for the local's international parent union, forced a subservient executive board to expel the six on a charge they held "secret and illegal" meetings. A majority of the local's 5,500 members refused to indorse the board's action.

Weber's displeasure was aroused further, it was reported, because Dublinski attempted to enforce a limit of $2 on contributions to various Communist groups and because all six also objected that "too much soviet stuff" was being forced upon the local.

Arthur Peterson, recording secretary of the Weber dominated board, wrote to J. W. Philips, superintendent of the Harvester tractor works, where the six work, that they are no longer qualified to remain as employes because they are no longer members "in good standing" under the maintenance of membership clause of the local's contract.

Immediate Firing Blocked.

Philips replied that the future of the six would be considered according to the contract's grievance procedure and they would not be dismissed summarily.

Weber's record, dating from 1930 at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., shows that as a Communist labor dictator he has repeatedly been involved in strikes that led to serious clashes.

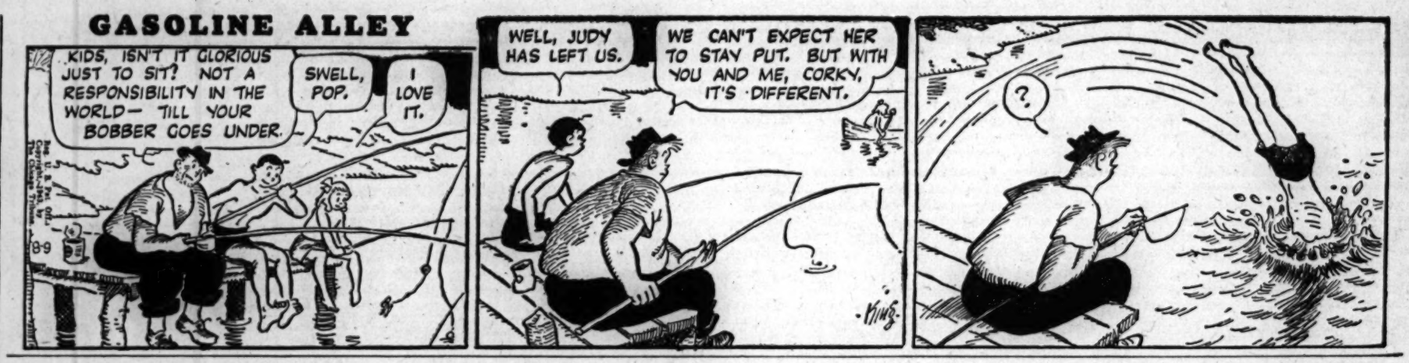
In 1937 he was seized as one of the conspirators in the Memorial day riots which cost the lives of 10 men at the South Chicago plant of the Republic Steel corporation. Nearly 100 others were injured.

Accused of Talking to Rioters.

Weber was accused of being one of the two leaders of a mass meeting from the rioters marched forth.

Weber, a native of Yugo-slavia, vanished after the riots and was subsequently reported to have been "vacationing in Mexico" under one of his many aliases—Joe Judson, Ray, or Weber. His true name is supposed to be Ruik.

Altho he reappeared in CIO union affairs as soon as Russia entered the war as an ally and New Dealers dropped their mask of opposition to communism, Weber, police records show, was sought last December by the immigration department on a charge of entering the United States from Yugo-slavia illegally.



Polish Information Aid Leaves for Canadian Job

J. L. Stamirowski, director of the Chicago office of the Polish government information center, left yesterday for Canada, where he will assume directorship of the Canadian office. His successor here will be Alexander L. Wiesiolowski, former staff member of the Polish consulate here.

CHICAGO PAPER DRIVE BOOSTED BY JANE WYMAN

5,000 Ton Goal Set in One Day Pickup.

Jane Wyman, pretty movie player, posed in a State st. show window yesterday to aid the city's waste-paper-for-war drive. She was en route from Hollywood to New York.

The show window act was designed to call attention to a critical need for waste paper and to promote interest in next Saturday's paper collection drive, for which a goal of 5,000 tons has been set in Chicago. Eighty suburbs also will have collections.

Miss Stacia Noethe, Red Cross nurse stationed at the Red Cross blood donor center, 5 S. Wabash av., showed Miss Wyman a variety of containers made from waste paper, including boxes for blood plasma, which are among war items now lagging in manufacture because of lack of waste paper raw material.

Miss Wyman was interested because she is the wife of the former film player, Capt. Ronald Reagan of the army air forces, who enlisted as a private.

W. H. Beckwith, official of the Morris Paper company and chairman of the waste paper division of the National Paperboard association, reported on his return from Washington, D. C., that the nation will need 75,000 tons more waste paper, for the fourth quarter of the year, than was used in all the first three quarters to meet the needs of the army, navy, and lend-lease.

Waste paper now is listed as America's No. 1 critical war material shortage and Mayor Kelly has called on every Chicagoan to contribute at least 10 pounds.

Six hundred army and paper industry trucks will collect paper at curbs early Saturday, with 3,000 Boy Scouts, office of civilian defense workers, and members of veterans' organizations assisting. The paper will be sold to waste paper dealers at current rates and the proceeds donated to service men's centers, Boy Scouts, and other civic organizations.

JUDGE SABATH TO CELEBRATE 56TH YEAR WED

Judge Joseph Sabath, who has granted about 65,000 divorces in Superior court, and his wife, Regina, will celebrate their 56th wedding anniversary with a family dinner at 6 o'clock tonight in the Standard club, 320 Plymouth ct. He enjoys recalling that he helped effect reconciliations of more than 2,000 estranged couples.

"We are still on our honeymoon, and I still wipe the supper dishes every night," Judge Sabath, who is 74, said yesterday. He and his bride were each 17 when they were married. They have three children, eight grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Great Lakes Prisoner Escapes from Laundry

GENERAL CALLS FOR SPEEDUP OF WAR PRODUCTION

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—There is complete agreement between top officials of the army and the war production board on estimates of military supplies, Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today.

Clay, director of material for the army service forces, in an interview stressed army's critical needs for specific weapons.

"The army has never said that the over-all procurement program is lagging seriously," Gen. Clay asserted. "However, we are behind schedules and our required production in the next six months must increase substantially."

More Radar Is Needed.

He called attention to increased requirements for radar, heavy trucks and artillery, heavy artillery ammunition, tires, cotton duck and tentage, and aircraft bombs.

Clay said requirements from combat theaters have been so sharply increased that production goals for the second half of the year have become critical problems.

Production of aircraft bombs in the first half of the year met requirements set January 1, said Clay, but requirements for the last half of the year are 177 per cent of the first six months' total.

Other Quotas Listed.

He gave these additional examples:

Heavy artillery ammunition production in the first six months of the year was 94 per cent of plan, but requirements for the second six months are 210 per cent of the first half-year's actual total. In specific calibers he gave these percentages: 155 mm. howitzer shells, first six months' actual production, 92 per cent of plan, second half requirements, 180 per cent; 155 mm. gun shells, 98 per cent and 200 per cent; eight inch howitzer shells, 85 per cent and 396 per cent; 240 mm. howitzer shells, 79 per cent and 141 per cent.

The only shell program which fell more than one-half below plan was for eight inch gun ammunition, in which production was only 30 per cent of the goal.

In heavy artillery weapons, 94.5 per cent of plan was achieved, but the second six months' requirement is 123 per cent. The only heavy gun program met in full was the 4.5 inch weapon, and the others carried to a low of 61.7 per cent for the 155 mm. gun.

Big Gain in Truck Needs.

The over-all light-heavy and heavy-heavy truck program was only 5 per cent off in the first six months, but has 140 per cent to go in the second half, Clay said, and in the heavy-heavies the lag is 16 per cent and second half requirement 223 per cent.

Tanks were off 4 per cent and tank destroyers off 5 per cent, said Clay. The second half goals for tanks are 150 per cent of the first six months' output. The tank destroyer lag is more serious—the two models most needed fell eight per cent and 21 per cent, respectively, behind plan, and the second half requirement for one of these is 400 per cent of the first half year's actual production.

Molester of Girl, 11, Gets Bridewell Term

Hilario Lopez, 44, of 920 Taylor st., was sentenced to eight months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli in Felony court after he admitted molesting an 11 year old girl.
